No State Beer Bill by April 7

F. R. ASKS STOCK REGULATION

Today

Beer Is Here.
What About the Saloons?
W. R. Hearst's Answer.
Old-Fashioned Beer Barons.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, March 29.

BEER IS coming back wherever the states and public opinion approve it. States that refuse to permit beer and the ridiculously light 3.2 wine will perhaps regret it. They will offer a free field to bootleggers, and the gangsters and crime that go with bootlegging.

After a while they may conclude that legal 3.2 beer and wine are better than illegal 40 per cent whisky and gin, with wood alcohol possibilities and fusel oil certainties.

BEER IS coming back, so WHAT ABOUT THE OLD-FASHIONED SALOON?

Many ask that question. Is the swinging door to return with the lugubrious "Face On the Barroom Floor" and "Father, Dear Father Come Home With Me Now" accompaniment?

Shall the anxious wife and mother wait outside to steer her lord and master home when the saloon lights go out or the good temperance lady do what she can to ruin the mustached saloon keeper by kneeling in prayer outside his emporium?

YOU WILL hear many opinions about that, including the opinion shared by this writer, that if you bring back beer and make it too hard to get, the speakeasy gentleman will make it very easy to get and of bad quality.

William Randolph Hearst and this writer have discussed the question, by wire, and you will be interested in the following beer saloon opinions sent by telegraph from California to New York, and from New York here, by W. R. Hearst, whose views influence millions of people.

MR. HEARST refers in his telegram to the "beer barons." There were beer barons once, and they were makers of excellent beer, although, as this writer told their national convention, long before prohibition, their beer saloon competition, forcing the sale of whisky, was bound to bring prohibition, an end of beer, and the nationalization of bootleg poison.

The government attended to the beer barons with legislation that confiscated their property, literally stealing hundreds of millions from them, after taking other hundreds of millions in beer taxes.

HERE FOLLOWS Mr. Hearst's opinion on the saloon, telegraphed by him to this column:

TO ARTHUR BRISBANE:

The old-fashioned politicians are laboring for the old-fashioned saloon, and the old-fashioned beer barons in some states are dilating on the advantages of brewery-owned saloons liberally distributed throughout the cities "for the convenience of the workingman."

Apparently some of the beer barons have not learned anything.

They want to get back the thing which made prohibition possible and liberalism impossible.

That was the brewery-owned saloon—one on every corner for the convenience of the workingman—to make it convenient for him to get soused—to make it convenient for him to waste his money and rob his family—the workingman's club, yes, a club with which to beat down his wife and children and break up his home.

The selfish beer baron's concern for the workingman is touching in more senses than one. He wants to touch him for all he has got.

Those of the brewers who have gone on record in opposition to the return of the saloon, especially the brewery-owned saloon, have displayed commendable foresight and understanding.

In my humble opinion, the saloon, and particularly the brewery-owned saloon — one on every corner for the convenience of the workingman and the benefit of the brewery —is not coming back.

The people of this country have abandoned prohibition but they have not abandoned temperance.

They do not want the evils of prohibition nor the evils of the saloon.

In plain language and simple questions:

What was the saloon?

A privately owned drinking place where all the various forms of alcoholic liquors obtainable were sold.

What were the evils of the saloon?

The chief evil was that there was one on every corner for the convenience of the workingman and the inconvenience of his wife and children.

What was the evil of the brewery-owned saloon?

The chief evil was that the big brewery had money enough to put a saloon on every corner for the convenient exploitation of the workingman.

How will the people prevent the return of the saloon?

By law.

But the people have allowed beer and weak wine by federal statute and are proceeding to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

That does not end the temperance question.

There are still state laws and local option to regulate or, if necessary prevent the sale of alcoholic beverages.

There may even be federal

JAIL DANGER TO KLINE IGNORED

Park's Secret Report Silent on Threat To Health

District Attorney Andrew T. Park's secret medical report which helped to keep Mayor Charles H. Kline out of jail contained not one word of prediction that the Mayor's health would be endangered by imprisonment, the Sun-Telegraph learned today.

The complete report finally was published today after the District Attorney had said it would not be revealed.

The possible effects of jail life were not mentioned in the report.

Two of the three examining physicians said today:

"A prognosis is so hazardous we made none."

The report said, in effect, that the Mayor had heart trouble and other chronic afflictions. Jail was not mentioned. "Possibility of serious complications," was the nearest hint to anything savoring of prediction.

NO PROPHECIES

In other words, the three physicians appointed by Park himself, upon order of Judge Thomas D. Finletter, went no farther than to report on the Mayor's health. They made no prophecies.

Dr. J. S. Logan, one of the three, said:

"You have our complete report. Basically our diagnosis agrees with that of the other three doctors. A prognosis is so hazardous we made none."

Dr. C. H. Henninger said:

"You have our complete report."

The text said:

"Based on our examination and tests, it is our opinion that Mayor Charles H. Kline is the subject of:

"1—Generalized arterio-sclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, with specific involvement of the vessels of the central nervous system and peripheral circulation.

"2—The heart, and

"3—The kidneys.

"The most important features in the heart findings were the X-Ray and the electrocardiogram, the interpretation of which is not a matter of personal opinion, but of graphic record.

"The above is a chronic and progressive condition, subjecting the patient to the possibility of serious complications."

SECOND REPORT

This was the second report on the Mayor's condition. The first was made by the Mayor's three physicians, Dr. William O'Neill Sherman, Dr. James D. Heard and Dr. A. H. Colwell.

This report theoretically had no standing in court, the examination having been a personal matter. However, it was after this report had been shown Park by the Mayor's counsel, and the Mayor's resignation offered in return for a lighter sentence, that Park named three doctors for the official examination.

Park and Attorney Edward G. Coll, for the Mayor, visited Judge Finletter in Philadelphia Monday, gave him the doctors' report, then announced the lighter sentence, which keeps the Mayor out of jail.

The Mayor's resignation, mailed yesterday, was in the hands of Robert Clark, city's chief clerk, today. Clark immediately sent notices of a special meeting of Council for Friday, when the resignation will be accepted. John S. Herron, now President of Council, will succeed the Mayor.

KLINE'S RESIGNATION

The resignation, in the Mayor's own handwriting, was just one sentence, which made no reference to his sickness:

"I hereby resign from the office of Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh."

A disagreement existed today as to who should pay the court costs of $1,000 in the Mayor's trial. Park believes the Mayor should pay the costs, contending the costs usually follow the verdict. Attorney Coll insists the Mayor was not ordered to pay the costs as a part of the sentence.

MISS BETTY COMPTON

WALKER, BETTY MAY WED SOON

CANNES, France, March 29.—(Universal.)—Former Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, and Miss Betty Compton, New York actress, expect to be married as soon as they have meticulously fulfilled every requirement of French law, it is reported.

Walker, who was divorced in Miami Monday by Mrs. Janet Allen Walker, refused to comment on published word of the decree. He said:

"I have no official information in my possession regarding this. Until I have the necessary official information, I will still adhere to my original decision to keep absolute silence."

Although Walker and Miss Compton, who has taken a villa here with her mother, Mrs. Florence Compton, refuse to make known their plans, it is understood they are carefully studying the French legal requirements.

It is said Walker is planning to establish a legal residence, and that he has been advised of the documentary formalities necessary under French law regarding the marriage of foreign nationals.

GERMANY'S BOYCOTT OPENS

Jewish Children Face Ouster From Schools

BERLIN, March 29.—(AP.)—Germany's boycott of Jews, although it does not begin officially until the morning of April 1, already has begun to take form.

This morning the Berlin city government ordered that from April 1 on all supplies for municipal projects and offices be purchased only from Nationalist merchants.

Forty-eight Jewish shops, picketed by National Socialist Storm Troopers, were quickly closed by their owners, and a number of other shops, run by non-Jews on money borrowed from Jews, also were picketed.

Jewish professors were prevented from entering the classroom buildings at the University of Westphalia. Even school attendance by Jewish children is to be reduced.

Hugo Sinzheimer, a member of the university faculty, and three Jewish attorneys were placed under "protective arrest."

Prof. Sinzheimer was a reporter for the War Guilt Commission, and is a member of the German Peace Society.

Nazi delegations at Eberswalde appeared at all Jewish stores and

STATE BEER BILL APRIL 7 DOOMED

House Members Bolt On Pinchot-Martin Compromise

HARRISBURG, March 29.—Beer licensing and regulation in Pennsylvania by April 7 went glimmering today when the effort of the Pinchot-Martin forces in the House to send back to committee the Sowers beer bill were defeated, 121 to 69.

Instead the House passed the bill on first reading, while locking in committee the Pinchot-Martin beer bills introduced yesterday by Representative James H. McClure, of Glassport.

The House acted directly in the face of a formal statement by the Governor that he would veto the Sowers' measure should it pass the Assembly, and today's vote demonstrates that there are not sufficient votes to override his official disapproval.

Representatives McClure and William A. Walker voted to send the bill back. Representatives Scorza and Leonard Kane were absent, and the remaining 23 Allegheny County members joined in the rebuff to the Governor.

Roosevelt Message On Stock Regulation

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress today follows:

"To the Congress:

"I recommend to the Congress legislation for federal supervision of traffic in investment securities in interstate commerce.

"In spite of many state statutes the public in the past has sustained severe losses through practices neither ethical nor honest on the part of many persons and corporations selling securities.

"Of course, the federal government cannot and should not take any action which might be construed as approving or guaranteeing that newly issued certificates are sound in the sense that their value will be maintained or that the properties which they represent will earn profit.

"There is, however, an obligation upon us to insist that every issue of new securities to be sold in interstate commerce shall be accompanied by full publicity and information, and that no essentially important element attending the issue shall be concealed from the buying public.

"This proposal adds to the ancient rule of caveat emptor, the further doctrine, 'Let the seller also beware.'

"It puts the burden of telling the whole truth on the seller.

"It should give impetus to honest dealing in securities and thereby bring back public confidence.

"The purpose of the legislation I suggest is to protect the public with the least possible interference to honest business.

"This is but one step in our broad purpose of protecting investors and depositors.

"It should be followed by legislation relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all property dealt in on exchanges, and by legislation to correct unethical and unsafe practices on the part of officers and directors of banks and other corporations.

"What we seek is a return to a clearer understanding of the ancient truth that those who manage banks, corporations and other agencies handling or using other people's money are trustees acting for others."

ACTS TO BAR SECURITIES FRAUDS

U. S. Supervision of Exchanges Planned

WASHINGTON, March 29. — (AP.) — President Roosevelt asked Congress today to provide federal supervision of investment securities.

In another direct special message—his sixth in less than three weeks—the Chief Executive declared the public has sustained "severe losses through practices neither ethical nor honest."

Thereupon, he proposed to invoke the power of the federal government in interstate commerce traffic to control new securities.

EXCHANGE SUPERVISION

The President also informed Congress he would propose soon legislation "relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all properties dealt in on exchanges."

He also spoke of legislation he has in mind "to correct unethical and unsafe practices on the part of officers and directors of banks and other corporations." Mr. Roosevelt said:

"What we seek is a return to a clear understanding of the ancient truth that those who manage banks, corporations and other agencies handling or using other people's money are trustees acting for others."

The administration bill was introduced in the Senate immediately after the message was read. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader, introduced it on behalf of Chairman Ashurst, of the Judiciary Committee. The Senate immediately referred it to that committee for action.

Ashurst said the committee will consider the bill tomorrow.

APPLAUDED IN HOUSE

In the House, members applauded when the reading of the President's message was completed.

Speaker Rainey referred it to the Interstate Commerce Committee.

High spots of the bill are:

Forbids sale or advertisement of securities until all pertinent information has been filed with the Federal Trade Commission.

Compels promoters of security sales to sign all statements made to commission concerning issues.

Makes signers of statements to commission jointly liable to purchasers for damages in event misrepresentations are found.

Makes it a federal offense punishable by $5,000 fine or five years in prison for violation of act.

MOTHER, SON DIE IN CRASH

A mother and her son were killed today when their car crashed into a truck as it was making a left turn from Carson street into Terminal way, South Side.

The dead are Mrs. Mary Lewis, 46, of 2410 Patterson street, and her son, William Lewis, 20. The mother was pronounced dead when taken to the South Side Hospital. The son died 20 minutes after being admitted.

The truck, owned by the Mahoning Express Company, West Lacock street, was driven by Robert S. King, 34, Herman street. He was held by South Side police for the Coroner.

Mayor Candidate Plan Up Tonight

A suggestion that the Citizens Committee, leaders in the fight which resulted in the resignation of Mayor Kline, name a group of five taxpayers as candidates for the vacated post will be acted upon tonight by the Allied Boards of Trade.

The suggestion was made by the Beechview Civic League, which demanded that City Council request the Citizens Committee to name the five candidates.

PINCHOT IN DEFI TO BANKERS

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(INS.) — Gov. Gifford Pinchot challenged Pennsylvania bankers and the General Assembly today to a finish fight over the proposed new banking regulations.

The Governor's warning was this:

Unless the state banking and building and loan codes are passed by the legislators now in session, he will force them to return for a special session without pay. He declared:

"The banking crisis has made one thing clear to every depositor in Pennsylvania, and that is that we need a banking code that will prevent for the future any such suffering and loss as depositors have gone through in the last three years.

"There can be no guarantee against the same thing happening over again unless the banking code is enacted."

Gov. Pinchot said flatly if the codes are not enacted he will be obliged to call back the legislators for a special session for which they will be paid nothing unless they pass the salary bill over his veto.

At a hearing on the proposed codes yesterday, Representatives of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association advised delay for further study.

Mission Honeymoon For Son of Wilbur

SAN BERNARDINO, March 29.—(AP.)—The engagement of Miss Jean Spaulding, of San Bernardino, and Dr. Leonard Fiske Wilbur, son of Curtis D. Wilbur, former Secretary of the Navy, was announced today by the young woman's parent's Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Spaulding.

The young couple will be married shortly before their departure early this summer for North China, where they have been assigned to missionary work in the Fenchow Hospital.

Mrs. Longworth At Farm Hearing

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth is taking a lively interest now in the farm question.

Taking a seat at the long witness table in the Senate Agriculture Committee room yesterday, the widow of the late Speaker sat for several hours listening to arguments for and against the administration farm price parity bill.

An attempt to bomb the house of a Squirrel Hill physician was being investigated today by the Bomb and Arson Squad.

A crudely fashioned bomb was found outside the home of Dr. R. H. McClellan at 1428 Severn street yesterday afternoon, the Squirrel Hill police reported.

It was a one-pound coffee can, into which explosive powder had been poured and a fuse attached. The fuse had been lighted but had gone out without exploding the powder.

Dr. McClellan received a threatening letter 10 days ago, the police said, although no reason why he should be threatened has been revealed.

1,000 Reported Dead In Peru Landslide

LIMA, Peru, March 29.—(INS.)—The landslide which devastated the village of Tantaday on Sunday wiped out the entire population of 1,000, according to latest reports here today. Previous reports stated 76 bodies had been recovered and that 120 were feared dead.

BROWN WIDOW SUBPENAED

MT. HOLLY, N. J., March 29.—(AP.)—Justice Joseph L. Bodine today charged the Burlington County Grand Jury, convened to investigate the deaths of Ruth Mowdray Wilson and Horace Roberts, Jr., to "protect the innocent and bring the guilty to the bar of justice."

The young couple were found fatally shot in the bedroom of Miss Wilson's home, in Moorestown, in June, 1929. A coroner's jury declared young Roberts had shot Miss Wilson and then killed himself, but Horace Roberts, Sr., recently expressed the opinion that the jury had not received all the facts.

Among the witnesses subpenaed by the grand jury is Mrs. Ruth McCauley Brown, formerly of Beaver, Pa., widow of Bradway Brown. Brown was found shot to death in his Cinnaminson township home last January.

Bandits Get Money Bag in Chain Store

Two young white men, armed, held up M. A. Baker, manager, in the A. & P. store at 421 Collins avenue at noon today and escaped with a bag of money. Baker told police he was alone when the pair entered, and while one kept him covered with a revolver the other walked behind the counter, picked up the money bag, and both fled.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived from New York by airplane shortly before noon today, accompanied by Miss Marion Dickerman, principal of Todhunter School.

'Slot Machine Heiress' Sues Coyne Attorney

The slot machine racket and the affairs of Senator James Coyne's Oakland Real Estate Company bobbed up in court today in a fight over the estate of Patrick F. McKnight, Soho political leader.

Removal of Howard Neely as executor of the estate of Patrick F. McKnight was sought in Orphans Court on the ground that he is an executive officer of the Oakland Real Estate Company and personal attorney for Senator James J. Coyne and Louis Schwartz, other officers of the company.

A petition filed in the case states that at the time of McKnight's death, January 21, he owed a large number of slot machines throughout the city, which contained a large amount of money, but the executor had failed to collect either the cash or machines for the benefit of the estate.

That the Oakland Real Estate Company is indebted to the estate in the sum of $40,000 the petition states. The belief that assets of the company are being distributed or dissipated and the company is insolvent, is asserted.

A citation requiring Neely to show cause why he should not be removed as executor was granted on motion of Attorney Jacob A. Markel and John A. Metz. It is returnable April 11. The petition was filed in behalf of Madeline McKnight, a minor, who is sole heir of the estate, by her next best friend, Bertha Hainey.

Lighthouse Death Signal Spurs Rescuers On

PORT MORIEN, N. S., March 29.—(AP.)—A message of death, blinking in red flashes from a lighthouse, drew rescuers early today to a new attempt to reach ice-locked Flint Island.

The red lights, flashing six times in groups of two, said:

The dead child is one of nine in the family of Lightkeeper Martell, but which of the nine it was no one on the mainland knew.

For 50 hours boats had sought in vain to reach the island, isolated by a mile-and-a-half of broken ice. Frantic signals had told them something was wrong, but at first no one knew what it was.

Yesterday shore people composed a code of signals, which were delivered to the light tower in a note dropped from an airplane by Don McPherson. But there was a mixup, and all that was definitely established was that some one was ill or dead.

Then the Glace Bay radio station asked the islanders to flash the light twice in case Martell was dead, four times if it was Mrs. Martell, and six times if it was one of the children.

Many eyes watched in the cold darkness last night as the light began to blink: Flash-flash, flash flash, flash-flash.

The government ice-breaker Montcalm made ready to sail from North Sydney to bring the body ashore and give aid if any one else was sick. A shift in the wind raised hope that the ice might yield to the smashing progress of the hardy ship.

ROOSEVELT TO ASK U. S. 'DIRECTOR' FOR RAILROADS

WIDE POWERS SOUGHT OVER CARRIERS

Capital Adjustments, Mergers Included In Reform Plan

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt will propose to Congress next week the creation of a federal co-ordinator with wide powers to deal with the railroad situation.

The President is now engaged in whipping the rail legislation into shape. Details have yet to be worked out, but he hopes to have it in shape for transmission to Congress in another week.

The plan broadly calls for the appointment of a federal co-ordinator, with regional assistants to act under his direction.

There will be no Federal guaranty of railroad bonds, it was stated at the White House today, and the expense of the plan will be borne by the carriers themselves, and not by the government. The President believes the expense will be slight.

The main purposes of the program are:

1—Elimination of costly duplication of services.

2—Readjustment of top-heavy capitalization through reduction of fixed charges.

BOY PAROLED IN LINDY THREAT

AKRON, O., March 29.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old boy accused of attempting to extort $25,000 from Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh by writing threatening letters, will be placed on parole because he is "not a bad boy," according to Juvenile Judge Oscar Hunsicker, who said:

"He just read too many imaginative stories."

The Judge conducted a hearing for the lad, Proveno (Peanuts) Marcella, behind closed doors.

The court expressed the wish that the boy's parish priest consent to have Proveno paroled to him. Meanwhile the boy will be held in the juvenile detention home.

Postal Inspector Ernest D. Claggett said Marcella, a high school student whose father, Tony Marcella, operates a store and filling station near here, admitted writing two letters to Mrs. Lindbergh demanding money.

Neither of the two letters reached the wife of the aviator. The first was intercepted here, the second at Washington.

MATSUOKA SEES JAPAN CLEARED

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—A belief that "time will vindicate" Japan's actions was voiced last night by Yosuke Matsuoka, who was in the international spotlight as head of Japan's delegation to the League of Nations. He said:

"Japan has been waging a war against a world that has misunderstood her and she has suffered a defeat."

The American-educated diplomat addressed the Japanese Chamber of Commerce in his first formal address since he returned from Europe last week.

He made no direct reference to Japan's withdrawal from the League.

Much of his address was a crisp criticism of China for what he termed her lack of integrity and responsibility.

demanded immediate closing, as well as dismissal of all employes. During the night show windows of all Jewish shops were smeared with tar and glass cases in the town's two Jewish-owned motion picture houses were smashed. Nazi headquarters expressed disapproval of these acts of vandalism.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung reported Chancellor Hitler as having said at today's cabinet meeting that measures against the "atrocity campaign" are necessary because popular indignation otherwise might take undesirable forms.

TO PREVENT VIOLENCE

The situation is under control now and violence by individuals must be prevented under all circumstances, said the newspaper, quoting Herr Hitler, "but the Jews must bear in mind that any Jewish campaign against Germany would react most sharply upon Jews in Germany."

Meanwhile, the government's attention was taken up by the strained relations in its own ranks caused by the reported counter revolt movement in Brunswick involving the Steel Helmet (war veterans) organization. Only 150 men remained in custody there after the release last night of 1,200 who had been held prisoners 24 hours in the Steel Helmet headquarters.

Those still in custody were described as Leftist leaders. The Nazi Storm Troops, who fought side by side with the Steel Helmeters to establish the Hitler regime and shared police duties with them since, had accused the latter of enrolling more than 1,000 former Reichsbanner (Republican defense force) men to oust the Nazis.

The order disbanding the Steel Helmeters in that state and removing them as auxiliary police will be rescinded Saturday, it was announced.

VIENNA NAZIS RIOT

VIENNA, March 29.—(AP.)—Austrian Nazis through their official organ, "Reutschoesterreichische Tageszeitung," today warned the world that the forthcoming Nazi regime would not recognize any agreement signed by the regime of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

The newspaper also warned members of the present government:

"You are playing not only with the last resources of our people, but you are risking also your heads and your lives."

Meanwhile, smashed windows in business houses and coffee shops along the famous Ring in the inner city of Vienna bore witness to a demonstration by Austrian Nazis shouting their allegiance to Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

They marched through the main part of the city last night in defiance of the edict issued against such demonstrations three weeks ago.

CHANG IN HIDING AT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, March 29.—(AP.)—As a result of the recent attempt on his life, Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, the deposed North China war lord, is now living in seclusion in Shanghai. He has purchased an armored, high-powered American motorcar for occasional movements hereabouts.

His home was bombed March 20, causing some damage.

Marshal Chang, who fled from his former headquarters at Peiping March 12, is considered a virtual prisoner here with Chinese gangsters allegedly demanding a huge sum for supposedly guaranteeing his safety.

FREE BRITONS, SOVIET TOLD

LONDON, March 29.—(INS.)—The British government has sent a virtual ultimatum to Soviet authorities in Moscow threatening an embargo against Russian goods unless the four British subjects held on charges of sabotage are freed from standing trial, it was reported today.

The Britons are employes of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical concern. They were seized in a series of raids of Soviet secret police and accused of plotting against Soviet industry.

'Sistie' Recounts Joys As White House Belle

By FULTON LEWIS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Forget the President's worries over banking, foreign affairs, and unemployment; the important thing is the White House has three sandboxes, two swings and a trapeze.

That is what really counts, in the opinion of the world's most charming young lady, Miss "Sistie" Dall. With her younger brother, "Buzzie," she explained it all to Universal Service today. They are grandchildren of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

It was through Buzzie, very much Beau Brummel in a blue suede coat and leggins, and a white beret, that the interview came about. He and Sistie and the nurse were promenading through Potomac Park, en route to the Lincoln Memorial.

She was asked:

"Do you like living in the White House?"

"M-m-mam! It's grand. We've got THREE sandboxes and TWO swings and a trapeze. I can walk all the way up the steps on the trapeze and all the way along the top."

"What do you like most about living in the White House?"

This required no deliberation. The answer was:

"The parties. I had a party last week when I was 6. I'm going to have a party every birthday."

Then, with a hopeful glint in her eye:

"And Buzzie's got a birthday next month—"

By this time the migratory interview had reached the Navy Building, where Buzzie put in a protest against this marathon walking and took to his go-cart. Meanwhile a steady stream of traffic on Constitution avenue caused a wait of several minutes before it was possible to cross. Sistie observed:

"They ought to have more lights?"

"Lights?"

LEAGUE COURT FACES DELAY IN SENATE

Action Postponed for Week; Hostility Mounting

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(INS.)—The crush of urgent domestic relief legislation today caused the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to postpone action for one week on the administration request that it report the League Court treaty.

The week's delay was sought after administration leaders had attempted in vain to smother a rising tide of revolt against injection of this bitterly controversial issue into the special session.

The committee members, in executive meeting, discussed the treaty for two hours without attempting to reach a decision. Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, a strong foe to American adherence, explained:

"There were two schools of thought. One argument was that we ought not to detract from domestic issues of paramount importance by attempting to deal with this controversial international subject.

"Some members believed it would be better to let the treaty remain in committee, since there is little prospect it could be brought to a final vote at the special session."

SITUATION STUDIED

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, explained the meeting today was devoted to discussion of the legislative situation and the probable effect of seeking ratification of the treaty at this time. He said:

"The Democratic platform pledged the party on this question."

DEFEAT SEEN

Democratic committee members explained privately that in view of the wave of protest against submission of the League Court issue, they wanted time to confer with the President and lay the situation before him.

The Senate will defeat the court treaty if it is brought to a vote at the extra session, Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, predicted today.

Independent Air Unit For France Approved

PARIS, March 29.—(AP.)—Reorganization of the air force with an independent command on a par with the army and the navy has been decided upon by the defense committee of the Chamber of Deputies and approved by the government.

The air force would maintain a liaison with the army and navy and would put units under the command of each, especially in case of mobilization. Air groups would be distributed strategically in France and the colonies.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Sam H. Thompson today announced his resignation as a member of the Federal Farm Board effective April 1.

HOUSE TAKES UP F. R.'S BILL ON FORESTATION

Passage Predicted by Democratic Leader

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—With a three-hour time limit on speechmaking, the House took up President Roosevelt's forest conservation measure today with the expectation of passing it before nightfall.

There was an agreement that no voting would be started until copies of the bill as passed yesterday by the Senate were available, but the printing of these was expedited to have them in the hands of members before the debate ended.

PASSAGE PREDICTED

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, said before the House took up the measure that he had been informed at the White House that the changes made by the Senate were acceptable to President Roosevelt and predicted passage before adjournment despite the opposition of Chairman Connery, of the House Labor Committee.

Connery told the House today that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, "has reversed his position and is opposed" to the Senate-approved measure.

JOBLESS RELIEF BILL

Meanwhile, consideration of the administration's $500,000,000 unemployment relief bill was blocked in the Senate today by Senator McNary, Republican leader.

He consented, however, to begin informal debate on the measure today in the absence of any other Senate business.

Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, said after a conference with President Roosvelt, that the President was in favor of his bill for $500,000,000 in federal aid to the states and cities.

REED ALARMED AT U. S. STEPS

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—(AP.)—Methods being followed by the administration in Washington were compared last night by United States Senator David A. Reed to that of "the patient who is so desperately ill that he will take any medicine thrust at him without even reading the label."

In a speech before the Temple University Law School dinner, Pennsylvania's senior Senator expressed "unalterable and violent" opposition to the farm bill. He declared:

"The sales tax features of the bill place 90,000,000 consumers of the nation at the mercy of one man—the Secretary of Agriculture—for the supposed benefit of the nation's other 30,000,000 inhabitants, the middle western farmer. It is class legislation pure and simple."

He predicted the farm relief measure would be "torn to pieces in the Senate."

The powers given President Roosevelt in the banking crisis, "greater than ever given any other President," are "of doubtful constitutionality," Senator Reed said.

M'ADOO URGES FARM BANK

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Help for the farmer in meeting his mortgages at lower interest was proposed in a measure introduced today by Senator McAdoo (Dem), California, while the Senate Agriculture Committee wrestled with the administration's sweeping farm relief bill.

McAdoo's measure, calling for creation of a strong federal farm mortgage bank and with authority to base it on consolidated agricultural credit agencies, was offered by him "to assist Mr. Roosevelt in formulating a farm mortgage program."

The committee, meanwhile, in an effort to get the administration farm bill to the Senate floor by Friday or Saturday, went into an afternoon executive session to discuss the measure, which would give extensive powers to Secretary Wallace to restore agriculture.

Snub-Swapper

HELEN KANE HOFFMAN

HELEN, LAWYER SWAP SNUBS

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Murray J. Posner and Jack Eisen stood indicted today on a charge of concealing assets of their bankrupt Bond Dress Company from the Irving Trust Company as trustee.

Posner, meanwhile, in another court, explained yesterday a payment of $50,000 to Helen Kane, the "Boop-a-doop" vocalist.

The singer, just back from a Bermuda honeymoon with Max Hoffman, whom she married a month ago, entered the hearing after Isidor Gainsburg, attorney for the trust company, had begun his opening remarks to the jury. She was just in time to hear him say:

"Miss Kane is, I understand, an actress or something like that."

She whispered to her attorney, who at once interjected:

"Mr. Gainsburg is, I understand, a lawyer or something like that."

Gainsburg retorted:

"That understanding is more worthy of respect than my understanding of Miss Kane as an actress."

QUAKE-PROOF SCHOOLS URGED

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—(AP.)—School buildings of the future in Los Angeles will be of one-story bungalow type or exclusively of class A construction if the recommendations of the coroner's jury in the earthquake of March 10 are carried out.

The jury, composed of nine technical experts, also recommended the adoption of a specific uniform building code and immediate inspection of all school buildings and places of public assembly, to avert structural hazards.

The verdict, returned yesterday, said that no criminal action should be taken against anyone in connection with the death of two high school boys in wrecked school buildings, although "there were doubtless many instances of ignorance and negligence in materials or workmanship."

THREE ON TRIAL IN COUNTY GAS JUGGLING

Ex-Employes Accused Of Using Fuel in Private Cars

Three former county employes who served under the Armstrong-Babcock administration went on trial today, charged with conspiracy in alleged diversion of county gasoline to private use.

The three are William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the County Commissioners; Roy Walters, secretary to the late Joseph G. Armstrong, and Howard Allen, former head of the county motor division.

Judge Sylvester J. Snee ordered that the jury of four women and eight men be locked up nights during the trial.

JUGGLING CHARGED

Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair in his opening address said the Commonwealth would prove that the defendant obtained gasoline at the People's Service Station, south end of the Liberty tubes, for their own automobiles and had it charged to Allegheny County.

Allen, the prosecutor charged, juggled the books to make it appear that the gasoline had been bought for use of the county.

Former Congressman Harry A. Estep represented the defendants.

M. C. Conick, whose audit of county affairs uncovered the alleged "cheating" in gas purchases, was the first witness.

TRACES PURCHASES

Conick testified he had examined accounts of the Peoples Service Station and found that Ziefel had obtained gasoline for four different cars from 1929 to 1931. Tracing the license numbers, he said he learned that two of the cars were registered in Ziefel's name, one in the name of his wife, Mrs. Ada Ziefel, and the fourth in the name of Roy F. Walters.

Mrs. Ziefel's car and that of Walters had obtained gas valued at $300 each, and Ziefel's two cars to the amount of $1,000, Conick said. The county footed the bill, an inspection of the books revealed, he testified.

DEBT PROBLEM PUT TO FORE

LONDON, March 29.—(AP.)—The question of a final settlement of the war debt owed the United States again became the chief business before the British government today.

The subject was up for discussion at today's cabinet meeting even before the expected arrival tonight of Norman H. Davis, who has been named special Ambassador for the United States in Europe by President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(INS.)—Conversations between the United States and Great Britain on problems relating to the world economic conference were continued today at the State Department in one and one-half hours' conference between Secretary of State Hull and Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, and their advisers.

PARIS, March 29.—(AP.)—The government is seeking to delay parliamentary debate on the $19,000,000 debt installment due the United States last December, so negotiations with Washington may proceed unhampered.

Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour is expected to ask the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies to postpone discussion of the problem for several weeks, inasmuch as the government believes debate would be inopportune under the present circumstances.

Mexico to Deport 20 In U. S. Embassy Row

MEXICO CITY, March 29.—(AP.)—Twenty alleged Communists have been arrested for an attack on the American embassy last Friday night in protest against the appointment of Josephus Daniels as ambassador to this country. They will be deported to the penal colony on Marias Island.

Reclining Chairs Near As Juryman Protests

Modern reclining chairs for male Common Pleas Court jurors, forced to spend the night deliberating, probably will be furnished following a complaint to Judge Thomas M. Marshall.

Fred A. Sauer, 625 Center avenue, Aspinwall, who last week spent a night in a stiff-back chair when the jury could not agree, filed the complaint. Women jurors had been furnished beds. Sauer said:

"All men should be given beds if they have to stay on the case all night. There should be no discrimination. I have no personal feeling in the matter, but I think beds should be provided for all."

Judge Marshall promised to take up the subject at the next judges' meeting. It is the first time a juror has filed a formal complaint. The subject has been discussed by the judges before, but some thought beds might delay the jury's decision.

It was explained some chairs furnished jurors are of the reclining type, but the mechanism is concealed and few know how to operate them.

SHAW TAKES VERBAL POKES AT HOLLYWOOD STARS

REMARK DRIVES ANN HARDING TO TEARS

Vegetables, Americans Alike to Dramatist Sailing Eastward

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 29.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw, who unblushingly admits he is one of the greatest masters in literary life today, is en route to New York to discover a few additional facts about America.

The white-whiskered Irish dramatist sailed last night on the Empress of Britain, traveling by way of the Panama Canal.

While the hypercritical iconoclast left in his wake in Southern California a number of screen celebrities who were impressed by his visit, despite his caustic remark that he would return some time and "show you how to make pictures," there was at least one person who had come in close contact with the dramatist who saw nothing unusual in Shaw's brief sojourn.

HE'S 'NOT FUNNY'

When the airplane carrying Shaw from the William Randolph Hearst ranch at San Simeon to Los Angeles was forced down on the beach yesterday near Malibu, George Gray O'Connor, a sophomore at the University of California at Los Angeles, happened along in his dilapidated automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw accepted O'Connor's invitation for a bouncing ride to Malibu. Later O'Connor said:

"Now that I think of it, I can't recall a cock-eyed thing said by Mr. Shaw that was really funny."

SNUBS ANN HARDING

Ann Harding and Alice Brady, screen actresses, probably share O'Connor's opinion.

To Miss Harding, who had proudly told Shaw she had played the part of Lady Cecily in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," the dramatist had bluntly told her:

"It must have been a piratical performance."

The actress told him:

"Indeed, it was not. We had permission in writing from your own agent."

She then hurriedly left the dramatist, entered a dressing room, closed the door—and wept.

No one told Shaw he had driven her to tears.

DOESN'T LIKE HAT

Meeting Miss Brady, the dramatist said bluntly:

"Why does a girl with a pretty face wear a hat like that?"

No one recorded Miss Brady's reply.

Just before the Empress of Britain sailed from the harbor, Shaw was asked:

"What did you see down here?"

He replied:

"Nothing but rocks, grass, vegetables and Americans."

'Why a Hat Like That?'

CABARET BAND, ENTERTAINER HELD UP

Master of Ceremonies, Musicians Lose Pay In Auto Robbery

Lined up along a hillside in Saw Mill Run boulevard early today, Jack Peck, master of ceremonies, and six members of a jazz orchestra, were robbed of $225 by four bandits.

The victims had just been paid.

The entertainers were stopped near the Liberty Tubes by the bandit leader, who stood in the middle of the highway with a flashlight. As Fred Schnadle, of 6400 Aylesboro avenue, pianist and director of the orchestra and driver of the machine, stopped at the side of the road, the leader, joined by two companions, stepped to the running board and said:

"All out boys, this is a stick-up."

VICTIMS SEARCHED

While two of the robbers covered the group a third searched them. Schnadle gave up $175, Peck, $49, and the others, Edward Litto, of 847 Eldora street; Frank Gulland, 934 Western avenue; Walter Black, 320 Center street, Carnegie; Albert Walker, 742 Clarissa street, and Harry Baker, 7004 Churchland street, small change.

Ordering the entertainers to remain quiet, the leader said:

"We're sorry to do this, but we've got to eat, too."

A fourth member of the gang remained in the bandit car during the holdup.

Peck, who is master of ceremonies of the floor show at the New Penn Roadhouse on Clairton road, told police the bandits evidently had inside information.

The gang was blamed for the attempted robbery of a Dow drug store at 501 East street, shortly before midnight. Several shots were fired by the bandits as they fled.

SHOTS FIRED

Mistaking John Hartz, Jr., 17, a clerk, of 5153 Butler stret, for the manager, the gunmen held him up when he left the store. Hartz' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hartz, had called to take him home and the father had gone into the store. As the father and son neared the parked car in which Mrs. Hartz was seated, the two bandits appeared and ordered them to throw up their hands. From young Hartz they demanded the keys to the store.

While the holdup was in progress, Harry Torin, of 6 Overhill street, the assistant manager, with the keys, had boarded a street car across the street, police said.

When the thugs entered the automobile Mrs. Hartz screamed, attracting Frank Connelly, of 5178 Butler street, and Harold Beech, of 507 Emlin street. As they pursued the bandits in James street, several shots were fired at them by the pair who joined an accomplice awaiting them in an automobile.

AUTO OF WALES STONED IN GLASGOW

Red Arrested Refusing To Halt Speech as Prince Passes

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 29.—(AP.)—A tour of Glasgow by the Prince of Wales today was marred by two unpleasant incidents.

A man, allegedly a Communist, who was addressing a group at a corner, refused to halt his speech while the Prince was passing. Police took him off his platform and to a police station.

When the Prince visited Saint Roch's Recreational Club, a window was smashed by stones thrown as the royal car drove up. Police were unable to locate those responsible.

There are large numbers of Communists in the Glasgow population.

Unusual incidents started at the very moment of the Prince's arrival.

Just before he emerged from his sleeping car, a man broke through the lines of police and station officials to the door of the royal car. He told the station master, who stopped him there, that he had an engagement with the Prince, but policemen rushed forward and escorted him outside the station.

The Prince came here on a three-day tour of unemployment centers in Scotland.

ALIEN SOUGHT IN IL DUCE PLOT

ROME, March 29.—(AP.)—Police sought today to determine whether a man charged with seeking to assassinate Premier Benito Mussolini has an accomplice.

The name of the prisoner in the latest reported attempt on the Premier, whose nose once was wounded by one assassin's bullet and who has had many other narrow escapes, was not disclosed. Officers said, however, he was from Northern Italy and had a wife and family.

One of the statements in an alleged confession, the police said, indicated he had a foreigner for an accomplice. He was alone when arrested March 20 near the Premier's palace with a revolver in his pocket.

Police, who announced his arrest yesterday, said he admitted intending to shoot Mussolini when the latter left the office.

DENY RACE BAN AT DEATH TRIAL

DECATUR, Ala., March 29.—(INS.)—Retrial of the first of the seven Scottsboro Negroes whose death sentence for criminal attack was set aside by the United States Supreme Court will begin Thursday.

The case was adjourned last night over Wednesday after Judge James E. Horton had denied a defense motion to quash the indictment on the ground that Negroes were excluded from the grand jury solely because of their color.

The prosecution, headed by Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general of Alabama, has elected to try Haywood Patterson, first on the separate indictment which charges him with implication in the alleged attack on two young white girls on a freight train between Chattanooga and Huntsville two years ago.

The court, which is guarded by Alabama National Guardsmen, was thrown into excitement when Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief defense counsel, called the court's attention to the sale of pamphlets at 50 cents each entitled "The unpublished inside story of the infamous Scottsboro case."

PARENTS SAVE 2 BOYS FROM FIRE

Awakened by smoke, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lonsdale carried their children, Nelson, Jr., 6, and Leslie, 4, to safety early today as fire swept through their home at 154 Arlington avenue, rear.

A moment after the house was vacated it burst into flames, firemen said. The fire started in the basement. Battalion Chief Saul Klein said, estimating the damage at $2,500.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Lonsdale, who was aroused by smoke. Calling to her husband, they carried their children to the street. Mr. Lonsdale turned in the alarm.

INDICATE GUILT IN 'SPY' CASE

LONDON, March 29.—(Universal.)—Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, of the Seaforth Highlanders, was acquitted by a court-martial yesterday on three of 10 charges connected with divulging military information to foreign agents, but he faces sentence on seven remaining counts.

Crowds jammed the courtroom of the Duke of York's headquarters in Chelsea barracks for the final day of the trial of the latest prisoner of the Tower of London. The debonair lieutenant smiled at his mother as the trial proceeded.

After considering the evidence and the Judge-Advocate's recommendations, the court announced acquittal on the three minor counts of having attempted to collect, obtain and communicate information, adding that sentence on the seven main charges of having collected and communicated military information "will be promulgated in due course," indicating unofficially a verdict of guilty.

'DOUG' ANSWERS BALM SUIT

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—(AP.)—Charging conspiracy to extort money from him, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., screen actor, has filed his answers to the $60,000 alienation of affections and false imprisonment suits brought against him by Jorgen Dietz, chemical engineer.

Fairbanks' answer denies all the charges made by Dietz, and in addition alleges the suits are a part of a conspiracy by Dietz and Lucy Doraine, now the wife of Dietz, to extort money from him.

The actor charges in the reply that Dietz and Miss Doraine demanded $6,000 of him on the threat of publicizing an account of his asserted alienation of the affections of Dietz's former wife, Solveig, now in Denmark.

MARLENE HURT, BLAMES SKIRT

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 29.—(AP.)—Confined to her bed with injuries she suffered when thrown from a horse, Marlene Dietrich, German-born film star, has found a new argument for the use of trousers as women's apparel.

She said:

"If I had been wearing trousers the accident never would have happened."

Miss Dietrich, thrown during the filming of a motion picture yesterday, was wearing a long-skirted riding habit of 25 years ago.

The actress, her physician said, suffered a slight brain concussion and bruises on her left side.

JEWEL 'FENCE' ENDS LIFE

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Ralph Krakower, under charges of being the criminal receiver of much of the loot of Harry Sitmore, international jewel thief arrested in Miami Beach, Fla., recently, committed suicide by poison in his Riverside drive apartment today.

Krakower was 48 years old and a jewelry salesman. He was found dying by his wife, Dora. Beside him lay a note he had written in which he blamed "this arch thief" for wrecking his life.

CHILD MURDER HUNT PUSHED

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—The tense hunt for a man who garroted 6-year-old Barbara Wiles broke in upon the slumbers of 2,000 homeless men in the municipal lodging house before dawn today.

Police, acting on a tip that the mad killer might be in the place, aroused the men and scrutinized them, but failed to find the suspect.

Detectives in lower Manhattan also were ordered to arouse all men sleeping on docks.

Barbara was strangled with her own skip rope yesterday in a Brooklyn basement. An agitated young man in a V-neck sweater was seen fleeing from the neighborhood.

TWO FAMILIES FLEE FUMES

Ten persons were forced to flee into the street when fumes from a refrigerating system filled a three-story brick building at 1321 Fifth avenue last night.

Those routed were Nick Papagalos, his wife and their two children, John, 13, and Domina, 12, who occupy a second-floor apartment; and Michael August, his wife and their children, William, 9; Christopher, 8; Stephen, 5, and Harry 3, who live on the third.

Firemen from No. 4 Engine Company donned gas masks and turned off the flow. The system was the property of a butcher who vacated recently, firemen said.

Bannister on Way To Sino-Japan Front

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—(Universal)—Harry Bannister, actor, playwright, author and aviator, en route to the Orient to serve as war correspondent for Universal Service, arrived at United Airport late yesterday in his single-seater plane, after a flight from New York.

Bannister's stay will be a short one, as he expects to sail for China as soon as his plane can be dismantled and placed aboard ship.

Edgar J. Kaufmann explained industrial rehabilitation as evolved by Pittsburgh business and professional men before the Wilkinsburg Chamber of Commerce in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel last night. An open forum followed his talk.

'Tragedy' Playwright Ends Life With Gas

NEW YORK, March 29.—(Universal.)—A gas tube still clenched in his teeth, Patrick Earney, the playwright who adapted Dreiser's "An American Tragedy" for stage production, was found dead yesterday in his furnished room. Poverty prompted the suicide.

His last play on Broadway was "Old Man Murphy," presented here last winter.

U. S. Embassy Stoned As Daniels Protest

MEXICO CITY, March 29.—(AP.)—The stoning of the American embassy last Friday night as a protest to the appointment of Josephus Daniels as the United States Ambassador to Mexico, has been disclosed. Several windows were broken.

Police had not made the incident public and it was not known today if arrests resulted. Arthur Bliss Lane, charge d'affaires, who just returned from Washington, reported the matter to the foreign office and police.

Roosevelt 'Bomb' Proves Beer Mug

WILMINGTON, Del., March 29.—(AP.)—A heavy, carefully-wrapped package addressed to President Roosevelt caused a bomb scare in the Wilmington postoffice.

Handling the bundle gingerly, an employe carried it to Postmaster Abrahams who opened it—and removed a one-pint copper beer mug. It was repacked and forwarded to Washington.

LEAVES COURT, TAKES POISON

Mrs. Sarah Sutton, 37, formerly of Lincoln Place, was reported in a serious condition in the Homestead Hospital today. Police said she swallowed poison a few hours after appearing against her husband, Lawrence Sutton, Mansion street, Hazelwood, in nonsupport proceedings.

The case against Sutton was dismissed in court yesterday, and after the hearing, police were told, Mrs. Sutton visited her husband at the latter's home. She wanted to see their young son, Clifford, 11.

Sutton, according to police, told Mrs. Sutton she could see the child the following day. In reply, Mrs. Sutton was reported to have said:

"Tomorrow will be too late. I have taken poison."

She was rushed to the hospital.

Gay Nineties' Burlesque Queen Dies Penniless

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Ida Siddons died yesterday.

They called her queen of burlesque back in the eighties and the nineties—in the days when the gag, "That was no lady, that was my wife," was new.

From Maine to Texas, from the old London Playhouse on the Bowery to the Wigwam in San Francisco, they knew Ida Siddons.

Some called hers the "most perfect figure in America" and her specialty, a rope-skipping dance, was one of burlesque's brightest offerings.

In 1883, when New York's bright lights centered around Fourteenth street and the Broadway Theater district of today was a cow pasture, Miss Siddons started on burlesque tours with her father, the late "Pop" Siddons, once famous in the circus.

Soon after the turn of the century, Miss Siddons retired, and 12 years ago, when she was 64, she married Phil Hamlin, a famed comedian of burlesque in her day.

Miss Siddons died at the Home for Incurables, almost penniless. She was 76. Funeral services were to be held today under benefit of the Actors' Fund.

She once had remarked:

"Burlesque in my day was for men only. They were rough crowds that smoked and wanted rough stuff."

Livermore Honeymoons As Ex-Wife Goes 'Broke

CHICAGO, March 29.—(INS.)—Honeymoon plans of Jesse L. Livermore, spectacular stock manipulator, and his bride, the former Mrs. Harriet Metz Noble, today included a trip to Mrs. Livermore's home in Omaha, Neb.

There they will attend a celebration in honor of the seventieth birthday of the bride's father, Frederick Metz. Mrs. Livermore has been a society leader and concert singer in the Nebraska city.

The couple formally announced their marriage yesterday when it was learned that they had been wedded last Thursday in Geneva, Ill., by the Rev. Frazer Bell, pastor of the Congregational Chur in Geneva.

They will make their home h following the honeymoon, Live more said.

NEW YORK, March 29.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Dorothea F. Lo scope, former wife of Jesse L. Li ermore, yesterday startled t Manhattan County clerk by a m unusual assignment.

Terming herself a "housewif she assigned all her property real estate, stocks and bonds—t her attorney, Walter R. Kuhn, t be prorated in behalf of h creditors.

She declared she is "indebted a this time to various persons an cannot at this time pay in full."

ECONOMY FIGHT RENEWED IN ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—On a far-flung front, warfare over government economy engulfs the General Assembly.

With two preliminary skirmishes ended, the House has settled down for the battle over Republican-organization sponsored measures to slash 1933-35 state expenses $13,000,000.

Up for second reading action today is the Turner bill extensively revising the administrative code, while some 50 measures based on the Sterling Legislative Finance Committee report come out for first reading.

Previous economy moves attempted in the House have failed. Early proposals to slash legislators' salaries were beaten or sent to committee. Monday night's session marked the defeat of a teachers' salary reducer selected as the starting point in an effort to reduce state and local education expenses.

The Turner bill will be set for final action in the House next Monday. It includes general reductions of state salaries and is estimated to save from $10,000,000 to $11,000,000 during the next two years.

It provides cuts for the Governor and elective officers on the basis of the Senate-approved Howell resolution. This applies a 20 per cent reduction to that portion of any salary in excess of $750.

The Howell resolution may be reported for passage in the House. It calls on all legislators, judges and state officials to accept voluntary reductions in salaries over $750 a year.

The Sterling bills will not reach a final vote until late next week.

Representative Thomas B. Wilson, McKean, chairman of the House Educational Committe, plans to renew the fight for a modified program for decreased state and local school costs. The defeated teachers' salary reducer is to be reconsidered and amended.

Pinchot Tells Taxpayers Salaries Should Be Cut

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot told several thousand taxpayers that he favors reductions in salaries of teachers and others.

The Governor spoke yesterday from the Capitol steps to members of the Tax Justice League and the Taxpayers' Association of Pennsylvania, who crowded the plaza for their first state convention.

Applause followed his statement that there is no need for any increase in taxation and that he is sorry beer is coming back. He added:

"But now that it is coming back, we must see to it that beer is kept out of politics and that there will be no saloons."

T. J. Rawlings, Blairsville, president of the Tax Justice League, gave the program of the organization:

Four-mill maximum tax on real estate for school purposes; 4-mill maximum tax on real estate for roads; salary reductions for state and other officeholders as high as 33 per cent; abolishing of all state and municipal automobiles; stricter regulation for utilities, and elimination of unnecessary state and municipal officeholders.

He said he saw nothing ahead but bankruptcy for taxpayers if real estate must continue to pay 80 per cent of local taxes.

He said that state salaries must go back to the levels of 1913, adding that the worker, the miner and the farmer would be glad to get "what they did in 1913."

Ready to Testify

MRS. RUTH M'CAULEY BROWN

Mrs. Brown, former Beaver, (Pa.), girl widowed by a gunshot last January 16, supenaed today as a witness before the Mt. Holly, (N. J.), grand jury making a new investigation of the 1929 Wilson-Roberts tragedy, today believed to bear upon the death of Mrs. Brown's husband, Bradway.

APPROVE DELAY ON SALES TAX

HARRISBURG, March 29.—An extension of time for retail dealers to pay sales tax proceeds to the state became a certainty today.

Full payment of the tax would have been due next Saturday, by terms of the act in which the 1932 Legislature imposed the one per cent tax for six months.

Payment of half of the tax by April 1 will now be accepted and payment of the balance may be deferred as late as May 15, with six per cent interest from April 1. If not paid by May 15, overdue amounts will bear 12 per cent interest from that date.

The extension was authorized today when Gov. Pinchot signed the resolution of Senator C. W. Parkinson, Greene, to permit the extension. The resolution also declares the Legislature's intention to enact a law making the installment payments legally valid. Each house has passed bills, differing in details, for this purpose.

STATE SENATE PASSES JOB AID BILL

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—The Senate passed the $2,000,000 Talbot unemployment relief bill today and sent it to the Governor.

The bill would provide funds for April and May.

The Senate rejected an amendment offered by Senator George L. Reed, Dauphin, in a bitter address attacking the measure.

Reed wanted to raise the amount to $4,000,000 and to revise the provisions to have the money distributed by poor boards instead of by the State Emergency Relief Board.

He referred to Gov. Pinchot's criticism of the Legislature's delay in acting on relief legislation and remarked that on February 7 he and Representative Habbyshaw, both of Dauphin, introduced identical bills appropriating $30,000,000 for jobless relief.

Reed said:

"These bills have remained in committee."

He asserted the present proposed appropriation is too small, that it is unconstitutional to appropriate relief money to the State Emergency Relief Board and that the relief board's distribution is opposed by the unemployed.

Reed said poor relief money, under the constitution, must be appropriated to the poor boards.

Insurance 'Holiday' Ordered in W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 29.—(AP.)—Insurance companies doing business in West Virginia, began operating today upon a restricted basis decreed by State Auditor Edgar B. Sims, who is ex-officio insurance commissioner.

Sims directed that until further notice insurance and annuity companies were barred from paying the cash surrender value of policies or contracts, from making cash loans on them or from paying accrued dividends.

Oldest Clubwoman Dies at Age of 106

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Brock, 106, whom the National Federation of Women's Clubs listed as the oldest clubwoman in the United States, died yesterday.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

Rum in Radiator Fools Touring Dry Agents

POCATELLO, Idaho, March 29.—(AP.)—Two federal prohibition agents were amazed by the strong aroma of freshly cooked whisky while driving a motorcar through a leading residential section.

"Certainly there are no stills in these fine homes," remarked Pat Harrigan.

W. A. McGill, alert, leaped from the car. The radiator was boiling. It had been filled with confiscated whisky as an anti-freeze solution.

PINCHOT HEARS LABOR DEMAND

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Organized workers, men and women of the factories, today demanded legislative action on jobless relief, old age pensions, shorter working hours and unemployment insurance.

They were addressed by Gov. Pinchot. He asserted that he is with them "in your fight for security for workers." He spoke of his efforts to press relief legislation through the Assembly.

Led by John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, the speakers urged $125,000,000 for jobless relief for the next fiscal year, no salary reductions for state employes, enactment of the anti-yellow dog contract bill, repeal of the 1929 coal and iron police bill and passage of the Hoopes measure, which would limit and license private detectives.

Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, appealed for enactment of the old age pension and unemployment insurance bills. He echoed Phillips' demand for $125,000,000 for relief during the next year.

Davis Joins Backers Of Old Age Pensions

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—United States Senator James J. Davis believes Pennsylvania voters should have the right to vote on old age pensions.

His secretary, Frank K. Boal, last night notified John Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, to this effect.

SUNDAY SPORTS SHOWDOWN SET

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—The "play-off" contest on the Schwartz Sunday sports bill, now in Conference Committee will be held next week.

Representative Louis Schwartz, Philadelphia, sponsor of the measure which kicked up so much trouble in the Senate after passing the House by a safe majority, said today the bill as redrafted by the Conference Committee will be given to the Legislature next week.

Schwartz said the bill has been revised to amend the blue law to legalize baseball and football games on Sunday afternoons between 2 p. m. and 6 p. m. Provision is for local referenda to permit exercise of the right of local option in preventing Sunday sports contests.

The state-wide referendum on which the Senate insisted, has been abandoned.

Speedy approval of the revised bill by both House and Senate was predicted by Schwartz.

Single-Ticket Bill Passes Legislature

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Without debate, the House passed the Woodward, Philadelphia, (Senate) bill prohibiting persons from being candidates for office on more than one ticket.

The vote, last night, was 115 to 60. The measure limits candidates to seek only one nomination for office in all political subdivisions.

SENATE FAVORS EMPLOYES IN PENSION FEUD

By MARK SHIELDS.

HARRISBURG, March 29.—Controversy between the commissioners of Allegheny County and county employes over a pension system probably will be decided in favor of the latter by the Senate Committee on New Counties and County Seats.

Hearing on the question was held yesterday, the commissioners supporting a bill introduced by Senator William D. Mansfield and the employes approving a bill sponsored by Senator James J. Coyne. The Republican organization in control of the committee, Coyne scored as he did on the delinquent tax office controversy.

RAPS MANSFIELD BILL

William H. Frasher, chief clerk of the Prothonotary's office, charged the Mansfield bill was in the interest of future employes, did not guarantee a sufficient pension and periled county finances. He contended payments would be cut in half, the taxpayers would be unduly burdened and the 20-year service requirement would be eliminated.

Action of the Commissioners in removing 1,800 employes has burdened the retirement fund, Frasher said, and endangered payments to 253 pensioners.

M. C. Conick, auditor employed by the Commissioners, said that only $72,000 had been paid into the retirement fund in the last 17 years by pensioners who had received more than a million dollars.

Mansfield said the Coyne plan would not guarantee solvency to the fund, while his proposal was prepared on an acturial basis, paralleling insurance. Frasher rejoined that the employes did not want insurance, but a pension.

COYNE RAPS AUDIT

Mansfield asserted that one man had paid into the fund only $27.50, and had received over $20,000 in pensions. Frasher agreed that the original pension legislation had some vague provisions, and there was argument over how much money was needed to bring the fund to a sound basis.

Coyne jibed at the hiring of Conick by the Commissioners, asserting the money paid for audits would have strengthened the pension fund. The two Allegheny County Senators, however, kept at arms' length in their interchanges, Senator Frank J. Harris pouring oil on the troubled waters on more than one occasion.

PINCHOT TO AIR P. S. C. DATA

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot is going to give the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee the information on which he based his charges of venality and corruption in the Public Service Commission.

He is preparing to submit data on which he based his charges of last year that the late W. D. B. Ainey, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, accepted favors from utility officials and that former Commisioner James S. Benn, Philadelphia, banked more than $600,000 in 10 years in which his salary totalled $100,000.

The Governor's decision was announced yesterday after a conference in his office with the investigating committee.

Last week the committee obtained the Governor's promise to approve a resolution re-appropriating its $100,000 investigating fund after the investigators asserted that it is their intention to make a thorough and complete inquiry. The $100,000 fund appropriated last year was tied up last December in the barrage of court orders which stopped the committee's public hearings.

Sunday Fishing Approved by House

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—The House of Representatives took another "nibble" at the ancient blue law last night as it passed finally a bill to permit Sunday fishing, long prohibited in Pennsylvania.

The measure was cast into the Senate where it faced a sterner struggle.

$9,000 Gems Rest Nine Years in Old Shoe

CHICAGO, March 29.—(AP.)—When Alfred Serv's wife died, nine years ago, he and his two sons locked up the house and moved away. The years passed and he went back to clean the place up. When he did, he found his wife's will. It read:

"I have jewelry in my shoe in the bathroom."

The shoe contained $9,000 worth of jewels and the record of a $4,000 bank deposit.

Missing Chemical Salesman Sought

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 29.—(AP.)—Disclosure that a search has been on throughout the eastern part of the country for three weeks for J. Jolly Anderson, Washington (D. C.) chemical salesman, was made today by W. H. Clarkson, Anderson's employer.

Clarkson said Anderson disappeared March 3 after sending an order from Newburg, N. Y. A check at Newburg revealed that Anderson left there to cover his route, but no trace of him has been found. Police and private agencies are conducting a search.

STATE CONTROL OF BEER TO BE DELAYED

Sowers bill to the Committee on Ways and Means. Sterling declared that the revenue involved made this committee the logical one to deal with the measures.

Representative Clinton A. Sowers, Philadelphia, author of the bill, asserted the purpose of Sterling was only for delay, and contended that the beer control committee of which he is chairman had thoroughly considered the measure.

Strange alliances formed in the House, already in a chaotic state of quickly shifting lines. The Philadelphia Republican group, anthracite district members usually in the Pinchot camp, and the Democrats led by their floor director, Representative Wilson G. Sarig, of Berks, joined to ride over the best bill that Pinchot and Republican State Chairman Martin could muster.

WEEK'S DELAY

The Pinchot-Martin program is not to be given consideration this week by the Ways and Means Committee, to which it was sent yesterday. Representative Morton Witkin, Philadelphia, chairman of the committee, said his committee did not intend to meet, despite a request from McClure.

Had the Sterling motion prevailed it was intimated Witkin would have gotten the committee together to immediately bring out the Sowers bill, while keeping the Pinchot measures pickled. That illustrates the vigor of the opposition to the Pinchot program, and shows how futile are the efforts of the Republican state leadership to control its theoretical following in the House.

The Sowers bill establishes county courts as retail licensing boards as indicating the existing chaos, the Democrats are against this, but will vote for the Sowers bill in preference to that of Pinchot, expecting to amend it later.

THREAT OF VETO

Shortly before today's flareup in the House, the Governor in an official statement, said:

"I will veto the Sowers bill or any other bill which puts beer back into politics or which promotes establishment of the saloon or which drags the courts into the beer business. That might as well be understood now as later.

"The beer lobby, which is back of the Sowers bill, the same beer lobby which is against the bill agreed upon by Gen. Martin, Speaker Talbot, Lieut. Gov. Shannon and myself, represents the very interests which profited politically from the beer racket in the old days. The fact that these interests are against the so-called coalition bill is the best possible proof that it is a good, sound and decent bill.

"If the Committee on Ways and Means refuses to meet and consider a beer bill until Next week, and if, as a result, beer flows like water, unrestrained, uncontrolled and unrestricted all over Pennsylvania after April 6, that will be the fault of the men who have deliberately delayed the legislation."

There will be beer, however, for thirsty Pennsylvanians on April 7, and in an unrestricted and unregulated flow. In the absence of new legislation breweries, licensed by the Alcohol Permit Board under the terms of the Snyder enforcement act, will be able to sell to anyone, and any retailer will have the right of resale.

STORES TO SELL

Drug stores, groceries, confectionaries, department stores and similar establishments will be able to purvey the beer as they would any soft drink, at least until some license system is set up.

Witkin and Sowers contend the taxes imposed in the Pinchot bill would exclude any possibility of a five-cent glass of beer.

The administration-coalition plan calls for a tax of $2.48 per barrel of 31 gallons, the Sowers bill a tax of only $1. In addition the Pinchot bill sets a tax of one cent a pint on bottled beer.

Only one amendment was made to the Sowers bill as it was reported from the special committee named to consider beer legislation. That provides that the state receive 10 per cent of the total taxes, the county 10 per cent, the municipality in which the tax is levied 40 per cent and school districts 40 per cent.

FIGHTS COURT LICENSING

The Sowers committee reported out its bill by a vote of seven to three. Representative James L. Quinn (Dem.), Braddock, opposed the court licensing plan. He said he was speaking for Joseph F. Guffey in demanding some license system which would give the Democratic party a hand in awarding licenses.

Though Republican State Chairman Edward Martin participated in the conferences leading to the preparation of the Pinchot bills by Attorney General William A. Schnader, and apparently gave his approval, he cannot control his followers on this subject any more than on the educational retrenchment bills or old-age pensions.

Senator James J. Coyne, of Allegheny, and Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna, Martin adherents, have kicked over the traces on beer, and refuse positively to have anything to do with the coalition bills. Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of Allegheny, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is also opposed to the bills.

COYNE'S ATTACK

"Coyne and Howell hotly attacked the Pinchot plan which will make licenses available to every establishment through the Department of Revenue. He said:

"It is terrible to think that we should allow the promiscuous sale of beer for the mere sake of revenue. It is far more important that we never get started to allow our children to be unprotected as they would be if beer was sold by every barber, wiener stand, shoe shiner and marker in the state. We must restrict the handling of beer as much as possible if we want the law to continue."

regulations of the liquor traffic.

What kind of laws were formerly enacted?

Before prohibition, many states legislated against the saloon and many counties and cities banned it even in wet states.

Will these states and counties and cities ban the saloon again?

Probably they will. Some of them have already enacted legislation to do so, even before the federal liquor laws begin to operate.

What will insure the revival of rigid legislation against the saloon?

The old plan of brewery-owned saloon located one on every corner for the convenience of the workingman.

Cannot the character of the saloon be changed?

Yes, but it will not be changed materially with competition among the breweries to see which can conduct the greatest number of saloons with the greatest profit.

Have we no alternatives then, except the prohibition policy on the one hand, with its speakeasies, and the wide open wet policy on the other hand, with its saloons?

Oh, yes, if we were not a nation of fanatics and extremists.

What policy?

First, the policy of allowing no alcoholic beverage to be sold privately except beer and light wines.

Second, the policy of allowing beer and light wines to be sold only by a limited number of reputable licensed establishments.

Third, the policy of restricting the sale of all other alcoholic beverages to government dispensaries and in limited amounts.

How do we know this policy will succeed?

Because it has succeeded in other countries which have abandoned prohibition, but have had sense enough not to go back to the old discredited saloon.

Well, if our people want temperance, why do they not adopt a temperance policy which has proved successful in other countries?

Because the wets refuse to learn anything—and so do the drys. W. R. HEARST.

Asks 4-Hour Ban On Drinking Drivers

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania drivers may have to carry stop watches when they drink the new 3.2 per cent beer, should a bill introduced in the House by Representative Defrehn, Cambria, become law.

The measure makes it a misdemeanor, punishable with a $200 fine, to drive an automobile within four hours after drinking anything containing alcohol.

School Head Held In Student Beating

CAMDEN, N. J., March 29.—(AP.)—Carlyle C. Ring, principal of the Camden High School, was arrested yesterday by state troopers on a charge of assault, third degree.

Ring is accused of whipping Hal Bell, son of Dr. H. W. Bell. It is charged he struck the youth several times with a piece of garden hose.

Don't 'High Hat' Needy, Advice of Mrs. Rainey

Wife of Speaker Hears Troubles Of Jobless

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—The Speaker's outer office, with its endless ebb and flow of humanity, is a study in "heart stories" for the Speaker's secretary-wife, Mrs. Henry T. Rainey.

All day long, troubles and joys—but chiefly troubles—are poured into her ear by breadliners and former bank presidents; wives of elevator operators and society leaders of suddenly reduced income.

From these tales Mrs. Rainey, who has grown silvery-haired in years of devotion to social service, has drawn two conclusions. She says:

"Just by being kinder people could do more than they dream to help each other over the hard places in life.

"Women readjust themselves to change conditions more readily than men. Fine fellows jump out of windows because they cannot stand defeat. Women weather it."

Reviewing experiences of the past few weeks, Mrs. Rainey gave a dozen instances where, by listening to some person's story, she had been able to aid in an adjustment which tided over an emergency. She said:

"This office has no patronage and I haven't a job to give, nor can I 'stake' them to food and clothing. But there is one rule that I can follow and that is, 'Don't highhat' anybody who comes seeking help."

Lame ducks wanting to rent the houses they're stuck with, new Congressmen's wives wanting to be taught Washington ways, women wishing to start cafeterias—all seek, and find, help from Mrs. Rainey.

STATE AID BILL PASSAGE DUE

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(INS.)—Despite the controversial subjects which have temporarily hampered the progress of legislation, the General Assembly today was prepared to send its first relief bill to Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The Talbot measure, appropriating $2,000,000 to the Emergency Relief Board for April and May, was slated for final passage in the Senate. No opposition has been voiced to the appropriation during its legislative journey and the Governor has announced he will sign it immediately.

While the Senate worked to bring temporary relief to the destitute, the House considered on final passage another Talbot measure providing $20,000,000 more for aid during the 1933-34 biennium.

Bars and Growlers Prohibited Under Pinchot Beer Bill

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—High lights of the Pinchot beer control bills:

Bars would be prohibited.

Drinking would have to be done at tables or in hotel rooms or in the home.

Manufacturers could not sell less than 144 ounces (usually 12 12-ounce bottles) to retailers, nor could any dealer sell less than 144 ounces to the consumer who wants to take it home.

There would be no "growler rushing"—beer would have to be transported in original containers.

Manufacturers would pay $100 annual license fee; retailers $200 for consumption on the premises and $100 for sales for consumption off the premises.

A stamp tax would be levied on beer sales—from 1 cent per pint to $2.48 for a 31-gallon barrel.

License fees would go to the municipality; stamp taxes to the state.

No sales on Sundays or election days.

Restaurants and hotel dining rooms would have to obtain licenses.

Pullman cars would pay a $10 annual fee; steamships $50.

VETO OF REPEAL POLL MEASURE ASSURED

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 29.—Gov. Pinchot will veto the McClure bill setting up the machinery for a constitutional convention to vote on the repeal or retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Governor himself has made no statement on the subject, but it is understood on an unquestioned authority that he is dissatisfied with the convention bill as it has passed Senate and House.

He is expected to take no action on the measure, which now is before him, until next week.

Chief objection of Gov. Pinchot is found in the provision for delegates elected by Congressional districts. The Governor would prefer that all of the delegates be elected at large.

FEARS UNEQUAL VOTE

The McClure bill provides for one delegate from each of the state's 34 Congressional districts, and 17 elected at large, a total membership of 51 in the convention.

There has been some suggestion in the Governor's circle that delegates might be elected by legislative rather than congressional districts, but this does not meet the objections of Mr. Pinchot. He feels that the legislative districts as now apportioned create an unequal ratio of representation. He has the same attitude toward the congressional districts, though they were reapportioned by the session of 1931.

The Governor signed the reapportionment bill two years ago, but with criticism, contending that there had been gerrymandering in the interests of organized Republican politics. He observed, however, that should he not sign all Congressmen would have to be elected at large, a confusion for which he did not care to take the responsibility through a veto.

SEES NO ILLEGALITY

The Governor finds nothing unconstitutional in the McClure bill because it provides that the delegate candidates shall be committed for or against repeal. He does not feel that this precludes the convention being classed as a deliberative body, an issue which has been raised in some Democratic circles, and on which the doubt of constitutionality has been based.

In his veto message the Governor is expected to point out the inequalities in Congressional representation, and to urge the Legislature to enact a new bill with all delegates chosen at large.

There is no expectation that the bill can be passed over an executive veto. With the McClure proposal killed, the Legislature again must begin preparation of machinery for the repeal convention.

Two other bills have been introduced. One, by Representative James L. Quinn, Allegheny, provides 25 delegates at large shall be elected at a special election. A second is by Representative Robert Bruce Sterling, Fayette.

Schooner of Beer Gives 'Heat' of Large Banana

BERKELEY, Cal., March 29.—(INS.)—For those who are interested in the "fuel" value of beer as compared to various foods, the food and drug laboratory of the State Department of Public Health today made the following list available:

One schooner of beer is equivalent to five-eights of a glass of milk, a large banana, two slices of white bread, a cup of orange juice, one and one-third raw eggs or a small slice of roast beef.

'SPIRIT' PHOTO IN COURT

DENVER, March 29.—(INS.)—Mystic words, signs and "spirit photographs" were but a few of the strange bits of evidence that crept into the records of a Denver Civil Court today.

Charles W. Thuringer, Denver real estate dealer, in defending himself in a $30,000 malicious prosecution suit brought by his former wife, Edith Thuringer, introduced the "spirit photograph" showing Mrs. Thuringer surrounded by "spirits."

He said the spirits advised her that she and her husband would be happier in another world, and she slept with a pistol under her pillow after that, supposedly for the purpose of facilitating such a change.

Mrs. Thuringer is suing for damages she claims she suffered when Thuringer filed insanity proceedings against her in 1927. She was found sane by a County Court jury at that time.

BEEF, NOODLES ON TECH DIET FOR TODAY

Ground beef and noodles play the leading rolls in today's "83-cent-diet" that has been worked out by students in Carnegie Tech's Department of Household Economics, together with a market list printed in last Monday's Sun-Telegraph.

Using this list as a guide for purchase, take ½ lb. beef, ¼ lb. salt pork, 1 egg, flour and salt.

Noodles: Stir sufficient flour into the slightly beaten egg to make a very stiff dough. Add salt, knead and roll as thin as possible. Cover the molding board on which it is spread with a towel and let the dough remain untouched for half an hour. Cut the dough in thin slices. Allow to dry.

Roll the beef in flour and brown in a frying pan. Place in a baking dish, cover with water and bake two hours or until the meat is very tender. Cut in small pieces. Cut the salt pork into small cubes, par boil for five minutes, then brown in a frying pan. Mix with the beef. Cook the noodles in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and mix the meat. Bake one hour in a slow oven.

The day's menus are:

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, corn meal mush, toast, molasses, coffee, cocoa.

Luncheon—Rice and scrambled eggs, stewed tomatoes, graham bread, tea.

Dinner — Ground beef and noodles, endive and carrot salad, bread, oatmeal cookies, coffee, cocoa.

DIVORCE SEEKER BLAMES LIQUOR

His wife liked liquor parties, to which he objected, and when he protested she swore at him, Michael J. Martinell, butcher, of 121 Paulson avenue, testified before Judge Thomas M. Marshall in asking a divorce from Mrs. Mae Martinell.

He charged cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

Clara E. Summers, 559 Fourth avenue, Pitcairn, seeking a divorce from Frank W. Summers, testified her husband deliberately "walked out on her." She said she pleaded with him not to go, but he told her he was "through."

Divorce suits were filed by Mary Sporolari against Francesco Sporolari, by Arthur W. Rossell against Ada May Rossell, and by Kay J. Walker against Thomas J. Walker.

RAILROAD CLUB ELECTS HERE

Early next month a group of society women from Pittsburgh and Sewickley, representing the Pittsburgh Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, will be off to Washington for a conference of women repealists from 43 states. The dates of their meeting are April 5 and 6.

Representing our women will be Mrs. G. Faber Downey, Jr., Mrs. Cyrus R. Miller, Mrs. J. R. Crutchfield and Mrs. Carroll Miller.

To Make Speech

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, will address the delegates the first afternoon. Miss Butler will make her first anti-Prohibition speech at that time.

Liquor control plans and state regulation will be one of the major considerations. Mrs. Edward W. Root, of Clinton, N. Y., who has made a study of foreign liquor control systems, will be in charge of the session devoted to the many proposals being advanced for regulation in this country.

Hester H. Browne Weds Today in Pasadena

PASADENA, Cal., March 29.—(INS.)—At one of Southern California's most fashionable early spring weddings, Hester Harton Browne, popular Junior Leaguer of this city and Sewickley, Pa., debutante, today was to become the bride of Tilden Cummings, young Chicago banker.

An altar in All Saints Episcopal Church banked with lilies and ferns and canopied by a great marriage bell was to offer fragrant and picturesque background for the ceremony, to be performed by the Rev. Dr. Leslie Lernerd in the presence of a large gathering of friends, including guests from Pittsburgh.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hollyday Semple of this city and Sewickley, was to wear a gown of ivory satin, designed with yoke and deep, pointed cuffs of exquisite old lace, and graceful, pleated train. A veil, dotted with orange blossoms and fastened by a becoming Juliet's cap, and a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley were to complete her costume.

In attendance were to be Miss Margaret Morris, of Pasadena, maid-of-honor, and Miss Elizabeth Childs, of Sewickley, Pa., and Mrs. Thomas Turner, of Beverley Hills, Cal., bridesmaids.

The bridegroom was to be attended by Richard A. Woods, of Los Angeles. Ushers were to be John Buckingham, of Pasadena; George Harton Singer, of Sewickley; Carol Magenheimer, the brideroom's brother-in-law, of Westwood, Cal., and William Hurd Barrett, of Santa Monica.

Among weddings guests were Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Milligan and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Park, of Sewickley.

Silver Tea to Be Held By Industries Board

A silver tea will be held at the home of Bishop Adna W. Leonard, South Graham street, from 2 to 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Leonard will be the hostess. The tea will be held under the auspices of the Advisory Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries.

The committee is: Mrs. D. Willard Flint, Mrs. Ralph B. Urmy, Mrs. A. C. McMillan, Mrs. Sanford W. Corcoran, Mrs. Harry G. Samson, Mrs. Raymond Willey, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, Mrs. F. L. Toy and Mrs. Charles H. Jull.

Judge Musmanno Cites Phantom Government In Council Talk

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

There is too much phantom government in Harrisburg, Judge Michael Angelo Musmanno told the Council of Jewish Women yesterday in speaking on "Under the Capitol Dome in Harrisburg." During the 1929 session of the Legislature virtually everything was done according to the wishes of "the man in the corner"—the Governor, Judge Musmanno claimed.

He cited as one instance of phantom legislature the recent case of the old age pension constitutional amendment petition, to which the signatures of a majority of the Amendment Committee had been attached to report the bill out of committee. Ordinarily this would have insured the reporting out of the bill, but the chairman of the committee announced that the legislative manual was in error; that there were really six additional members that were not listed. These "wraiths," according to Judge Musmanno, added their votes to the minority. The committee chairman is thus put in the position of the dealer in a poker game who has four aces up his sleeve all the time and "such shameless, barefaced manipulation" shakes the faith of the people, the jurist observed.

The scrool of the great Americans shows that the country's greatest soldiers were also among its greatest legislators — George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Harrison, Garfield, McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt were all distinguished in legislative halls.

Representative government depends not alone upon great parliamentary ability, but on the great body of the people which make up the citizenry, the electorate and sovereign force of the commonwealth, he said, emphasizing individual responsibility.

Miss Lura Stover, lyric soprano, furnished the music.

Hadassah Holds Donor Reception Tomorrow

The presidents of several Jewish Women's organizations will preside at the tea table tomorrow when Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah gives its donor reception at the Y. M. and W. H. Cornell Women To Entertain At Luncheon

Now that schools are having spring vacations and students are home for the holiday, they are being entertained extensively and almost every day we hear of some new affair planned in their honor. The Cornell Women's Club is to entertain Cornell girl students of Pittsburgh at a luncheon in the College Club on Friday, April 7.

Those of the committee in charge of the luncheon are Mrs. Charles Carpenter, Mrs. J. Freund and Miss Claire Hagmaier.

Mrs. James Phillip O'Connor, of the Coronado Apartments, secretary, requests that any Cornell alumna who did not receive an invitation, to notify her.

* * *

At the monthly meeting of the Westwood Woman's Club next Wednesday evening "Music" will be the subject. Miss Gertrude Goeddel, pianist, and Mrs. Erma Weber, soprano, will be guest soloists. Mrs. John C. Snyder will present a paper on music. Mrs. John Miller is to conduct the club institute, the subject being elections.

Two special social functions have been arranged for April as follows; April 7, in the Twenty-eighth Ward Republican Club, a benefit card party for the Langley Eye Clinic; April 12, in the Westwood school auditorium, a sample party.

Allegheny Chapter No. 106, Order of Eastern Star, has installed these officers: Mrs. Elizabeth Fahrion, worthy matron; Mrs. May Bell, associate matron; Mrs. Ella Steinhauser, treasurer; Miss Margaret Carson, secretary; Mrs. Grace Wise, conductress, and Miss Hazel H. Hunter, associate conductress.

* * *

Election of officers will take place Friday afternoon at the meeting of the Ingomar Parent-Teacher Association. During the program period, the Rev. Basil Murray will lead the discussion on "Child Psychology."

Coraopolis Juniors Plan Thrift Garden Benefit

A bridge party for the benefit of the local thrift gardens will be held Saturday afternoon in the Coraopolis Y. M. C. A. by the Junior Woman's Club.

The social, welfare and publicity committees have charge of the benefit with Miss Eunice Lunn, as chairman.

Student Arms Meeting Delegate to Speak Here

James Green, Yale undergraduate who was elected to represent the International Intercollegiate Student's Union at the last disarmament conference, will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning and will speak tomorrow night at the Cause and Cure of War Committee's dinner in the Hotel Schenley. Mr. Green's subject will be "Youth and Peace."

The invocation will be by the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, the Lone Star Quartet will furnish the music and the address of Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, the honor guest, will close the program. An open forum will follow.

Mrs. Rehtmeyer to Speak Before Swissvale Voters

Mrs. C. A. Rehtmeyer, chairman of the legislative committee of the Regent Square Parent-Teacher Association, will speak at the meeting of the Swissvale League of Women Voters Friday afternoon in the Wilkins School.

Members of the Forest Hills League will inspect several branches of the Allegheny county courts as one of the features of its activities on Friday. The tour will be conducted by Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack, chairman of the county courts committee of the league.

Emphasizing Pittsburgh's need of the city manager plan of government Julian Miller will address a group of nurses of the South Side Hospital tomorrow evening in the Nurses Training School Auditorium.

South Hills Republican Club to Hear Mrs. Mai

"The Executive Branch of Our Government" will be discussed by Mrs. Fred Mai at the March meeting of the South Hills Council of Republican Women Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Brice Owens, Latonia avenue, Dormont. The hostess will be assisted by Mrs. Worth Kinney and Mrs. James Miller.

Court Duquesne, C.D.A., Sees Film of Sea Trip

The Lenten meeting of Court Duquesne No. 659, Catholic Daughters of America, was held last night in Cathedral Hall and was an educational meeting instead of the usual social affair.

Through the courtesy of a steamship line motion pictures were shown of life on an ocean liner. Miss Anna A. Egan gave a travel talk, describing personal experiences and giving practical suggestions on foreign travel.

GREEN TO BE FASHIONABLE IN SPRING SPORTS CLOTHES

THE ROLE of green in the fashionable color scheme for spring is expected to be mainly allied with sports. For this reason many of the new greens are natural shades—that is, the greens of nature, of trees, of plants and of flowers rather than the sophisticated greens of fashion's own making. Hunter's green is much in evidence already.

* * *

IN ITS smartest versions, Hunter's green sports costumes are worn with leather accessories. There is a quantity of new leather fashions right now—leather belts with detachable purses, for golf and country walking; leather vestees with scarfs of matching leather; leather collars and cuffs and gloves and cravats.

* * *

THE MOST amusing of these are the leathers which appear in the bright brown that used to be associated with men's gloves. It is a leather color which has been ignored for many years—which is probably one of the reasons why the designers like it so much.

* * *

THE OXFORD at the top is in the color—a modified ghillie, done in coarse-grain calfskin with perforated trimmings. The other ghillie is done in white peccary, with pinked edgings and white leather thongs for laces.

* * *

To Have Friends We Must Be Interested in People

Do you day-dream?

Build "Castles in Spain" because that's jollier than facing a shack in Milwaukee, or a mean little hall bedroom next to the L in N'Yawk?

And are you gradually awakening to the fact that your make-believe castle has become an actual prison cell, which is shutting you away from the romance and fun and adventure of the real world?

Yes? Then you'll understand Anna's dilemma—and perhaps give her a bit of help.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

Will you please try to help me? I hope you can, for I am very unhappy, and I don't know just what to do about it.

Last night I read your article about being self-conscious and it waked up something in me—made me hope you could help me.

The truth is that I go around in a daze. I guess I started it myself; it was so much easier to have lovely day dreams than it was to face the real world and real people. And so, gradually I got out of touch with everybody.

People thought I was "queer" or "stuck up." So, of course, I lost all my friends, and I am unable to make new ones. I have made myself self-conscious and shy. Because People wouldn't accept me and my dreams, I've turned my back on them.

I am 19 years old, and I realize that I must take my place in life, but it seems that somehow I can't get back to reality. There seems to be a curtain hanging over my mind.

WANTS FRIENDS

You say that day-dreaming makes it harder to get back to reality, but you don't mean you can't get back, do you? You must have gone through an experience like this yourself, or you wouldn't write about it the way you do. And you must have come back.

Please, can't you—won't you—tell me how I can shake off this state of mind I am in, and find my way into real living? I don't seem to know where to begin or how to begin.

How can I make friends? How can I learn to adjust myself to life, and get out of this daze I am in? I don't want to be like this.

Please help me. I'm sure you'll be helping other young people, too. I know I am not the only one who is like this.

ANNA.

You've gotten your life into a pretty dreary mess, haven't you, little girl? And now you wonder what can be done about it. Plenty—but it won't be easy.

In the first place, you'll have to face the truth about yourself. Why are you living in a daze? You think it's because you have a lively imagination, which has been able to create day dreams too lovely to be resisted. But that isn't the truth.

BE FRIENDLY

You've lived in dreams because you were too cowardly to face a real world, too selfish to face real people.

Selfish and cowardly. Not nice names, are they? And the price you're paying for them isn't nice, either.

People avoid you. Why shouldn't they? You've avoided them. You've shown your contempt for them. You're conscious of self because you're not conscious of the other fellow.

If you'd think of the other fellow—if you'd make yourself become interested in him—you wouldn't be all gummed up with dizzy-dazey interest in yourself.

So there's your answer. If you want people to give themselves to you, give yourself to them.

It will be hard at first. They'll ignore you. They'll busy themselves with interests in which you have no part—because you have chosen to have no part.

But don't be resentful. Stick around. Say and do little friendly things. Train yourself to be a fine listener; a quiet, friendly comrade.

And presently people will be giving you a real love that will be infinitely sweeter than your self-love—and you'll be part of a real world which will be infinitely lovelier and more exciting than any castle in Spain.

Devotion to Home is Woman's Best Policy, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

The wife who devotes herself to her home and children makes no mistake.

She should pay no attention to those friends who chide her for tying herself down too much. It is well worth it. It is in childhood that a mother wins that love which will be repaid a thousand fold when those vexsome youngsters are grown to be congenial companions.

It is the habit of enjoying a comfortable home that holds a husband and conteracts that wanderlust that is in the heart of every man.

Men love to think of wandering off to the far places of the earth, but what a row they make if they do not find their pipe, shirt or ties in the same place every day.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Suspicion Is Taken Away from Brixton

My realization that Hugh Grantland's irritated manner toward me because of my inopportune question, was exactly the sort of discourtesy which Dicky is apt to evince in stressful moments, was a most salutary thing for me. It knocked into the traditional cocked hat a subconscious illusion I had been cherishing for years—that Hugh Grantland in his self-effacing devotion to me—without any possible hope of winning me—was incapable of the captious rudeness which often marks my husband's behavior to me.

"Please consider my question about Mr. Owen unasked." I murmured in accents so low that I viciously hoped Hugh would have difficulty in hearing them. "It really doesn't matter, I am sorry—"

"But, of course I shall answer it," Hugh said promptly, and I noted with a little involuntary thrill of gratified vanity that there was startled contrition in his voice. "Yes, Owen is up here now, we believe in the same shack where the girls are imprisoned, but we are not sure upon that point. He may be at some vantage point near by, which makes it all the more imperative that we keep all sounds to a minimum, so that we shall not lose the element of surprise in our attack."

He stooped as he finished, and put his lips close to my ear.

"Please forgive me for my impatience," he murmured, "I am—"

BRIXTON EXONERATED

"You were entirely justified," I said with a cheerful casualness that I knew was my best defense mechanism. "Pray think no more about it."

"I will talk to you later," he said, and then, straightening himself, spoke again to all of us grouped around him.

"We are right back where we started from in the theory of this thing," he said. "Charles Owen is evidently the guiding spirit of the whole thing. But we patently were in error upon one thing. Samuel Brixton had no hand in this particular plot. But he probably feared something of the kind, and paid the penalty of serious injury in trying to find out about it."

"What about the Chinese?" my father asked. "Do you think there are any involved in the plot?"

"Not as partners," Hugh returned decidedly. "Owen may have used one or two of them in minor capacities in order to give us the impression that it was an Oriental plot, but Lee Chow is certain that the messages and the passing by the school of the Chinese sightseer were simply red herrings. No, it is Charles Owen's enterprise alone, I am sure."

HARRY DOUBTFUL

"I wish we knew just where the devil is," Harry Underwood muttered, voicing the fear of all of us. "And I am afraid I do not agree with you, old top, about the essential innocence of the gifted Mr. Brixton. He may not have been in on the innermost secrets, he may have balked at keeping the girls imprisoned, but you can't tell me that he wasn't in on this in some way."

We were all silent for a moment, and I think to all of us there came the same question. Was this a justifiable opinion or one born of the aversion which was Harry Underwood's for Samuel Brixton? It was an aversion, I knew, based upon the fact that Samuel Brixton had been the close business associate and friend of Tom Morton, Lillian's former husband and Marion's father, who had brought so much misery into Lillian's life.

"You may be right," Hugh said, in the placating manner of one who does not wish to dispute a man with a prejudice. "And now—"

There was the sound of cautious footsteps just below us. Then a hoarse whisper came to our ears.

"Hen-ner-y! Hen-ner-y! Where are you?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me in your column if it is correct and good form to acknowledge sympathy letters received when you have lost a member of the family, or is this unnecessary?

A READER.

For every letter of sympathy, for every floral tribute, we should write a note of thanks. Just a sentence or two, but written (not a printed or engraved card), and sincerely worded.

At a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it all right for a young man to attend a shower given in honor of his bride-to-be?

PHIL.

Usually a shower is for only the girl friends of the bride, and the fiance is not invited to come, or expected to come . . . and usually he doesn't want to come. Occasionally the fiance comes in at the very end of the party, greets the friends of his bride-to-be, and leaves at once, but even this is quite extraordinary. However, if the shower includes both girls and young men . . . which would be exceptional . . . then, of course, he, too, would attend.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Care Assures Diabetic Child of Normal Life

Recently I read an encouraging report, covering the advances made in the treatment of children who have diabetes. The discovery of insulin has changed the outlook in this disease. It is an outstanding medical achievement and one that has saved the lives of thousands of men, women and children.

Dr. Copeland

It is a misfortune to have diabetes in early life. But children so afflicted are no longer doomed, as they used to be. When the disease is recognized early and insulin is given, the sufferer can continue a normal life. Sometimes diet alone is sufficient to control the ailment.

Let me warn you against placing too much faith in the idea that diabetes is curable. Though tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of this disease, complete cure has not been discovered. Frankness compels me to say that insulin does not cure diabetes. But it controls the disease and permits the sufferer to carry on a useful normal life.

Children suffering from diabetes are now assured of normal growth and development. But, as I have said, this is possible only when the disease is recognized, the insulin prescribed and the diet properly regulated.

Under no circumstances should insulin be given other than under the physician's supervision. He and only he is in a position to determine whether insulin is necessary, and if it is, what dosage is best.

The diabetic child should be taught to eat his food slowly and carefully. Explain the disease so that he may understand what food and how much food to take. The child should rest before and after meals. He should not be treated as an invalid, but warning should be given of the dangers associated with faulty diet and carelessness in matters relating to the general health.

Insulin should be given at the same time every day. Bear in mind that meals must be eaten at definite hours. Irregularity is dangerous when insulin is being given

May I assure all worried mothers that if a child sleeps well, eats well and is gaining in weight, there is no need for alarm. Merely because one of the parents or grandparents suffers from diabetes is no reason for fearing the outlook.

Diabetes should be suspected if the child drinks an unusual amount of water. Overactivity of the kidneys is another sign. A child suffering from this disease may have an excellent appetite, but lose weight in spite of it.

When the disease is suspected, the discharges should be tested for sugar. A chemical analysis of the blood should be made to determine the actual amount of the sugar present. The information gained in this way will determine whether insulin should be prescribed.

We are indebted to the brilliant work of those scientists, who have awakened the hope of a cure in this disease. It has changed our outlook on diabetes in children. Let us hope for scientific success in other fields.

Answers to Health Queries

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When eyes are close set, a girl is justified in extending the length of the eyebrows with a fine, light penciling. When she plucks the brows, it is advisable to work from the under side rather than the upper. Some of the freaky designs seen nowadays are pretty terrible, but it is likely that they are an improvement on those that aren't weeded at all. At any rate, they give the face an appearance of neatness and attention.

Pouches under the eyes are sometimes inherited, mean nothing. Again they may be due to lack of fresh air, not sufficient sleep, nervous excitement, intestinal disturbances. Follow rules of hygiene relating to a balanced diet, daily exercise, water drinking; every woman knows about them. Local treatment consists of bathing with hot water, then with cold, placing over the eyes pads of gauze which have been wrung out of ice cold witch hazel.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

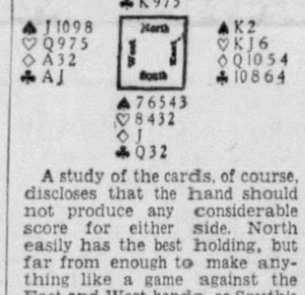
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Swings of Duplicate

One of the most interesting phases of tournament Bridge is the number of different contracts which can be reached with the same cards by the players participating, depending perhaps slightly upon the system they use, but far more often upon the individual temperament of the players engaged.

A hand that produced a tremendous variety of results in the recent team-of-four event in the Eastern Tournament, was the following.

South, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



A study of the cards, of course, discloses that the hand should not produce any considerable score for either side. North easily has the best holding, but far from enough to make anything like a game against the East and West hands, as South's hand is practically valueless to him.

At one table the bidding went as follows:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	1 ◇	1 N T
Pass	Pass	Double	Redouble
Pass	2 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

The contract was played at two hearts and made. As a matter of fact, West should have permitted his partner to play the hand at one notrump, redoubled, but the match was won because the other participant of the contending team played the hand in the West seat at two diamonds, and, while he made two diamonds against the holding of five to the King in the North hand, the two-heart contract was sufficient to win the match. At still another table North played the hand at one diamond, doubled, and was defeated 1 trick.

Such hands as this, that produce no particular swings in Rubber Bridge, are frequently provocative of the most unusual bidding and apparently unnatural results in tournament Bridge. The very lack of outstanding characteristics seems to furnish a challenge to Bridge players to exercise every bit of their ingenuity in circumventing the lack of honor-tricks and the absence of favorable distribution and obtain some kind of a favorable result with unfavorable cards.

DR. GRAHAM Superintendent Of Schools Speaks ON THE AIR

Radio Tribute To Electrical Wizard

Tributes of American notables to Elihu Thomson, industrial electrical wizard who ranks with Edison and Steinmetz in his practical contributions, are broadcast over a nationwide NBC network including WCAE tonight at 9:30 during a dinner celebrating Thomson's eightieth birthday.

Heading the list of speakers are Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts; George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, and President Karl T. Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The broadcast originates in Cambridge, Mass.

The "KD Kalendar of Stars," a new variety show directed by William A. Rose, KDKA continuity writer, has its premiere on KDKA at 7:30 p. m., bringing to the microphone the Rhythm Kings, novelty trio; Dorothy Masters, torch singer; Reed Kennedy, baritone, the Saxophone Trio and a concert orchestra directed by Zoel Parenteau. Glenn Riggs is master of ceremonies.

Making his weekly appearance with Donald Novis and Leon Belasco's orchestra, Morton Downey goes on the air over NBC-KDKA at 9:30 from Washington, where, prior to the broadcast, he is to sing at the National Press Club Banquet marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of President Roosevelt's membership in the organization. The program concludes Downey's NBC engagement.

"Co-operation Between the Home and the School" is the topic of a talk by Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh public schools, on KDKA at 7:15.

G. P. O'Neill, manager of the Pittsburgher Hotel and president of the Pittsburgh Hotelmen's Association, speaks on "Pittsburgh as a Convention City" during KQV's "Pittsburgh Today" broadcast at 6 p. m.

Stars Reply To Queries Of Fans

By AIRCASTER

With a lot of questions to ask—some of them suggested by the fan mail—and, incidentally, a lot of space to fill, I decided the other day to toss inquiries at some radio celebrities. Maybe the replies will clear up the things that have been annoying some of you.

Question one:

"Why is it that certain orchestras on the radio constantly repeat new popular songs—and virtually murder them for other orchestras?"

And George Hall replies:

"Because modern writers have certain orchestras in mind when writing melody—the same as writers have certain magazines in mind when composing stories. Bands have developed individual characteristics and song writers prefer them to break in their songs for them. Gradually the songs are released to other orchestras."

* * *

Why women listeners favor tenors was answered by Charles Carlile:

"Easy to answer. For years musical comedies have used tenors in hero roles. They are clothed in romance. Baritones and bassos are usually villains. It's true also of the operas, so, naturally, listeners visualize tenors as having romantic backgrounds."

Then came the query:

"Why are so many old jokes included in the repertoire of radio comics?"

And Jack Pearl comes to the rescue:

"Ah, you noticed that, too? It's because no joke is old except to the person who has heard it, and comedy, as yet comparatively new on the air, is virgin material for any millions of listeners, especially in remote places."

* * *

Then I wanted to know, as I piped Ed Wynn, why artists change their names for air or stage names.

Ed explained that in most cases, it was to assume a name easily spoken or remembered, adding:

"There are other practical reasons, too. Some honest souls are afraid that their own names will sound, on the air, too much like the names of other folks. Some others, however, are afraid they won't."

Of Rubinoff, I demanded:

"Why don't you talk back to Cantor?"

His answer was simple:

"Because they won't let me."

Ted Yarosz Spars With Seals

Ted Yarosz, Pittsburgh welterweight boxing star and leading title contender, tells about his career and his ambitions as the Trained Seals' guest on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

The program also includes a talk by Ray Foutts, Yarosz' manager, and Charles J. Doyle's news flashes from the Pirates in California. Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor, is master of ceremonies.

A special program for children is presented on WCAE at 4:45 today under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum.

Speaking from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest bulletins to WCAE and WJAS listeners daily at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Adorable Kiddie Frock

Pattern 2581

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Of course, she would adore this cunning little frock . . . we "grown-ups" love it, too. Notice the soldier-like epaulets and the perky flares joined to them . . . reminding us of little wings. The simple seaming of the frock develops into snappy pleats. Topstitching and buttons are important, too. We'd use one of those pretty cotton prints in vogue. Bloomers are included with pattern.

Pattern 2581 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Send for the FASHION BOOK. It contains 32 colorful pages of lovely Paris-inspired models for every sewing need, and shows how to be chic at every hour of the day. Every style is practical, and easy to make. There are models for the larger figure, and pages of delightful junior and kiddie styles. Lovely lingerie, and accessory patterns, too. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Marc Connelly's globe-trotting appearance the other evening recalled to many Pittsburghers happy days of yesteryear when "The Lady of Luzon" was produced at the Alvin by the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Mr. Connelly wrote the lyrics, Zoel Parenteau wrote the music and directed the orchestra, and Will Rhodes was the dashing hero and a lot of Pittsburgh girls went histrionic for the first and only time.

Coming back to the old town after 18 years' absence reminded him of the story Bide Dudley, famous New York writer, tells of his own homecoming after a similar long absence. Bide was all thrilled, expecting the home folks would turn out en masse to cheer the local boy who made good in the big city. He casually dropped a note indicating on what train he would arrive and, taking cotton along to stuff in his ear drums against the blaring of trombones that would signal his welcome, he was on his way to give the natives a treat.

Dismayed at first by not seeing anyone at the station, he reassured himself that the townsfolk were hiding around the corner. So, picking up his bag he strode jauntily on to the still sleepy main street. Finally he saw an old coachman he knew as a child and with rising hopes and warming heart, he hallooed, "Hello, Phil." Phil looked around, the dawn of recognition crept over his face and his voice lifting in friendly greeting returned "Why Hell-o-o Bide.—LEAVIN'?"

I haven't answered those questions you wrote me concerning the President's plan to use 250,000 men in reforestation work. The matter is before Congress now and not until final action has been taken by our lawmakers are many of those questions susceptible to answer. But one thing for sure, you'll get the information as soon as it is available. That's a promise.

'Big Time' Drama WCAE Feature

A dramatization of the opening chapters of "Big Time," a new story by Rae Chadwell starting serially in next Sunday's American Weekly, is scheduled on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock. The playlet, starring Owen Davis, Jr., deals with developments in the life of a rich man's son who gave up Big Business for romance.

FOX FILM FUND WASTE CHARGED

NEW YORK, March 29.—(Universal.)—The Fox Film Corporation has been ordered to show cause why it should not be thrown into receivership.

The order was signed yesterday by Federal Judge Foxe on application of Benjamin Schellenberg, of Brookline, Mass., a stockholder, and is returnable Friday.

The action, alleging misuse of power and waste of funds, names the Fox Corporation, the Chase Securities, Matthew C. Brush, David K. E. Bruce (son-in-law of Andrew W. Mellon), Otto E. Koegel and Murray W. Dodge, described as Fox Film board members.

Martin C. Ansorge, representing Schellenberg, told Judge Foxe that Fox Film must pay $900,000 in semi-annual interest on its gold debentures April 1, and that its subsidiary, the Wesco Corporation, is obligated to pay on that day the principal on gold notes amounting to $15,000,000, and according to the petitioner's information neither corporation will be able to meet the obligations.

New York Engineer Speaks Here Tonight

Mr. Merriman

Thaddeus Merriman, chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply of New York City, and widely known hydraulic engineer, will give a public lecture tonight in the Carnegie Union Hall, Carnegie Tech, at 8:30. He will speak on "The Colorado River Aqueduct of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California."

Nab Man, Seek Pals In Ohio Bank Theft

ATHENS, O., March 29.—(AP.)—A hunt for "big money" was at an end today for a 30-year-old Cleveland restaurant employe, who admitted, authorities said, participating in the robbery of the First National Bank of Gallipolis of between $18,000 and $20,000.

The suspect, who gave his name as John Krital, of Cleveland, was arrested at Albany, near here last night by Sheriff's deputies who formed a searching party soon after the robbery "cleaned out" the bank yesterday morning. None of the bank loot was found and a search for two alleged companions of Krital is on.

TELLS OF RACE BENEFACTORS

All progress in the onward march of the race has come by reason of someone rising above the common concept of things, was the declaration of Charles V. Winn, of Pasadena, Cal., in a lecture last night on Christian Science at the Grotto, 107 East Montgomery avenue. He said:

"The great benefactors of the race are those who went beyond the confines commonly accepted theories and gained new vistas of facts which before were unknown."

Winn is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

Plan Program for Parents in Carrick

A program illustrating the activities of various organizations in Carrick High School will be presented for the parents of the student body Friday night in the auditorium. Sketches, plays and musical selections will feature the program.

Relief Association To Hold Bingo Party

The Bellevue Relief Association, comprised of all active clubs and organizations in Bellevue and adjacent boroughs will hold a bingo party tonight at the Bellevue Masonic Hall in conjunction with the Piccadilly Circus opened with a musical last night in the high school.

The five-day program includes a duplicate bridge tournament in Bellevue Borough Hall, burlesque show and follies at the High School and an old-fashioned square dance. The program closes May 5.

Parke Levy wants Al Jolson to know that Broadway is where they slap you on the back hoping it'll break your spine.

Willy Pogany, the celebrated Hungarian artist, is being melted. When the interlocutory decree arrives soon—Pogany will ankle down a middle-aisle again with the contagious Ruth Cox in Hollywood . . . Miss Chatterton had to take that cut. If she didn't agree—it would have closed the studio—and several desperate attaches there had plotted to harm her—unless . . . NBC is slicing 10 per cent off all employes making over a "G", effective April 1st. . . . The latest legend about the Joan Crawford-Doug Fairbanks, Jr., explosion is that Joan wanted a bay-bee—but Doug's pappy and Mary Pickford didn't want to be grandparents, etc. Which is why they were unhappy . . . All of which is the bunk! . . . The marriage was a gag from the first—huh, Joan?

Washington has decided to thoroughly investigate Republican domination of the movie industry—and will a mess of faces be red—ouch! . . . The final decree melting the Baron and Baroness Von Romberg of the West Coast is due today. Joan Crawford's current dress suit wearer is Franchot Tone . . . Sid Bartlett apparently has dropped Alice White for Boots Mallory . . . Mervyn Le Roy, the director—and how!—is Ummmm about Maragaret Lindsey . . . Len Goldstein, Abe Lyman's pal out in Hollywood who is minding Estelle Taylor for Lyman—almost had to fight John Warburton over Jack Dempsey's ex—at a party the other night . . . . Warburton, however, decided to escort the recently divorced Marion Nixon to the Grove there Satdee night . . . Is the Courtney Burr-Evelyn Hoey romance decaying? . . . Beatrice Terry, Dame Terry's niece, has been secretly wedded to Geoffrey Marks, who's pop is the Gov. of the Fiji Isles . . . Fran Frey has amicably quit the George Olsen orchestra after all these years.

An orchid to the ace of the local mimics, Eddie Garr, a newcomer, who excited all the play murderers when "Strike Me Pink" premiered . . . Dr. George Curtis, whose osteopathing does magic to ailing throats, is a stage hand at the Astor! . . . Congresswoman Florence Kahn, a California Republican, gave her entire support to President Roosevelt . . . He draws most of the grand covers for the humor mags . . . Alan Gray, who edits and writes pieces for the yachting publications, and Helen Black, the Colonel's daughter, went and did it at St. Mark's Church on the Bowery Satdee.

Bobby Clark stole the honors for gagging at the Friars' tribute to B. Bernie Satdee night . . . Joe Laurie, Jr., and his interference from the pews had them rolling and rocking, and the Roastmaster, Jack Benny, distinguished himself again. Harry Rose surprised them with a rapid line of quips, and that Bernie guy, the honored guest, was really touched by the affection—the big sissie! . . . Charlotte Murrie will crash the Broadway heavens one day—watch and see . . . Capt. Jack Craige of the Marines, has written a book called "Black Bagdad," which was issued last week . . . It spills plenty about the Republican handling of affairs in Haiti—and they argue that had Hoover been elected again, Craige's book would either never have been published or he would have been robbed of his commission in the Corps.

The Utica Observer-Dispatch and the Utica Press want you to know that Jack Dempsey came to their town the other night and refereed a wrassling match for the Firemen's Relief Fund, which netted them plenty. The Utica gazettes demand an orchid for Jack Dempsey because recently a radio star charged them so much for his appearance, the benefit owed itself coin when it was over. O'Kay, Utica! and Double O-Kay, J. D.! . . . Probably the only brewer who will not resume activities when lager is legal will be Geo. Ehret.

Leslie Howard Miss Gaynor Paired

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syn.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.—For all the good it does him, Leslie Howard may as well quit talking about a London vacation. He agreed to do "Berkeley Square"—everybody expected that—but now Fox has wheedled him into staying for another picture, the lead opposite Janet Gaynor in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing."

Leslie Howard

By the time these two roles are completed, the London season will be over and there will be no chance of putting on a play before fall.

The English actor is taking the matter philosophically, not so difficult in view of the salary he draws. But the main thing is he likes Hollywood. He has become one of the film colony's most pronounced addicts of sun bathing and recently he made his first appearance on a local polo field.

In pictures of sentiment, the actor is rated without peer by studio heads. He scored heavily in "Smilin' Through" and in Mary Pickford's "Secrets."

The Gaynor-Howard combination will be something entirely new, and ought to be worth watching.

They are telling about a very funny argument Phil Berg had with his gardener.

Phil and Leila Hyams are building a new house. They are very particular about the landscaping—putting in 20-ton oak trees, etc.

Miss Hyams

The other day, the gardener marked off a lot of circles for trees.

"How big are those trees going to be?" asked Phil.

The gardener said about four feet.

"Way too small," objected Phil.

The gardener drew himself up.

"You are like all picture people," he exclaimed. "You have to have everything colossal!"

An accusing look brought me over to Sally Eilers at the "King Kong" premiere.

"Hoot and I are not made up," she said. "Can't we separate and still be friends?"

So, now, you have it from headquarters.

When Mrs. Bing Crosby (Dixie Lee) arrived in Hollywood, she went out to Sue Carol's house. Bing and Dixie are expecting a baby in about a month, you know, and she'll stay with Sue until your favorite crooner comes out to Hollywood. And are the fans busy calling Paramount to find out the time of his arrival!

The around-the-world liner, Empress of Britain, will carry many film celebrities when it sails from here this week. Virginia Valli and Charles Farrell have booked passage, also the Ernest Torrences. Sam Raphaelson (he goes to London to write the Jeanette MacDonald - Herbert Marshall picture), Jerry Horwin and Pat O'Bryan, husband of Elizabeth Allen. George Bernard Shaw is a passenger on this vessel, and the film people are keen to meet him.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Every boy dreams, and it is fine and laudable, the foundation of ambition. In the thoughts of youth the world is fair and beautiful, and achievement is certain. Fortune flaunts her most choice prizes, and rewards the young with any crown desired. Far lands call, and vagrant winds carry their argosies into channels of delightful adventure. But no matter to what green pastures or golden streets they journey, the climax of enchantment is the home-coming. Home again and there'll be amazement on all sides to see what heights the returned hero has reached. Ah, but reality has a strange way of frustrating such glamorous illusions, and it is the exception when one is wholly fulfilled. Hence Marc Connelly likely will prize highly the recollection of his brief visit here in connection with the presentation of his noted play, "The Green Pastures," in the Nixon. For it perhaps embodied more than came within the limits of his youthful dreams. Likely the great climax of that was addressing a few thousand townsmen from the steps of the city hall. But the radio has come along since the dreaming days, so he was able to speak to the whole of Allegheny County—if it was listening. As a young reporter here he often attended the theater. One can fancy him visioning the day when a play written by him would be on the stage. So on Monday night he spoke to the audience from the same stage on which his internationally noted play had just been acted. Then there was the old home town, the birthplace, McKeesport. "Come back, come back" one always hear the old home town calling to its boys. Yesterday Mr. Connelly went back to be a guest of one of McKeesport's civic organizations. For him at least a dream had come true at last. How do we know Mr. Connelly was a dreamer like other boys? Because, as a reporter, he never particularly liked the routine jobs like fires and funerals and robberies. He preferred to do whimsy and humor and illusion—human interest. Every poet is a dreamer and every playwright worth his salt is a poet. And we believe Mr. Connelly is worth his salt as a dramatist.

* * *

Because of the great public interest in "The Green Pastures," Manager Harry Brown, of the Nixon, has arranged to hold the play a second week, opening next Monday night, April 3. Seats for the second week will go on sale in box office tomorrow.

* * *

No attraction has been booked for the Nixon for the week of April 10. This will be holy week, which shares with Christmas week the distinction of being the dullest in the year for the theater. Following that there will be several more shows before the season ends.

Two Theaters Changing Program Plans

Beginning Friday new policies will be in operation in the Sheridan Square and Regent. The Sheridan Square will become a first run house, showing the same features the Davis does. At present the Regent is doing that, but with the change the latter theater will have two features weekly, opening Friday and Tuesday. The bill there Friday will be "Our Betters," with Constance Bennett, to be followed Tuesday by Sylvia Sidney in "Madame Butterfly."

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. RESOLUTE, INDIA-BOUND.—They held a fancy dress ball on the boat tonight and, much to my regret, I was unable to join the festivities. I had too much work to do, and too little time in which to do it. So, sad as it may sound, I was forced to forego the pleasure of climbing into a stuffy costume and almost stifling to death on the ballroom floor.

My cabin being situated as it is, however, I was able to catch several views of the festivities as they unfolded. I suppose—the ball being what it was—that I could have slipped out and joined the throng without anyone offering any serious objections. But I was just a trifle afraid of my costume—said costume consisting only of a pair of pajamas.

So I remained where I was and watched the merrymakers from behind the seclusion of my cabin transom. Transom is as transom does, and my vantage point wasn't at all bad once you became accustomed to it.

Strange how seriously the passengers take an affair of this kind. They've been talking about this ball for days, and while some of them may mock the interest of the others in the affair, the scoffers generally turn up in the most expensive costumes.

If they knew how funny most of them looked to an outsider, I'm quite positive that many of them would retire from the competition in short order.

But where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to stay out of a fancy dress ball. The stout Mrs. H—, from Texas, came as Cleopatra—even though she weighs fully 250 pounds. And her husband, who trails her around like a lamb, came attired as a desert shiek. There was a picture for your whiskers, my friends!

Inasmuch as I'm not a part of it at the moment, I am unable to give you a complete description of the affair. Nor can I, which is even more tearful, tell you who won the various prizes and of what their costumes consisted. Believe me, my friends, I lament my failure bitterly.

I think I can make up for it, however, by telling you the best fancy dress story I've ever heard. It happened on this very boat two years ago, and my informant swears that it's absolutely true.

As I said before, the passengers take these balls extremely seriously on these lengthy cruises. They generally hold three of them on a round-the-world liner; one after leaving Suez, the other after leaving India and the third after leaving Japan on the way back to the States. If the husband doesn't cop a prize, he hardly commits suicide. But if the wife fails to win one on either of the three tries, she generally turns on the tears in very definite fashion after the ball is over.

With all this as an introduction, we turn our attention to a certain Mrs. Jones, which is as good a name as any. Mrs. Jones was about fifty years of age, a widow and an extremely wealthy woman. Mrs. Jones booked passage on the Resolute two years ago because she was lonesome in New York, because she thought she'd have a good time—and because you never knew in which port you might find a new husband.

After a month or so of traveling, along came the first costume ball. Mrs. Jones was all prepared for it. She wore an attractive costume, spent three hours with the hairdresser aboard the boat and turned up that night fairly confident of carting off a prize.

Alas and alack of proper appreciation. When the awards were announced, Mrs. Jones wasn't even mentioned. All she would have received was a package of safety pins, or a cup or a shaving mug—but that wasn't the idea at all. She wanted to be among the winners, and she made up her mind that she was going to be when the post affair rolled along.

Well, me hearties, the next affair found Mrs. Jones in a far better state of preparedness than America will be in the next war. This was some sort of Indian ball, and Mrs. Jones hadn't wasted her time in India. She had bought plenty of things and if she didn't win a prize it wasn't going to be her fault.

Once more the hairdresser labored; once more the manicurist called her names under her breath. Once more Mrs. Jones struggled into her party girdle; and once more the stewardess lost two pounds running hither in search of more safety pins. Once more the ship's orchestra played the grand march as only a ship's orchestra can play it; and once more Mrs. Jones made a triumphant entrance.

And once more Mrs. Jones failed to win a prize . . .

That night, after the ball, Mrs. Jones took an oath. She repeated it to two or three people, and my informant was one of them. She swore that she was going to win a prize in the next and last dress ball—regardless of cost, trouble and anything else.

The weeks rolled by and, in due time, the announcements for the last and biggest costume ball were posted on the ship's bulletin board. There were to be several prizes, with a special one for the most beautiful costume. And that's the one that Mrs. Jones was going after.

All through China and Japan that woman went shopping with the idea of that costume in mind. She was serious about this thing; deadly serious. She kept spending money and spending money, until she had gone for more than a thousand dollars to win a prize that would mean nothing in the long run.

The ship left Japan on the way to Honolulu—and the big night finally rolled around. On the afternoon of the day in question, Mrs. Jones decided to assemble the costume and try it on for her three friends. She wanted their advice before the grand march began. And if there was any fault, it could be corrected before the fatal hour. You must remember that, to this woman, it was the biggest thing in life at the moment.

When they saw the costume, her friends were wide-eyed with honest admiration. They told Mrs. Jones that she was foolish to have spent so much money, but that, about the prize, there could be no question. There was no costume on the boat that could possibly touch this one for beauty. And Mrs. Jones smiled.

"I know it as well as you do," she asserted, "and the judges will know it, too. I just wanted to show these frumps around here that when I made up my mind to win the grand prize, nothing was going to stand in my way.

"I can hardly wait to see the looks on those faces when I march in tonight. Silly of me to get a thrill out of the thought, I suppose, but I just can't help myself. I consider the money well spent."

What with all this talk and the compliments of her friends about the prize that had already been won, Mrs. Jones suggested that a drink on her might not be amiss. The women adjourned to the bar, and each one insisted upon buying a drink.

One drink led to another. And when the costume ball took place that night, Mrs. Jones was not present. She had had so many drinks that she slept through the entire affair! . . .

JORN, EX-'MET' STAR, MINER

CRIPPLE CREEK, Col., March 29.—(AP.)—On the rough slope of Little Carbonate Hill in the Cripple Creek mining district, a miner is working this spring—a miner who sings in rich tenor the songs of Wagner.

No ordinary prospector is this. He is Karl Jorn, former Metropolitan Grand Opera star, who came to Colorado two years ago to sing in Wagner's "Ring" and stayed to try his hand at mining.

He is now at the head of his own company here, having served a miner's apprenticeship at Alma and at Valverde, near Denver.

Jorn, who sang with the "Met" until 1917, and later with the German Grand Opera company, was born in Riga, Latvia, and received a dual education in music and geology. He came to America in 1909.

Garden Club Will Present Comedy

"Everybody's Here," a comedy sponsored by the Penn Hebron Garden Club, will be presented at the Thad Stevens School Thursday and Friday nights, March 30 and 31. The cast is composed of 80 local men.

Miss McCarver, W. R. Hearst, Jr., Wed in South

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 29.—Miss Lorelle McCarver, daughter of Mr. Wilburn C. McCarver and the late Mrs. Stella McCarver, of Dallas, Tex., and William Randolph Hearst, Jr., second son of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, of New York City and San Simeon ranch, California, were married here yesterday in the patio of the Ocean boulevard villa of Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson.

The wedding ceremony was performed in a beautiful floral setting, by the Rev. Dr. James Henry Larson, of Northampton, Mass., and Lake Geneva, Wis.

Scene Colorful

The young couple stood under a carved arch banked with white lilies and oleanders and overhung with crimson Bougainvillae vines. The picturesque patio was brilliant with colorful tropical flowers and plants, offset by luxuriant palm trees.

Arthur Somers Roche gave the bride in marriage. Randolph and David Elbert Hearst, brothers of the bridegroom, and twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, acted as best men.

The bride, a beautiful brunette, wore an exquisite costume of string-colored lace of delicate texture with an allover shadow pattern. The bridal gown, a princess model, was made with the new high neck line, and long flowing sleeves. The flared skirt had a graceful short train. Her hat was of the same color straw, a small shepherdess shape, trimmed with velvet ribbon to match. She carried a sheaf of Talisman roses.

Following the wedding ceremony there was a reception and a wedding luncheon in the patio, where an orchestra played for dancing. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beautiful costume of chartreuse colored crepe roma, with a picture hat of brown crin and corsage of orchids. She is a guest of Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson, who are close friends of the Hearst family.

Luncheon Reception

Mrs. Wilson wore a smart yellow and white flowered crepe with a small white hat.

Those present at the wedding and reception were:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Col. and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, Mayor and Mrs. John Sheppard, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener, II., Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn L. Hutton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reed, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. James N. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, Mr. and Mrs. John North Willys, Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, Mr. and Mrs. H. Halpine Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. David Hugh McCulloch, Mr. and Mrs. Adam G. Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Messomore Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Emlen Hutchinson, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William E. Biederwolf, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pillsbury, Dr. and Mrs. Hobart Endicott Warren, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. James Henry Larson.

Notables Present

Also the Mmes. William Randolph Hearst, E. H. G. Slater, Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley; M. Dorland Doyle, B. Wilson Boalt, Dodge Sloane, Joshua S. Cosden, Virginia Willys de Aguirre, Gurnee Munn, Julius Walsh, James P. Donahue, John Gaston, Wesson Seyburn, William A. Prime, the Misses Antoinette Johnson, Grace Amory, Fernanda W. Also the Duke of Sutherland, Lord Cochrane, Maj. Pryce Harrison, and the Messrs. Joseph E. Widener, Harry Appleton Curtis, Randolph Burke, James P. Donahue, John P. Wemple, Hugh Dillman, James H. R. Cromwell, George Marshall, Edward T. Stotesbury, Jules S Bache, Jose de Landa, Randolph and David Elbert Hearst, Gurnee Munn, Jr., Clyde and Jeffry Roche, Michael Good, Pierre L. Barbey, Jr., James R. Hyde, J. Friend, Jack Treat, Charles A. Munn, Douglas W. Paige, Charles A. Munn, Jr., John Jacob Astor, Townsend Sackett, Allan McCurdy.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Allen Riviere, of New York City, who announced the engagement on March tenth. Miss McCarver attended the Kidd-Key College of Sherman, Tex. In Dallas, Tex. she was keenly interested in amateur theatricals and later appeared with success in several Broadway productions.

Bride Talented

William Randolph Hearst, Jr., is a second son of the publisher. He received his education at the University of California, where he was a member of the class of '29. He is now identified with his father's publishing interests and is the president of the New York American.

DELAYS IN AUTO TESTS DENIED

Denial that motorists are forced to wait in line for hours to have cars inspected, as charged recently by C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, was made today by state highway patrol officials. Sergt. A. H. Kratzke, in charge of the Pittsburgh district, said:

"We have positive knowledge that at the Pittsburgh point, which is probably the largest in the state, excepting Philadelphia, no motorists have been made to wait even an hour.

"Our records show the longest time to be 20 minutes, and that was on rush days. On such days we assign several men to the duty."

Sergt. Kratzke warns motorists that midnight Friday is the deadline for stickerless automobiles.

TEACHERS HOLD PAY MARCH

CHICAGO, March 29.—(INS.)—Acting Mayor Frank Corr, his hands tied by failure of the State Legislature to grant the full powers of the office he holds, today faced the problem of placating the city's unpaid school teachers who have repeatedly stormed the City Hall.

Carrying banners which read, "Cash for the idle—no cash for the workers—why discriminate against teachers?" 1,500 teachers paraded into City Hall late yesterday.

Singing and shouting their demands for the money due them, they waited while the Acting Mayor climbed upon a chair and explained that his signature on tax warrants has not been valid.

The teachers then paraded to headquarters of the County Democratic Committee, the First National Bank and the Board of Education, carrying out noisy demonstrations at each place.

Suspect in Killing Of Couple Released

Rufus Johnson, Negro, arrested in connection with the murders of Frank Kosnula and his wife, Katherine, in their home at Champion Hill, was released from the county jail yesterday after the county chemist reported stains on his clothing were not blood. Johnson was arrested 10 days ago.

Extension on Income Tax Filing Near End

The office of D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, second floor, Federal Building, will remain open until 6 p. m. Friday for belated taxpayers to file income tax returns for 1932. The time limit was extended from March 15 to the last day of the month, because of the bank holiday.

CREDIT MORALE DECLARED HIGH

An excellent credit morale is reported in Pittsburgh and the rest of the country, it was announced yesterday at a luncheon of the Pittsburgh committee of the National Retail Credit Association, in McCreery's dining room.

Col. Franklin Blackstone was authorized to name a sub-committee acting in conjunction with the Retail Credit Men's Association here to develop co-operative plans to analyze causes of delay in payments and to express appreciation of the large number who pay promptly.

The committee named includes C. G. Kaessner, of Kaufmann's; Thomas L. Ford, Boggs and Buhl; Harry C. Engel, McCreery's; H. E. Wilson, Gimbels, and Col. Blackstone, Frank and Seder.

Chinese Loses Life In Tenement Fire

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—A Chinese lost his life and three other persons were injured today when fire burned a six-story tenement house on the lower East Side.

Screaming women and children crowded fire escapes as flames belched from windows. They were helped down ladders by firemen.

House Revolt Hard Blow to G. O. P.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 29.—The successive defeats of the Republican House leadership on the educational retrenchment program and old age pensions have set the supposedly dominant bosses back on their heels. They have also set back the probable day of adjournment to the realm of uncontrolled speculation, and there are pessimists who believe the Legislature will be here until June.

Mr. Shields

Yesterday and today the Republican leaders, among them representatives of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, were attempting to consolidate their broken lines, to use a military phrase so much in favor with Republican State Chairman Martin. They know now what some able observers have been telling them for some time, that the House is out of control, and beyond the direction of Speaker Talbot.

The situation is jumpy beyond anything which could have been predicted two weeks ago. Scapegoats are being hunted within the ranks of those who have been associated in an effort to lead the lower branch.

There is jealousy of the prominent place Delaware County has held in the spotlight, and here and there can be found an organization adherent who picks out Representative Ellwood Turner as a target. This is hardly justified as Mr. Turner has been carrying the ball through a broken field with little interference to clear the path.

There have been no rules against clipping, piling on, holding or gouging and there are not goin to be any.

* * *

Warning of Decisive Defeat Borne Out

A week ago Gen. Martin and others theoretically in charge of political affairs were told that the House was ripe for revolt and that some day the leadership in that branch was going to be defeated by a two to one vote. These reports were scouted as the dour predictions of pessimists and the Pollyanna brigade continued to believe that all was gladsome and bright.

Yesterday on the revolutionary motion to discharge a committee which under organization and Grundy orders was bottling up old age pension legislation, the regular leadership took a defeat by better than two to one, the vote being 129 to 63. The result was astounding to the Martin and Grundy wing, but it should not have been.

Intelligent canvass of the House would have shown such a debacle inevitable and a concession could and should have been made which would have concealed the weakness of the control when put to a test.

If there had been some such conciliation or compromise, an agreement to report the bill out, the coalition which formed yesterday never would have known its power.

It is true that coalition, embracing the Philadelphia Republicans, the Pinchot Republicans and Democrats, with the assistance of Allegheny County Republicans, may never be seen in action again, but other blocs can coalesce and take things into their own hands.

As an example of how awry was the staff work of the Republican leadership in its statistical estimate of the House on the old age pension question—as well as the school issue—run over the strategic moves.

* * *

Leaders Miscalculate By 42-Vote Margin

Monday night there was a tentative agreement that the old age pension legislation would be reported, averting a fight and saving the face of the organization. This plan was junked Tuesday morning, when some organization scouts reported the votes available to defeat the coalition effort to make the committees stand and deliver. So the matter went to a vote. And where 105 votes were needed to defeat the coalition, only 63 could be raked up, a mere matter of a 42-vote miscalculation.

People have been sent to the foot of the class for less than that.

If the matter extends no further than these two instances there might not be so much to deplore, nor such pessimistic thoughts as to adjournment.

But the revolters have felt their strength, and in that spirit may extend confusion to the relief and economy measures before the House.

Another thing to be considered is that the Democrats, holding back and learning the operation of the legislative machinery, are now about drilled to a point where they can wheel their bloc into action, on this side or the other.

There are 65 theoretical Democrats. Erasing those who are really Republicans, or who have long carried the Democratic label in a Republican cause, there remain 50 votes solid for any matter of Democratic policy.

This bloc can be commanded by Mr. Pinchot at almost any time through an arrangement with Joseph F. Guffey.

The whole situation bodes ill for any accelerated and constructive consideration of legislative issues, and once again illustrates the long-held belief that the Republican party in Pennsylvania is without co-ordinated or directed momentum.

And all this failure cannot be attributed to Gen. Martin, who has some very poor mechanism with which to work.

Two Women Win Winchell Orchids By Good Deeds

MRS. JOHN M. PHILLIPS

Helping Distressed, Hospital Work Bring Honors

Quietly helping individuals in distress earned a "Walter Winchell orchid" today for Mrs. John M. Phillips, 2336 Brownsville road, Carrick, and providing reading matter for shut-ins sent the second corsage to Mrs. Malcolm McLeod, 926 Bellefonte street, East End.

The orchids were recognition from the district member sof the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and the Sun-Telegraph. Daily honors are being given in observance of National F. T. D. Week to those whose performance of good deeds is not in line with their duties or for personal gain.

Prominent as a club woman and in philanthropic work, Mrs. Phillips silently carries on charities aside from those contacted in her organization groups. Countless individuals have obtained assistance from Mrs. Phillips without even her closest friends being aware of the extent to which these efforts are given. Her work for the Brashear Foundation and Settlement is among her known activities.

Recognizing that inmates of hospitals and prisons and that missions could gain mental stimulation if books were available, Mrs. Malcolm McLeod has devoted her time to gathering reading matter from friends and other sources. Starting the work three years ago, Mrs. McLeod has carried on the work quietly, shunning publicity and refusing to give details of her experiences for publication.

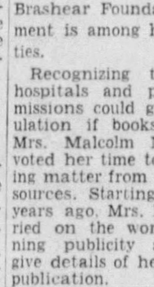
Recognition to six more persons will be given during the remainder of the week. Sun-Telegraph readers are invited by the F. T. D. members to nominate persons deemed worthy of honors. Ed Ludwig, district representative, requests that nominations with detailed information of the candidate's qualifications be sent to the Orchid Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Our country may be short of work, short of ready cash, but by golly depression has bred real patriots. Right here in Beverly Hills (the heart of art) in the exclusive Beverly Wilshire Hotel, some friend of the common people sneaked in and stole six saxophones, four clarinets, a bull fiddle, and base drum. Our town constable is looking for him to prosecute him. The people are looking for him to reward him.



Will Rogers

Pardon me for bragging too quick, when I said, "Hurrah for the U. S. She is spending her time solving her own problems." I woke up yesterday finding we are trying to get into the World Court. My error. Yours, WILL.

COUNTY WORK PROGRAM SENT WASHINGTON

Communities May Get Unexpected Federal Relief

A $1,400,000 relief program of water line and sewer construction in Allegheny County outside the city of Pittsburgh has been recommended to federal authorities in Washintgon to form a part of President Roosevelt's employment efforts.

This is in addition to the $4,000,000 in proposed water and sewer lines inside the city recommended by the City Department of Public Works.

The plans for all of the sanitary work were requested by Chief Engineer W. L. Stevenson, of the Pennsylvania Health Department and have been forwarded to Washington by him. Whether or not they will be made a part of the federal relief program is not yet known.

'SURPRISE' AID SEEN

The work in the county outside the city was estimated by state engineers here and sent on without knowledge of the borough and township officials, so that federal action may provide needed facilities in communities where help is not at present expected.

The proposed work in the county is scattered throughout the territory with no jobs costing more than $150,000, it is reported.

In addition to projects in the city and county, there is $2,600,000 in work planned for Westmoreland, Greene, Fayette, Indiana, Washington and Somerset counties. Details on other work in Western Pennsylvania have not been announced, except that all of it is sanitary water line or sewer building.

GREAT LABOR NEED

All such projects require a large proportion of labor, it is pointed out.

According to word from Washington, Representative Clyde Kelly, of Edgewood, favors road-widening projects in the vicinity of Pittsburgh to give employment. He also favors President Roosevelt's plan for forest camps.

The extension of the Beaver-Mahoning Canal as far as Youngstown, O., or through to Lake Erie is favored by Representative J. Howard Swick, of Beaver Falls, Pa.

Man, 64, Faces Court On Cutting Charge

Abraham Russell, 64, of 6 East North avenue, was held for court today by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Court, on a charge of felonious cutting.

Edward Pugh, 44, of 4 Salter way, testified he had recognized Russell as having slashed him with a razor in West Park last July. He identified him, he said, while they were being taken to jail last week in the North Side patrol wagon.

Society Man Deserting Teacup for Stein; Norman Allderdice Takes Over Old Brewery

DAMAGE BOOMS FLOOD CONTROL

Spurred by losses caused by recent high waters in this district, the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh is preparing to press its plan for the erection of 17 large reservoirs on the headwaters of the rivers, according to word from Washington.

United States Army Engineers have found such a project would cost $90,000,000, but the commission contends that the plan could be modified to eliminate four-fifths of the possible flood damage at one-half the construction cost.

With the federal government seeking work projects of real use to the community, it is considered altogether possible that the flood control plan may be adopted as a part of President Roosevelt's program.

Johnstown, Pa., once the scene of one of the nation's most disastrous floods, has asked, through Mayor Eddie McCloskey, for reservoirs for the Conemaugh Valley. A representative from Fayette County is seeking to have the government restore eroded land in the vicinity of abandoned coal and coke works to agriculture.

Struck by Autos, Two Seriously Hurt

Struck by automobiles on the North Side last night, a man and a girl were reported in serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital today.

Betty Pierce, 15, of 1417 Laurel street, suffered a probable skull fracture when struck by a car at Federal and Ohio streets. The other victim, Louis Racin, 59, of 5660 Forward avenue, suffered a skull fracture when struck while crossing Sandusky street, near Cajou way.

CRUSADER HERE BUYS PLANT

A young man whose name spells society and wealth in Pittsburgh is deserting the teacups for a stein.

Norman H. Allderdice has bought a brewery!

It's the pre-prohibition Anchor Brewery at Brackenridge, and in a few weeks Mr. Allderdice hopes to be distributing a brew which will appeal to his society friends and his not-so society friends.

Allderdice, who also has one finger in aviation and another in the machinery business, is president of the new firm—the Brackenridge Brewing Company, Inc. His brother, Lawrence, is vice president, and C. L. Metzger is secretary and treasurer.

Allderdice's interest in the brewing business is not an over-night development, for he has been prominent in the activities of the Crusaders, anti-Prohibitionists.

There have been 500 applications for every job in the brewery, but, Allderdice explained, he is giving preference to the brewmasters and their helpers who helped manufacture "Old Anchor" in the old days.

INSURANCE FEE PERILS RELIEF

Possible future work relief projects in Allegheny County may be definitely abandoned, it was thought today, following the ruling of the State Insurance Department that municipalities employing the needy must pay a minimum compensation fee of $1 a head a week.

The ruling, which became known yesterday, will have little immediate effect here, however, because work relief has been practically abandoned for more than a year in favor of cheaper direct relief.

But even were Allegheny County municipalities to employ workers in return for food orders, the compensation premium would still have to be paid. Thus 1,000 workers would cost $1,000 a week for insurance alone.

The compensation was decreed necessary about two weeks ago, although the department's decision was unknown generally until International News Service reported the ruling yesterday. Work in some parts of the state has already been paralyzed by municipalities' inability to pay the premiums, it was learned.

GROUP URGES 'SLUM' WAR

An effort to pave the way for the use of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds for tearing down slums and construction of new buildings in this district is being made by a group of builders, architects, engineers and material men.

Four bills now before the State Legislature are to receive support from the Pittsburgh builders. A joint meeting with Allegheny County members of the Legislature is to be held Saturday noon at the William Penn Hotel.

The bills favored are three providing for the formation of limited dividend corporations to raze slums, and the Harmuth bill arranging for a commission to put worthy public and private projects in shape to receive aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Speakers at a conference yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce stressed the fact that Pennsylvania to date has not received any R. F. C. money for construction. Joseph P. Tufts, of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, is arranging the meeting.

Meeting of Culver Alumni Here Friday

Judge Frank P. Patterson and Gen. Leigh R. Gignilliat, superintendent of Culver Military Academy, will be principal speakers at a meeting of alumni and friends of the school in the William Penn Hotel Friday night. The meeting will be under auspices of the Culver Legion, alumni association of the academy.

PUBLIC WORKS HELD TRADE AID

Liberalization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Federal Home Loan acts are factors along with public works programs necessary to stimulate the building trades, according to E. J. Mehren, of Chicago. Mr. Mehren is president of the National Portland Cement Association. He is attending a Tri-State meeting of cement manufacturers today in the Hotel William Penn.

Elimination of the necessity to construct self-liquidating public projects under R. F. C. loans would have developed an upward trend in construction a year ago, he said.

President Roosevelt's plans for public construction, he added, will be a real stimulus to business. Mr. Mehren warned, however, that industry must not rely on the government project. Business must do its part.

Goes Between Train Cars, Foot Crushed

Climbing between two freight cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad train, blocking a crossing in Homestead early today, Festus O'Toole, 23, of 225 Fifth avenue, was jolted to the ground when the train moved. His left foot was crushed under the wheels.

All Can Drink New Brew, But Few May Pour

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Just to prove that beer will make you fight, all New York state is fighting before it gets it.

The battle is over who is going to pour it.

They say you must drink it while seated. Like a hen on an egg. But after drinking you can get up, flap your wings and crow.

They're going to serve it in clubs, lunch wagons and restaurants. A patriotic citizen can attain our highest national honor by getting himself thrown out of a cafeteria.

Unless the Reps and the Dems can come to some working agreement we will have to organize a third party to set the table and brush the crumbs away.

By the way, don't throw away your home brew recipe until you find out which is the best.

THEIR GRADES PERFECT

MISS FRANCES HARRIET BROWN DeWOLF SCHATZEL

Miss Brown, 519 South Lang avenue, and Mr. Schatzel, Bowling Green, O., respectively a senior and a junior, the two Carnegie Tech students who finished the first semester of the 1932-33 college year with perfect grades. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Two Students at Tech Make Perfect Grades

Two students with perfect grades during the first semester are now attending Carnegie Institute of Technology. On the honor list released today by Alan Bright, registrar, Miss Frances Harriet Brown, 519 South Lang avenue, and DeWolf Schatzel, Bowling Green, O., were named as having perfect scores. Miss Brown is a senior in Margaret Morrison Carnegie College and Schatzel a junior in the college of engineering.

While good grades require concentration and hard work, they do not need to make a "grind" out of a student, according to Miss Brown. She has attended all but three of the many dances on the social calendar at Carnegie Tech during the past year, and somehow always finds time to have as many dates as the next girl. The secret of her good grades, she says, is the rigid budgeting of her time.

In addition to carrying a full course of study at Margaret Morrison, she is the chemist for an ice cream company, an exacting part-time job. But by having a time for everything, and sticking to her schedule, she not only gets her work completed on time, but leaves herself time for relaxation. She has been named on the honor list five times during the past five semesters, and after graduation expects to do graduate research work in bacteriology.

Schatzel has the best record scholastically, it is said, of any student ever to attend Tech. His grades have been perfect for two years, and only two "b's" in his freshman year prevent him from having perfect grades for his entire time at Tech. He is studying physics.

The number of students on the honor list showed a large increase this year over preceding years. According to Mr. Bright, this indicates students are taking their work more seriously and are working harder.

PLANTS ADDING TO PAYROLL DAILY

Glass Firms, Supply Houses Share in New Business

Men were going back to work today in increasing numbers, with beer oiling the industrial machinery.

Breweries, glass plants and brewery supply manufacturers are increasing their forces or working hours to be ready for the demand on and after April 7.

Breweries here are opening up their bottling plants, and today the new 3.2 was pouring into the bottles at the Fort Pitt company plant. The Pittsburgh Brewing Company expected to begin bottling tomorrow.

FORCE INCREASED

The Independent Brewing Company said its working force has been increased from a score of persons to about 100. It is ready to open its bottling works as soon as it receives its federal permit.

The Fort Pitt Company is working on a full-time basis. Twenty-two men are working in the bottling plant. The plant will be operated on a 12-hour schedule instead of eight hours, as it operated while making near beer.

The Pittsburgh Brewing Company said it had not determined how much the new operations had affected employment. All of the breweries have increased their working hours.

The Du Bois Brewing Company, at Du Bois, Pa., announced it has remodeled its plant and 40 men have been put to work. Others will be engaged as needed, the announcement said.

RECEIVES PERMIT

The Brownsville Brewery Company, at Brownsville, Pa., has received a permit and will operate on a limited basis. A dozen other plants in the Monongahela Valley probably will stand idle or will continue operating as ice plants, the owners said.

The Roscoe brewery in the Monongahela Valley, which has been manufacturing wort, is being converted for beer manufacture, but probably also will continue making wort.

Breweries being reconditioned also were providing employment. The Tube City Brewing Company at McKeesport has engaged 30 men, and company officials said contractors engaged in the work had employed several others. The Tube City company expects to begin operations about June 1.

MEN TO BE HIRED

The Brackenridge Brewing Company probably will employ about 50 men when operations are resumed at the Brackenridge brewery, according to officials of the new company, which is taking over the plant.

The blown ware department of the United States Glass Company's plant at Glassport is operating at capacity with 20 furnaces. One hundred old employes were re-engaged Monday. The company manufactures bar ware.

The Glenshaw Glass Company, once a large manufacturer of beer bottles, will resume making them next week. More work will be provided men already employed, company officials said.

Bamberger, Kraus & Co., manufacturing bottle caps, increased its working force from 25 to about 75 persons. Company officials said can[illegible]y operations probably will be [illegible]ed about April 15.

Missing Student, Girl Back Hom

While police were seeking the fearing they had met with an [illegible]cident, Charles A. (Jack) Sho[illegible] 22, Western Reserve Univers[illegible] student, of West Elizabeth, an[illegible] Ruth Marks, of Glassport, returned home early today unharmed. They had gone to a Mt. Lebanon barbecue last night and ran out of gas on their way home. After walking five miles they obtained gas.

Confectioner Held After 'Moonie' Raid

Date for the hearing of Charles Yex, whose confectionery store at 513 Station street, Wilkinsburg, was raided by police, will be set today. A small quantity of moonshine liquor was seized when Wilkinsburg police made the raid yesterday, they reported.

BANDIT SUSPECT OFFERS ALIBI IN SLAYING

Louis Scoratow, 25, formerly of McKeesport, accused as a bandit slayer, on the witness stand in Criminal Court today, testified that he was visiting an aunt in Minneapolis on the date he is charged with having killed William Weddell in an attempted robbery of the latter's barbecue stand in Long Run road, Versailles Township, February 14, 1930.

The aunt and three other Minneapolis people testified yesterday before the jury in visiting Judge J. Frank Graff's court that Scoratow arrived in the Minnesota city February 8 and remained there several weeks. Attorney A. Lincoln Cohen, Scoratow's counsel, in outlining the defense, had told the jury he would prove an alibi for the defendant.

Two state witnesses identified Scoratow as the man who fired the fatal shot, and other witnesses corroborated various parts of the evidence. City Detective Walter Monahan told of bringing Scoratow back from San Diego, Cal., where he was arrested recently.

Louis Zemler, lookout for the robber gang, is already serving a life sentence, having been convicted shortly after the murder. Frank Baskay, the third man indicted, has not been apprehended.

S. S. LEVIATHAN TO BE RETIRED

NEW YORK, March 29.—(INS.)—Retirement of the famous trans-Atlantic liner Leviathan from service after next month was understood today to have been decided upon by the United States Lines.

Formal action in turning the ship, the largest passenger liner flying the American flag, back to the United States Shipping Board, will be taken at a meeting between representatives of the U. S. Lines and the Shipping Board, scheduled for today or tomorrow in Washington, it was stated.

The reason for withdrawing the Leviathan, according to reports, is that the German-built luxury liner, which was taken over by this government during the World War, has not been showing a profit during recent months in its operation against the newer and speedier craft operated by foreign lines.

'CHARM' FAILS, $300 GONE

Search for an alleged Indian woman fortune teller was being made today by North Side police. Mrs. Susie Benko, 42, of 2409 Westmar avenue, told them of being fleeced of $300 by the woman in exchange for a "charm" that failed.

Mrs. Benko told police the woman came to her home Saturday and offered to tell her fortune. Upon learing Mrs. Benko was living apart from her husband, she offered a "reconciliation charm."

Mrs. Benko said she gave the woman $300 and the latter apparently put it in an envelope in her presence and told her to sleep on it three days when she would hear from her husband.

Not only did Mrs. Benko awake today to find her husband hadn't appeared, but examination of the envelope revealed it stuffed with paper, police said.

FATHER COX AS A BABY BUGGY-HUNTER

THE REV. JAMES R. COX

MRS. HENRY — FRANKLIN DELANO AND ROOSEVELT — JAMES V. HENRY

Father Cox at Old St. Patrick's presenting to the Henrys' five-month-old triplets the extra-wide baby carriage he 'found' for them. Jobless, Mr. Henry, 7214 Butler street, took his needs to Father Cox, who made an appeal over the radio, Mrs. Paul Skurnick, Braddock, answered with the carriage. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

NEEDS GREAT, COX SAYS

In his radio talk from the pulpit of Old St. Patrick's yesterday, Father Cox said that there seemed to be a spirit of cheerfulness and optimism prevailing but the reaction, if there is any, has not yet been felt among the thousands of destitute he has to feed and clothe. He said:

"Conditions are still desperate among the poor everywhere—particularly in Pittsburgh. You can better realize these conditions when I tell you that there are families coming to Old St. Patrick's every day for baskets of food that were making liberal donations for my work three years ago. Fortunately through the wonderful voluntary aid of the Sun-Telegraph I am in a position to supply these baskets of food. The checks from the Sun-Telegraph on the subscription drive come in every Saturday just as regular as the old pay day and each check is for nearly $100. We absolutely couldn't get along without them."

Before he had finished his radio address and gone into his sermon the telephone at Old St. Patrick's and the Sun-Telegraph were loaded with calls from new subscribers. For every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

CURIE PROVES NEW ELEMENT

PARIS, March 29.—(AP.)—The existence of illinium, one of the three elements still unknown, is believed to have been proved by Maurice Curie, nephew of Mme. Curie, who has reported the extraction of an infinitesimal amount in mixture with other elements.

His report to the Academy of Sciences said the substance was strongly radioactive.

Illinium, also known by its atomic number, Sixty-one, was discovered in 1926 by Dr. B. Smith Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, but it never was isolated and hence data are incomplete.

M. Curie and his associate, M. Takvorian, who detected the presence of illinium with samarium and neodynium, are now trying to extract pure illinium from four tons of rare earth.

Seeks Funds to Pay Woman 'Star Gazer'

An appropriation which will make possible retaining of Mrs. Bertha G. Crissman of the staff of Allegheny Observatory is being sought by Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director.

She formerly worked under an appropriation from the Bache fund of the National Academy of Science, which now is exhausted. Since coming to the observatory Mrs. Crissman has measured and published the parallax of 260 stars.

Winners Named In Safety Contest

Four high school students, Robert Naumann and Titus Pope, of Taylor Allderdice, and Robert Riester and August Hoffman, of Perry, were announced today as winners of a highway safety contest sponsored by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the first semester of the school year. Prizes were presented to the four boys for making the best grades in a series of five questionnaires on motoring laws.

Jobless Plea Fails Possessor of Still

Anthony Garish, 28, of Vinceton street, North Side, arraigned before Judge R. M. Gibson on a charge of violating a Federal Court probation sentence by having a 50-gallon still in his home, told the court he was out of work and had turned to moonshine making to pay taxes on his home. The court revoked a two-year probation granted after a prior offense and fined him $100 and costs.

'RADIO DOCTOR' CASE BEFORE HIGH COURT

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether a person exercises ordinary caution and prudence when he pays for radio treatment to cure bodily ills.

The case is the appeal of the Commonwealth from the decision of the Superior Court, which set aside the conviction of J. E. Johnson, who, it was charged, claimed ability to cure ailments by the science of aetheronics.

'ILLNESS' DIAGNOSED

County Detective David Drexler sought treatment for "Katherine Evans," represented as being his sister. The defendant, it was later testified, said he could diagnose her case by an examination of her name written in pencil on paper.

Detective Drexler said he used marked money in making the first payment, the fee to be $65 a month. Johnson was arrested on a charge of false pretense after, the detective declared, he diagnosed the woman's "illness" as cancer and other ailments.

The Superior Court, in setting aside a conviction obtained in Criminal Court, held that a question arose as to whether the pretense was such as could impose upon a person of ordinary caution. It stated that "no sensible person, standing in the prosecutor's shoes, would have been deceived."

ARGUMENTS OFFERED

In the argument before the Supreme Court, Assistant District Attorney James A. Geltz held that the law is as much for the protection of the illiterate as the educated. He said the Superior Court ruling would create difficulty in obtaining conviction in many false pretense cases.

Attorney William H. Coleman, for the defendant, contended that the Superior Court decision should stand.

70 DOGS WAIT DOOM AT FARM

There are 70 worried dogs at the Animal Rescue League Farm, Verona road, these days.

More dogs are being brought in every day, and because there is just so much dog food and kennel room available, some of them have to be killed every week. Peter Young, the pound-master, explained:

"Considering the business slump and the bank holiday, our business has been pretty good. We have had quite a few visitors who want dogs."

Young explained the dogs are sold at from $1.50 to $5. The fee is based on the value of the dog and the time the league has kept it. At present there are collies, police dogs, airedales, fox terriers and hunting dogs at the farm.

Irish Day Reunion Scheduled June 24

The Ancient Order of Hibernians and Ladies' Auxiliary of Allegheny County will hold their twenty-ninth annual Irish Day Reunion and seventy-fourth anniversary, Saturday, June 24, at Kennywood Park.

Low Prison Fund Saves Slayer From Chair

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 29.—(AP.)—Woody Williams, Negro murderer, went on living today because there isn't enough money in the penitentiary fund to execute him.

Williams was to die yesterday for killing a grocer's clerk. Authorities, however, pondered a recent law and found it had ordered the electric chair moved from the penitentiary here to the Tucker State Prison Farm. The law specifically said that there were to be no more electrocutions here.

The penitentiary fund, however, contains no money to move the chair. So Gov. Futrell reprieved Williams for 30 days—and unless funds come in, the stay will be extended.

SHANNON WEEPS AT CEREMONY

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—Amid military pomp and color, Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon received his commission as major general and commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard at sunset yesterday.

Legislators, high state officials, soldiers and civilians massed in front of the Capitol to see the veteran soldier reach the climax of his military career.

Tears coursed down Shannon's cheeks as Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, Baltimore, commander of the Third Corps Area, pinned a citation for distinguished service on Shannon's breast and referred to him as "Two Yard, Four Square, Fighting Gen. Shannon."

Others who paid oral tribute to Shannon included Gov. Pinchot and Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., Chester, who retired last week as commander of the guard. Representatives of all branches of the National Guard paid military tribute to the new commander.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the governor, led a delegation of women to the reviewing stand to greet Gen. Shannon.

Romance Blamed For 'Beauty' Murder

CHICAGO, March 29.—(INS.)—That a romance was responsible for the "ride" murder of Frank Interlande, beauty parlor owner, was the theory held by police today after finding a love letter among his possessions.

Interlande's mutilated body was found in a ditch south of the city limits Sunday. He had been shot through the head. In his pocket was a list of 500 women, presumably the names of patrons and beauty operators whom he employed.

City Gets Non-Suit In Damage Action

Judge James R. Macfarlane yesterday granted the City of Pittsburgh a non-suit in the case of Patrick and Ellen Murtagh, 2334 Juliet street, who sought $20,000 damages for a broken hip suffered by Mrs. Murtagh in a fall December 21, 1930. The court held that a hole in the sidewalk was not the primary cause of the accident.

FRENCH RATIFY DOPE TREATY

PARIS, March 29.—(Universal.)—The French Senate, by unanimouse vote, yesterday ratified the Geneva anti-narcotics treaty of July 13, 1931, thereby virtually assuring adoption by a number of powers sufficient to bring the treaty into action.

Spain, Poland, Great Britain, Switzerland and the Netherlands are reported to have been awaiting French action before ratifying the treaty.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(Universal.)—French ratification of the Geneva anti-narcotics treaty was hailed by State Department officials, who said, based on reports from abroad, that sufficient nations would ratify to bring the pact into effect on July 13.

More than 40 ratifications are expected, now that France, chief bulwark of the League of Nations' so-called "opium bloc," has come into line. It is necessary to have 25 ratifications, including four of the leading manufacturing nations, by April 13 for the treaty to come into force in July.

Constable Injured Probing Murder Dies

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 29.—Injured in an automobile accident while investigating a racket murder near Eldersville, Constable W. J. Robinson, 57, of Independence Township, is dead today. The Coroner is holding Max Green, 40, of 40 Catherine avenue, pending an inquest.

Constable Robinson, with state police and Constable George Wilson, of Cross Creek Township were investigating the murder of a Mingo Junction bootlegger on March 13, when Green's car is said to have crashed into Robinson's car near Avella.

THE MIRACLE STORY OF AMERICA TODAY

Arthur Brisbane says: "A million Americans will wish it were true."...

"Gabriel Over the White House"

Hollywood calls it the "miracle story," because of amazing things it foretells that have come to pass SINCE it was written...and others which America hope will "come true."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Cosmopolitan Productions have made it into a motion picture with Walter Huston as the president—a picture which will be shown soon at Loew's Penn Theater, beginning Friday.

But the story itself—a President's victorious war over grafters, racketeers, hypocrites, world depression and despair, will thrill you as no other fiction ever has.

Here's one that should puzzle you. Let's see what you can do with it.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Now here's a cipher that you should enjoy. It's No. 77, submitted by William Dulz, of McKees Rocks. This one is really hard. You are quite a decoder if you solve this.

Here's is a tip that may get you off to a good start. This is a cipher that could be called THE CIPHER OF THE YEAR. Now that should help. Let's see if you can solve it.

Watch for another tip tomorrow. It's sure to get you started.

Write the Cipher Editor and tell him how you enjoy this new game.

Cipher No. 76 wasn't so hard after the tip was given. Did you solve it? It was decoded as shown in today's Sun-Telegraph. That should be enough of an explanation for you.

An enthusiastic cipher fan is Miss Evelyn McKaige, who writes:

"I have been working your ciphers regularly and think they are great. They sure keep the old brain going at top speed. I believe the cipher column is a great feature for the Sun-Telegraph. May your column last for some time."

VACANT HOUSE THEFTS JAIL 2

Two Negroes, accused of robbing about 60 vacant houses in Oakland, East Liberty and Squirrel Hill of plumbing fixtures in the last three months, were held in the Central Police Station on suspicious person charges today.

The suspects, Delbert McArthur, 21, and William Stewart, 22, were arrested in their home, 2242 Wylie avenue, shortly after they returned with sinks and other fixtures they had stolen from a vacant house in Center avenue, according to city detectives. McArthur, detectives said, admitted breaking into the houses and stealing the plumbing and named Stewart as an accomplice. The loot of each robbery was carted away in an automobile.

500 Churches in Easter Service

The Easter Sunrise services on Flag Staff Hill, Schenley Park, are sponsored by the Allegheny County Youth Council, representing more than 500 Pittsburgh and Allegheny County churches.

Dr. A. R. Robinson, of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, will preach; a chorus of 200 voices, directed by Clyde Wolford, will sing, and during the service members of the Swift Mission Society will stand in the form of a human cross on the slope near the platform.

8-Hour Day Adoption Will Be Celebrated

Celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the 8-hour day will be held Saturday, April 1, by the United Mine Workers of America at the Grand Theater in Sutersville and at German Hall, in Smithton. Philip Murray, international vice president of the organization, P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, and William Feeny, international representative, will be principal speakers.

Restaurant, Grill Opening in Store

Pittsburgh's newest restaurant and soda grill was to be thrown open to the public today in the balcony of the Frank and Seder store. A special program was arranged for the opening day.

The restaurant is divided into two sections, each having its own soda fountain and grill. The balcony has been specially decorated in soft tones of buff. The lighting is almost entirely indirect. Booths built of dull walnut are arranged to seat four persons.

Railroaders to Hold Meeting in Altoona

Hundreds of railroad workers of the Pittsburgh district are expected to attend a meeting of the Railroad Employes' National Pension Association in Altoona, Sunday afternoon. The gathering in the Mischler Theater will be addressed by W. W. Royster, national chairman of the organization, who will explain the progress of pension measures introduced in the last session of Congress.

Challenging Men

MAUREEN ORCUTT

STARS AT ODDS ON MEN'S RULE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the world's greatest feminine tennis player, does not agree with Miss Maureen Orcutt, American golfing star, that top flight women can contend on an equal footing with men in sport.

Miss Orcutt was quoted as informing friends in Richmond, Va., that "Bobby Jones is the only man in the game I don't feel I could meet on equal grounds."

Apprised of Miss Orcutt's statement, Mrs. Moody made it plain that while her opinion was confined to the realms of tennis she felt men players usually can defeat women players of similar ranking. She said:

"Tennis is a different game from golf and I don't believe a comparison of this sort is possible for that reason.

"Tennis demands strength, which men possess to a greater degree than women. It demands reach, and most men are taller than I. It demands the ability to move quickly over the court, and men are almost always faster than women. Finally, man's physiological makeup is more adapted to sport than women's.

"I believe men players of top rank can defeat women players of the same ranking."

LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Carnegie Rewards Peacetime Heroes

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
BY BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

Carnegie's Hero Funds, which at first provoked the cynical to mirth, really formed part of his campaign against unnecessary war. In 10 years he gave $10,540,000 for these foundations—$5,000,000 for the American fund and the rest for similar benefactions in the leading nations of Europe.

In one of his letters David Jayne Hill records an anecdote which picturesquely illustrates Carnegie's conception. When Dr. Hill, in a personal talk with the Kaiser, informed him of Carnegie's desire to establish a Hero Fund for Germany, that gentleman, after expressing his thanks, sent for Count Valentini, chief of his civil cabinet, and told him the good news.

This bureaucrat showed no signs of enthusiasm. No need existed for such medals and pensions in Germany, he hinted; the army provided ways for honoring soldiers who performed heroic acts! It must be set down to the Kaiser's credit that he showed impatience at this rejoinder, dismissing summarily his hidebound junker with the remark that Mr. Carnegie's gift was intended to serve quite a different end—to honor the heroes of civil life, not those of war.

The stupid prepossession inherent in Valentini's words, that the battlefield was the only true begetter of heroism, was one that had for years irked Carnegie. As far back as 1885 he wrote a letter to the New York Tribune, maintaining that peace had its brave accomplishments as well as war. For ages men and women had sacrificed their lives to save others; one could hardly pick up the day's newspaper without finding some instance, yet such heroes seldom obtained recognition, and their families frequently were reduced to penury by their deeds.

A Local Disaster

In 1904 two terrible calamities, one near Pittsburgh and one near Dunfermline, brought the matter to Carnegie's attention in most distressing form.

"I heard of a serious mine accident which occurred at Pittsburgh," he wrote Dr. Weir Mitchell, explaining the origin of this fund, "in which the former superintendent, hearing of it, traveled over 20 miles to reach it. Although not then in the service of the company, he volunteered to descend and rescue the entombed. This was accomplished, but unfortunately he lost his own life."

To make financial provision for widows and children left dependent in these circumstances was the chief end of the Hero Fund.

How personally this benefaction touched Carnegie was shown in the trustees selected. One of his steel partners, Charles L. Taylor, became first president, and other early friends and business associates were original trustees: such men as Robert Pitcairn, one of the "bottom Hooshiers" of Rebecca street; Thomas N. Miller, first partner in iron; William L. Abbott, once chairman of Carnegie, Phipps & Co., and W. J. Holland, for years an intimate associate and adviser.

At times Carnegie used to insist that the Hero Funds were his favorite gifts. That he had conceived the idea himself was an especial pride. "This one," he would remark, "crawled up me ain back. No one suggested it to me. It's my bairn."

The Peace Palace

Of another of his peace conceptions the same could not be said, though the world undoubtedly believes that the so-called Peace Palace at The Hague was his idea—even, as the familiar criticism at times maintains, a "self-glorification." The documents, however, tell the story in abundant detail. Into the quiet of Skibo came, on June 18, 1900, a letter from Andrew D. White, the American delegate to the First Hague Conference who succeeded, amid great difficulties, in ramming the Arbitration Court—modest in its scope it is true—down the throat of the German emperor.

Mr. White described a visit just received from M. de Martens, the most conspicuous of Russian delegates to the First Hague Conference.

"He had something on his mind," wrote Dr. White, "and finally came out with it and also urged me to present it to you. This I do now without note or comment ... He thinks there ought to be a local habitation for the commission and the court at The Hague—a building where the court could sit, where its archives and decisions could be made accessible, and where a great library of international law for the use not only of the court but for the whole world, could be accumulated. He thinks that the erection of a proper building as a gift to the entire world for the above purpose would be a very grand thing and worthy of your munificence, and says that it would make the man who makes the gift a benefactor to every nation and to all mankind, acknowledged as such for all time. There is his statement and that is all I have to say on that point."

However, Dr. White soon became an eloquent advocate of M. de Marten's suggestion, for the next two years writing Carnegie glowing letters on what he called his "dream." At first the invited donor was not inclined to step into the breach. Such a courtnouse, he protested, should not be the gift of a private citizen; it was an enterprise that the nations signatory to the Hague Treaty should assume. Under no conditions would he make such an offer to the Dutch government; if, however, that government expressed a willingness to secure a site and to supervise construction and care, he would honor its draft up to one and a half million dollars. Queen Wilhelmina and her government were only too glad to take these steps, and the present building at The Hague is the result.

Peace Endowment

Carnegie's greatest contribution to the cause was the Endowment for International Peace, to which, in the Christmas season of 1910, he transferred $10,000,000 of United States Steel bonds.

One day he handed a formidable looking document to Elihu Root, asking him to examine it and give a reasoned opinion. It proved to be Carnegie's will, written by himself, much of it in his own hand and in his reformed spelling. The most interesting feature was a provision for a great trust, to which practically all the money was to go—a trust intended to carry out Carnegie's system of giving. Mr. Root regarded the section as cumbersome and dangerous.

"You are likely to repeat the mistake of Samuel J. Tilden," he said. "Mr. Tilden, as you know, was the greatest lawyer of his time, but he failed in drawing up his own will, for it was upset by the courts."

This trust provision, to Mr. Root's keen eye, offered many possibilities of attack. There was a simpler way of accomplishing the result the testator had in mind. "Why not organize your foundation now, in your own lifetime, and transfer to it the bulk of your fortune?"

Corporation Formed

Carnegie jumped at the suggestion. On June 9, 1911, the New York legislature passed an act to establish the Carnegie Corporation, and on November eleventh the first meeting took place, at the Ninety-first street house. Carnegie read one of his famous letters to trustees—this, in its long look ahead, perhaps the greatest of all.

"I hereby assign Twenty-Five Millions of Dollars in First Mortgage Fifty Year Bonds of the United States Steel Corporation, the principal of which is to be held and the interest and income thereof applied for the purposes of the Corporation, as stated in its charter, viz., 'to promote the advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding among the people of the United States, by aiding technical schools, institutions of higher lerning, libraries, scientific reserch, hero funds, useful publications, and by such other agencies and means as shall from time to time be found appropriate therefor.' My desire is that the work which I hav been carrying on, or similar beneficial work, shall continue during this and future generations."

Carnegie's attitude toward the war, and his views as to the duty of the United States, are expressed in a letter written President Wilson at the time when German-American relations had reached a crisis.

To the President

"February 14, 1917.

"Dear Mr. President:

"Some time ago I wrote you 'Germany is beyond reason.' She has ever since become more so until today she shows herself completely insane. No wonder the Cabinet in today's papers shows restlessness. Were I in your place there would soon be an end of this. There is only one straight way to settlement. You should proclaim war against her, however reluctantly, and then settlement would soon come. Germany sought peace recently because she knew her weakness. Britain and France co-operating with us would ensure peace promptly beyond question, and at next meeting at The Hague we would abolish war forever, as we had resolved to do the year before when Hollweg threw his forces upon France, Belgium, etc., during the Emperor's absence with his physicians as usual in the North Sea.

"Let me predict you will have the greatest of all careers before you; hope it will soon be clearly defined. Be of good cheer.

"Yours devotedly
"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

The following telegram was sent when Congress declared war:

"To the President
"April 7, 1917.

"You have triumphed at last. God bless you. You will give the world peace and rank the greatest hero of all.
"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

Stayed Optimistic

From the beginning Carnegie had kept the closest watch on the European battle, reading the newspapers eagerly and freely expressing in print his views on the present and his hopes for the future. Most of his friends, indeed, were disturbed by this pre-occupation with problems of war and peace, for the daily increasing horrors were manifestly wearing upon his spirit.

"You may prevent me from writing," Carnegie would say, "but you can't prevent me from thinking."

He still maintained his optimistic attitude, for the greatest outburst of depravity in modern history had not destroyed Carnegie's conviction that the world was a delightful place and that human kind was facing a splendid destiny. To him the breakdown of ideals only emphasized the inevitable need of a new order, and that League of Peace to which so much attention had been given in recent years would, he insisted, be an essential part of the treaty ending the war. This opinion was set forth to reporters who made their customary birthday call in 1915.

"The world grows better," he said, "and we are soon to see peace restored and a world court established, when, in the words of Burns, 'Man to man the world o'er, Shall brithers be for a' that'."

He lived to see the peace of Versailles and naturally regarded the League of Nations as the fulfillment of his hopes.

When children won't eat—and won't gain weight—

Try This!

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little fig syrup will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

A Pound a Week

Your child will eat well from the day and hour you conquer sluggishness. But that girl or boy with furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts!

Begin tonight, with enough pure fig syrup to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week, until the appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone. When a cold or other ailment has again clogged the system, fig syrup will soon set things to right.

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, California fig syrup will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food.

Just One IF—The claims made for California Fig Syrup are true and it will do the same for you—IF you get genuine CALIFORNIA fig syrup. Don't accept any of the substitutes.

I want to Heat—with Natural Gas—

MAYBE your pocketbook used to say "No," when you wanted to heat with natural gas. It says "Yes" today—says it loudly. For the heating at the new 45c rate is actually cheaper than the first cost alone of certain commonly used fuels.

Cheaper . . . and how much better! Think of striking a match in the fall, and thus ending all furnace tending worries for the entire winter. Think of the cleanliness—the saving on storage space—the uniform, healthful heat. But why go on? You know the advantages, of course.

Economy in fuel is matched with economy in equipment. For now you can—at a substantial reduction—get a round conversion burner that will let you burn gas efficiently in your present coal furnace. This offer holds only for a limited time, and applies to a limited number of burners. When they are gone, the offer terminates. Better investigate . . . today.

ALTOONA WINS OVER SOUTH

'SMITH OR BIRKOFER?' ONLY QUESTION

IF IT MAY be taken for granted that in due time Remy Kremer will be able to show enough of his old pitching skill to warrant his retention, the only question about the make-up of the Pirate crew after the 23-player limit goes into force appears to center around the choice that Manager George Gibson finally will make between Pitchers Hal Smith and Ralph Birkofer. If Kremer were to fail, the Bucs could carry both youngsters, but otherwise, with only nine hurlers to be retained, either Right-hander Smith or Left-hander Birkofer will have to be dropped, along with Charley Wood.

Hal Smith

Birkofer had a clear lead for a time, but longer experience is now helping Smith's chances. The man doing the better work between now and May 15 will get the call for the only berth remaining open under the summer limit. The 22 other survivors for the pennant fight will be as follows: Catchers, Grace, Finney and Padden; pitchers, French, Swetonic, Swift, Meine Harris Chagnon, Hoyt and Kremer; infielders, Suhr, Piet, Vaughan, Traynor, Thevenow and Young; outfielders, Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Lindstrom, Comorosky and Jensen.

JUST WHAT PROGRESS he is making has not been disclosed, but Bill McKechnie still is trying to get Southpaw Ed Wells, one-time Bethany College pitcher, from the Yankees. If it goes through, it will be a straight cash deal. The boss of the Braves also is angling for a high-priced Coast League hurler.

"Too many of our pitchers are good only for batting practice," McKechnie says. "The Yankees have 16 of quality, and not one of them is under Class AA caliber in ability to pitch. Half a dozen or more of my pitchers are not capable of holding up their ends in a minor league of that classification."

YOU CAN TAKE it from Sidney Weil, owner of the Cincinnati Reds, that the place in which a club happens to finish a pennant race is no indication of how much it cost to operate.

Weil says that though the Reds wound up in the eighth hole last year his player payroll amounted to more than $200,000. While back in 1919, when Cincinnati won the pennant and the world title, the salary list was less than $100,000.

THE TRAYNOR FAMILY may continue to be represented prominently in baseball after Pie passes out of the playing picture, which time, Pittsburgh fans hope, is still far in the future. For the Pirate captain has a kid brother coming along in his wake who is spilling a lot of promise on college diamonds. The budding star is Charles (Chick) Traynor, a student in his sophomore year at Northeastern University in Boston. Like Pie, he is a third baseman. The youngster made a fine record in his freshman year, and when Northeastern's first outdoor workout was held last Saturday he won the distinction of being the only sophomore to break into the varsity lineup. The remainder of the team was made up entirely of varsity lettermen. Coach Al McCoy gave the younger Traynor a thorough testing at the hot corner with the Team A infield and expressed himself as more than satisfied with his showing.

Bill Regan

BILL REGAN, Pittsburgh citizen and former Pirate, who has been playing in the infield for the Baltimore International League club since he left the Bucs, is on the block. The Orioles offered him to Montreal in a possible trade, but while willing to take him on loan, the Royals were unable to give in exchange any player whom Baltimore would accept.

A deal may be made later, as Montreal has only four infielders and needs an extra man. Baltimore also will carry five. Heinie Sand is slated for the utility job. Even after Regan goes, the Orioles still will have two Pittsburghers on their roster in Frank Packard and Julius Solters.

TEN YEARS AGO when Frank Reiber was a bat boy for the Tigers he told Ty Cobb his ambition was to become a big leaguer. Cobb discouraged him; said he'd never make it because his feet pointed the wrong way; that the feet of the best players pointed in.

Reiber refused to give up. He played with school teams and semi-pros, got a chance with Evansville in 1930, shifted from second base to catcher, and after three seasons in the minors has won a job with the Tigers and is voted one of the best prospects of the spring. He would like to hear from Cobb.

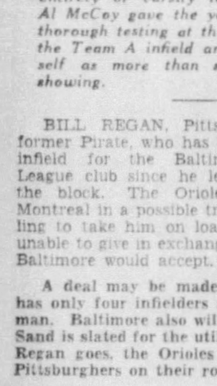
THE PROFESSIONAL GOLFERS of Great Britain are making a very serious effort to regain the Ryder Cup in the international matches with the United States pros this year. They have arranged a series of matches for sectional teams so that the strongest lineup possible can be selected. The American team, already chosen, is strong undeniably, yet if it wins, it will be the first time Uncle Sam's pros have been victorious in England in this biennial competition. Four meetings have been staged for the Ryder Cup, two in this country and two on the other side, and the home team has won in each instance.

WHILE THE DEFEAT of South High School at the hands of Altoona last night in the western regional final of the tournament for the state interscholastic basketball championship naturally caused disappointment among the local team's followers, the Orioles are entitled to a world of credit for the great fight that carried them that far.

The winning of 21 out of 23 games for the whole season is a record of which South justly may feel proud, and there is no disgrace in losing to such a fine team as Altoona boasts. A bow is due in the direction of Altoona. Only a great five could run up a string of 18 straight wins and then beat South to go into the state finals.

WHEN ANYBODY MENTIONS fighters of the old days who still are hale and active enough to work steadily as instructors to rugged youngsters, Princeton can present Spider Kelly, its boxing coach, as an example of durability.

Kelly was a prominent battler so far back in the history of the game that he had fights with the late George Dixon and other fistic aces of that period. And a fact not generally known is that he used to spar with President Grover Cleveland.



Charley Brickley

THAT THERE WILL be a return of field-goal kicking in Big Ten football after young Bill Plassman has entered the University of Illinois from Miami High School, is the prediction of Charley Brickley, Harvard's great drophicker of two decades ago. While on a visit to Florida, Brickley spent considerable time teaching Plassman the rudiments of the kicking art and soon had the youngster booting goals from as far back as 45 yards. Brickley predicts that Plassman will be one of the game's greatest kickers by the time he gets into varsity action for Illinois. Certainly the kid could have no better teacher, for the name of Brickley still stands as representing the last word in drophicking skill. Charley was the last college kicker to boot five field goals in one game. That was the crowning feat of his brilliant career, and was accomplished for Harvard against Yale on November 22, 1913, at distances of 38, 30, 25, 23 and 20 yards.

PIRATES LOSE TO SEATTLE INDIANS, 7-6

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 29.—These gingery Pacific Coast League clubs are not going to use the highly-touted Pirates as scrubs after today. The naughty boys, who have to play for 200 or 300 berries per month instead of drawing big-time wages, were sorry today that they had to come to a parting of the ways with the Pittsburghers, who will refuse to play ball with the native sons after this afternoon's game with the Seattle Indians.

Buffeted from pillar to post by Portland, Hollywood and Seattle, the Pirates tonight will hurry back to Los Angeles, where they will challenge Charley Grimm and his Cubs in the four ensuing days at Wrigley Field.

BUCS LOOK POOR

Perhaps its happy omen to lose these games yet the Pirates surely did resemble a bush-league entry as they dropped a 7-to-6 game to Seattle on the sandy diamond of Santa Barbara yesterday. The ball orchid was a bush-league layout and the Pirates entered right into the bush-league atmosphere as they lost the tilt by a bad play in the ninth.

To get down to brass tacks the Pirate pitching is just about as dubious as has been since the Buccos reached California. The one ray of sunshine is supplied by Remy Kremer, veteran right hander, who says his arm feels good again; in fact, Remy says he would like to try a few rounds against Seattle today, and Manager Gibson will grant him his wish.

The Buccos had the bases loaded in the ninth yesterday, they needed but one run to tie and only one was out when Tony Piet smacked a long fly to Almada. The young center fielder turned in a big-time play to trick the Pirates. P. Waner headed plateward with the tying run at a fast clip, but Bill Brubaker was going even faster as he streaked for third on a questionable play.

THROW STOPS BUCS

Almada threw a "strike" to third and Bill was doubled before P. Waner had nicked the plate. That was that. It would be an awful play after April 12, but O. K. at the present writing.

Hal Haid, formerly of New Castle, was on the mound for Seattle when the game came to its exciting finish. About 1,000 natives enjoyed the scrap. Meine, Chagnon and Wood twirled for the Pirates.

Chilly Sauce

The National League schedule, printed on the Pacific coast, was the recipient of nice Bronx cheer from Manager George Gibson and Prexy Bill Benswanger, catching the Bronx echo on the first bounce, passed it along with great gusto. Gibson said:

"It's a bad schedule for the Pirates. Last year we had to take a licking from the draft makers, and this year it is even worse. Just take a look at the jumps we have to make in the first month of the season."

Gibson voiced the sentiments of his players as he spoke of the schedule, but the Buccos should be accustomed to hard tests by this time. They have to make more one-night jumps than any other team.

There is a grave feeling of apprehension among some of the Pirate veterans regarding the pitching staff. A few have voiced their feeling, while others appear to hold a respectful silence.

In any event, the Pirates, with their pitchers in their present stride, are not flag favorites. The sharpshooters are far below the Chicago-St. Louis standard.

LEAGUE FORMED IN AMBRIDGE

By TOM BIRKS

With P. J. Caul in charge as president, Ambridge is going to have a city baseball league this season for the first time. The Ohio River sports center will have a compact loop of six teams.

The Ukranian A. C., Ambridge Sokols, Knights of St. George, P. N. A. Club, Russian Sokols and the Caul Cardinals are enrolled in the circuit.

The board of directors is composed of Lynn Ware, Jim Patterson, Verne Hughes and Ben Hauser. All of these men are former sandlot stars and well known in the Beaver Valley. Burgess Caul also will operate a club in the Beaver County League.

The announcement that the Parmelee System again is going to operate a team locally is good news. Paul Houston, the big gun of the concern in Pittsburgh, always has been keen for baseball, and the County League some years ago hurt baseball when it refused Houston a berth in the circuit. Now the popular East End sportsman has told Dinty Moore to go ahead with a club. The team probably will operate in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

The City League held its third meeting last night at Book's. The rules committee presented its report and practically all the recommendations were adopted.

Fred P. Alger, Jim Black, Ossie Smythe, Everett Sweeney and the president of the umpire's association selected to work the league games will compose the arbitration board.

Watson Holds Lead In Billiard Play

J. H. Watson increased his lead over the field in the annual city three-cushion billiard championship tournament last night by defeating Bud Schoeller, 50 to 45, in a closely contested match. Watson has won all three of his matches.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The best crack in weeks at a local boxing show was pulled during the first round of Mose Butch's bout with Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, at Motor Square Garden, Monday night . . . "Don't let him Buffalo you, Mose," yelled one of the local man's admirers.

If you ask me, Al Grayber turned in the best exhibition of refereeing in many moons here in this show . . . First of all, the ace of the local arbiters stopped Fritzie Zivic's bout with U. S. Carpentier at just the proper moment, after 30 seconds of the fourth round, to save Carpentier from probable serious injury after Zivic had plopped him helpless into the ropes with a powerful right to the jaw . . . Carpentier had been down and groggy in the preceding round, and was no match for the husky youngster, who fought the best bout of his professional career.

Then came the main bout, with Butch taking a bad beating from Paul after a rousing start . . . Paul was "carrying" Mose in the latter rounds, either because he didn't want to knock him out or because he was peeved over having been forced to take off excess weight at weighing-in time . . . It would have been more humane for him to have put over a finishing punch, but, instead, he was cutting down Mose by degrees, hurting him and letting him recover and repeating the process time after time . . . Mose was in a bad way throughout the eighth round and Grayber went to his corner at the end of that session and asked him if he wanted to call it a night . . . Naturally, Mose, knowing the traditions of the sport, declined.

The slaughter continued through the early part of the ninth round . . . Finally, with the round a little more than half gone, Grayber stepped up to Mose in midring, put both arms around him and dragged him to his corner, awarding the fight to Paul by a technical knockout, an action that met with the hearty approval of the crowd.

In the third round, when Paul began to score his first effective punches, Butch rallied and drove across the ring, swinging a left which landed on the body . . . Down went Paul, his face contorted in pain . . . He was clutching at his body and claiming a foul . . . Grayber did not think the punch was low, and immediately began to count . . . Despite Paul's protests, he continued the toll until Tommy finally dragged himself off the floor at the count of nine, recovered and resumed control of the battle before the bell rang.

Any sign of hesitation on Grayber's part would have been disastrous . . . Here was a pinch such as comes to all referees at times, calling for decisive action . . . Either the man is fouled or he isn't fouled . . . To vacillate in reaching a decision is to complicate matters and stir up the fans . . . The situation is the same as that which confronts an umpire in baseball who hesitates in making a decision on a close play . . . He is better off to be wrong and act without delay than to be right and wait for the fans to make the decision for him.

That Paul was not as seriously hurt as he indicated when he was on the floor was demonstrated by the manner in which he pulled himself together when he got up . . . This is true of almost all fighters who try to take the easy way out in these days of stout protection cups . . . They take advantage of a referee who is easily fooled, and thus cheat the fans of a full bout . . . In this instance, it was a good break for Paul that the referee was firm . . . He was able to come through with a decisive victory . . . It was a bad break for Butch that Paul didn't stay down one second longer, for, instead of having a sensational knockout victory to

PAUL TO BOX WILSON NEXT

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Freddie Edwards vs. Tug Phillips, 8 rounds, and Jackie Mates vs. Mickey DePalmo and Jackie McFarland vs. Kid Hurt, 6 rounds each, East Liverpool, O.
Cleveland Golden Gloves Champions vs. Canadian All-Stars, amateur bouts, Cleveland.
Chicago vs. New York Golden Glove Champions, amateur bouts, Stadium, Chicago.
Jo Ticken vs. Little Pancho, 10 rounds, Oakland, Cal.

Tommy Paul, who stopped Mose Butch at the Garden last Monday night, and beat Jimmy Thomas there two weeks before, will return next Monday night to box Jackie Wilson, East End Negro featherweight, in the main bout in the East End arena. Matchmaker Jules Beck is counting on Wilson's fleetness afoot and boxing skill to put him into the running where Butch failed.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond has corraled what looks like another great action card for his show in the arena on the North Side Friday night. Backing up Tracey Cox and Tony Falco in the 10-round main bout are Willie Davies, of Charleroi, and Charley Burns, of Johnstown, in the six-round semi-final, and Don Asto against Johnny Durso, Eddie Hebner against Steve O'Malley and Max Elling against Joey Bazzone in three more six-rounders.

Ted Yarosz has turned down offers of a match with Jimmy Smith in Philadelphia next Monday night and a place on the Max Schmeling exhibition card in Atlantic City on April 17 because the terms were too small. He probably will box at the Arena on the North Side again next week and after that will go to Boston to meet a leading welterweight.

Ottawa May Lose Hockey Franchise

HAMILTON, Ontario, March 29.—(AP.)—The Hamilton Spectator today said a movement was under way to transfer the Ottawa National Hockey League franchise to Hamilton. Erection of a suitable arena at Hamilton would be necessary.

LOCALS BEATEN IN P. I. A. A. PLAY, 34-29

By JULIUS LEVIN
Staff Correspondent.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 29.—Altoona High School, champion of District VI, will represent the western end of the state in the final battle for the scholastic basketball championship of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Saturday evening, when the Blair countians oppose Lower Merion, champion of District I and eastern finalist.

This was decided last night when Altoona defeated South High, champion of Pittsburgh and District VIII representative here, 34 to 29, while Lower Merion vanquished Scranton Tech, 18-14, in their eastern regional finale at Allentown.

SOUTH FIGHTS HARD

Pittsburghers have a right to feel proud over the brilliant exhibition displayed by their champions in face of overwhelming odds in their western regional finale here last night, and it was not until the closing minutes of the struggle that the Blair countians were able to pull away from the Orioles. The score was tied five times.

The contest, which drew a crowd of 3,500, many of them from Pittsburgh, was a nip-and-tuck affair from start to finish. The victory enabled Altoona to increase its winning streak to 19 in a row and at the same time snapped a 20-game streak compiled by the City Leaguers since dropping a pre-season contest to New Castle. Altoona has not been defeated this season.

Despite the fact they missed many shots for field goals, the Pittsburgh champions were able to keep abreast of their opponents in scoring from the floor. Both teams counted an even dozen baskets.

PIVOT PLAY WORKS

The Orioles were defeated by the same system of play that has characterized many of their victories during the past season. The team from District VI, coached by Snaps Emanuel, employed the pivot play, made famous by the original New York Celtics, to perfection to register from the floor.

Conceding height to their opponents, the Orioles fought from start to finish and twice came from behind with rallies to deadlock the game.

As had been the case in all of their previous contests, the Orioles relied on Bill Jesko at forward and Eddie Spotovich, at center, to lead the attack, and both boys came through with flying colors. Chester Airhart, star center and leading scorer of the Altoona quintet, lived up to his reputation by scoring six field goals and three fouls for a total of 15 points. Jesko was only two markers shy of this total, the Pittsburgh flash getting six field goals and one foul for 13 points.

South took the lead shortly after Airhart counted the first points on a field goal and led 8-5 at the quarter.

ALTOONA HITS STRIDE

Altoona struck it's best stride in the second quarter. Two field goals by Patt, another by Knep-

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 29.—It's only because Babe Ruth is a patriot he signed to play for $52,000. Here's the way it went:

Ruppert said: "Babe, I have only five minutes to talk with you, so sign on the dotted line."

Nick Altrock

Babe said: "I will hold out for $55,000 if it takes all winter."

Ruppert said: "You can't hold out all winter because it is always June in Miami."

Babe said: "But this is St. Petersburg."

Ruppert said: "I don't care if it's Leningrad, I won't give more than $52,000."

Babe said: "You can go to Helena, Mont. I won't sign."

Ruppert said: "You've got to. I must rush back to New York right away."

Babe said: "What's your hurry?"

Ruppert said: "Look at these tragic telegrams I just got from New York. Men, women and kiddies are crying for their beer, and here I'm frittering away my time with you. Think, Babe! They're crying piteously for their brew. You wouldn't let them starve, would you?"

At this juncture, Babe choked up, daubed his autograph on the dotted line and another crisis was passed.

I'll take mine light, Charley.

STAR BOXERS SET FOR SENIOR A. M. A. TITLE TOURNEY

NINE JUNIOR TITLEHOLDERS SEEK HONORS

The program has been arranged for the annual senior championship boxing tournament of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., which gets under way tomorrow evening in the gymnasium of the Keystone A. C.

The first night will be confined to preliminaries in the 112, 118, 126 and 135-pound classes. Eliminations will be held Friday night in the 147, 160, 175-pound and heavyweight classes. Second round bouts in all classes are scheduled for Saturday night, while the semi-finals and finals are listed for Monday.

TWO CHAMPS BACK

Only two champions of last year will be back to defend their titles in the big field of entries, numbering approximately 150. They are Charley Crovatta, welterweight, and Buck Makrum, heavyweight, of Uniontown.

In addition to the local stars, the entry list includes many punchers from Erie, Oil City, Uniontown, Weirton, W. Va., and other points. The local clubs will stage a spirited battle for the team honors.

Matt Oznick, of McKees Rocks, runnerup in the recent A. M. A. junior tournament, will represent the Emerald Club, of the North Side.

BROWNING ENTERED

Vince Browning, of Connellsville, will compete for the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. in the middleweight class. He also was a runnerup in the junior championships, losing to Eric Bredl in the final round.

Joe Sulk, the present junior 112-pound champion; Tony Demore, 118-pounder; Harry Krause, the 126-pound ruler; Don Shaffer, the 135-pound division title holder; Art McGiveren, the 147-pound champ; Eric Bredl, the 165-pounder; George Luppinacci, 175-pound toga wearer, and Dutch Weir, junior-heavyweight champion, will seek senior crowns. The entries follow:

Wash-Jeff Track Schedule Revised

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 29.—W. & J.'s varsity track and field schedule is shortened with cancellation of a meet with Western Reserve at Cleveland and other changes are impending.

In place of the Reserve engagement, the college will stage its annual intramural competition at College Field, April 29.

An impending change is the substitution of Grove City for Allegheny. The Methodists were to have been met at Meadville May 13, but also are debating over expenses. Grove City desires to come here on the date.

LAFAYETTE VICTOR

EASTON, Pa., March 29.—With a total score of 3,706 points Lafayette College won first place in the annual Third Corps Area rifle match, according to an announcement by the United States Army Headquarters. Western Maryland placed second and Lehigh third.

CAMPBELL UNDER KNIFE

Bill Campbell, Homestead High School athletic director, was reported getting along favorably in Mercy Hospital today following an operation performed yesterday afternoon for the removal of his appendix.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

Henry Williamson, of Dallas, Tex., writes:

"You often speak of regarding a short chip-shot as merely a long putt. Does this mean that in playing chip-shots the club should be swung like a putter?"

Bobby Jones

It is certainly an advantage in any game where consistency of performance is important to introduce as few complications as possible. This means in golf that each swing should be as simple as it can be made, and that the necessary range of shots should be played as nearly as possible with the same method. Attempted variations from shot to shot only adds new necessities for timing, muscular control, and club manipulation which make the game that much more difficult.

The golfer must make a habit of swinging the club correctly. He cannot possibly succeed in this if he attempts to employ a different swing for every shot. Even the better tournament players, although in practice they may experiment with various kinds of clever shots, when they set out seriously to win a tournament forget all these frills and play as nearly straightforward golf as they can. They have learned that this is the only way in which their games will bear up consistently under the strain of competition.

RESEMBLES LONG PUTT

The requirements of a short chip, where the situation permits a straightforward shot allowing the ball its normal roll without the need for backspin, are most like those of a long putt. The shot can be controlled best if the ball is played like a putt, using a straight-faced club—lofted just enough to allow a pitch to the edge of the putting surface—and relying upon a relatively long roll. In this sense, it resembles a putt more than the longer shots.

But again for consistency all shots in golf should be played with basically the same method. Some are long and some are short, of course, but that merely means that some must be struck more gently than others. Some require backspin while others do not, but, except in exceptional cases, the need for backspin only means that the stroke must be directed a shade more downward.

FUNDAMENTALLY THE SAME

A chip-shot is merely a short golf shot. So is a putt. There is no reason why the swing for either should be any different fundamentally from that which would be used for a full drive, except that the longer stroke naturally would bring more muscles into play.

This is precisely the reason that I never have looked with favor upon the advice, so often heard, to maintain the body and head immovable on the putting green. A short putt of two or three feet does not require any assistance from the body to make the stroke smooth, but, as the putt grows longer, this need becomes apparent, until the very long approach putt requires a real swing; not very long, to be sure, but still a swing in which all parts of the body have some use.

Carnera's Pilot Pleads Not Guilty

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—William J. Duffy, manager of Primo Carnera and former night club owner, pleaded not guilty yesterday to indictments charging him with violating the income tax law.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 pending arraignment April 10. Duffy was released in the custody of his attorney pending the arranging of bail.

Turf Association Wins Proxy Fight

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 29.—(INS.)—An apparent victory for American Turf Association officials, headed by Col. Matt Winn, was seen today in the proxy fight for control of the association.

Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran approved the association's purchase of 86,000 shares of its own stock at $8 a share from Paul C. Keyes, receiver of the National City Bank of Kentucky.

KEED IN FEAR OF GANGSTER

NEW YORK, March 29.—(INS.)—Fear of reprisals from an alleged gangster, who was not paid in full after he had "cut" himself in for 25 per cent of Kid Chocolate's earnings, has led Louis Guttierez and his fighter to turn to Europe for future ring engagement and shun New York, it was reported today.

Two years ago, the unwelcome partner declared himself in on the featherweight champion, but he was not paid anything until recently, it was said.

Guttierez turned over most of the 25 per cent demanded, but was unable to produce the full amount and the balance was to come from Chocolate's next fight, according to the reported understanding made at that time.

WESTMONT WINS

LORETTO, Pa., March 29.—Westmont High School's basketball team won the seventh annual St. Francis College tournament title here last night, defeating Galitzin in the final round, 43 to 21. In the consolation round final, Ebensburg defeated Portage, 32 to 25.

At Quincy, Ill.—Willie Oster knocked out Allen Mathews, 10 rounds; Eddie Foster and Lester Rogan drew, 8 rounds; Clem Reed defeated Eddie Manning, 8 rounds.

Bradford Pinmen Miss Money Post

COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—One game of 900 kept the Bodine Hardware team, of Bradford, Pa., from being listed among the high 10 in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday. Opening with a good 971, the Hardwares fell to 900 and recovered with a 963 for 2,834, the highest total of the evening.

PICARD SETS GOLF PACE

PINEHURST, N. C., March 29.—(AP.)—Henry Picard, young Charleston, S. C., pro, fired a 69 on the championship layout here today to give him a 54-hole total of 212 and the lead over early finishers of the third round of the North and South open golf tournament.

Picard went out in 33 and came home in 36. Five birdies studded his card and he was one stroke over on three holes.

PANTHERS NAME ALL-OPPONENT FLOOR TEAM

By JESS CARVER

College Memos—

From Pitt—Doc Carlson's Panthers name all-opponents team and pass up tri-state players.

From Geneva — Covenanters decide to call off annual interscholastic track and field games.

From West Virginia—Greasy Neale worried over small turnout for spring football practice and issues general call to student body for grid fodder.

From Wash-Jeff—Hank Day drills Wash-Jeffers in secret.

Two men from Notre Dame, Johnny Baldwin and Ed Krause; Joe Reiff, of Northwestern; Loughlin, of Navy, and Parmenter, of Purdue, have been placed on Pitt's all-opponent team for 1933. The Panthers passed up stars from Duquesne, West Virginia, Wash-Jeff and Carnegie Tech in naming their first team.

On the second team, Paul Birch and Red Fergus crash through, along with Rosan, of Temple, Dutch Fehring, of Purdue, and Eddie Finnegan, of Western Reserve. The honorable mentions follow:

Guards — Hargaden, Georgetown; Reiter and Moore, Duquesne; Borzage, Navy. Center—Brenner, Duquesne. Forwards — Vogele, Notre Dame; Johnson, Northwestern; Smith, Tech.

District high school track and field squads will have just two major meets to take part in this year, the annual Pitt carnival and the W. P. I. A. L. championship affair. Geneva has announced that it would not hold its interscholastic relays this year, due principally to the fact that many high schools are giving up track this spring.

The Tipoff

The Heller All-Stars, with the Pitt all-America halfback, Don Smith, the Panther all-America forward, Jim MacMurdo, Rip Collins, Paul Reider, Paul Cubs, Jimmy Clark and Rocco Cutri in the lineup, will face the Beaver Orphans, with Johnny Carver, of Allegheny, Purdum, of Michigan, Pusch, of Alabama, Ewing, of Geneva, Hamilton, of Wash-Jeff, Netherland and Crawford, of Kiski, and Tom Chantler, of W. & J., at Beaver Friday night. There WILL be somethin'.

Track at Allegheny is the victim of decreasing box office receipts of football and basketball, too. Athletic officials have announced cancellation of the entire track and field schedule for this spring, because of lack of finances induced by the poor football and basketball seasons.

LEGION EVENS SERIES

American Legion Post No. 200 defeated the J. W. Lodge Club last night, 30-28, to even the playoff series for the record division championship of the Greater Pittsburgh League.

Ted Yarosz to Talk To Fans Tonight

Pittsburgh's greatest boxing attraction and leading title contender, Ted Yarosz, welterweight star, who has suffered only one defeat in more than 50 professional battles, tells the fans about his career and his ambitions during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight, when he will be interviewed by Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor. Ray Foutts, Yarosz' manager, also will speak during the program.

Every man who smokes cigars should read this statement

THE Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto Cigar enjoyed, for many years, the largest sale of any 10-cent brand on the American market. This position of leadership was secured because millions of men found in the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto their ideal of cigar value and satisfaction.

Today—you can buy this Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto for five cents.

No change in quality

Bayuk Cigars, Inc. guarantees that the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto at five cents will give the same complete satisfaction that led millions of discriminating smokers in America to gladly pay 10 cents for it.

It contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine Havana and Domestic long-filler—the same ripe mellow tobacco.

Warning. Price reductions are the order of the day. Many cigars are being offered the public at mere fractions of their former selling price. But, in many cases, price reductions were made because value at the higher price was not apparent to the smoker.

This is not the case with the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto. Millions were sold during the past few months at 10 cents. Millions could be sold this year—and next year—at 10 cents.

They said it couldn't be done

When Bayuk decided to lead the way and be the first manufacturer to reduce the price of a leading cigar from 10 cents to 5 cents, tobacco experts said it could not be done. We tell you it has been done—and done without sacrificing one particle of the quality of tobacco or workmanship that made it America's largest-selling 10-cent brand.

We pledge the millions of smokers who know and enjoy the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto—(Some call them "Philadelphia Hand-made")—that they will find in this famous cigar—at 5 cents—the same enjoyment and satisfaction as before.

Bayuk Cigars Inc.

BAYUK'S GUARANTEE

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America. Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine Havana and Domestic long-filler—the same ripe tobacco.

STOCKS BRACE ON WHEAT UPTURN

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—The stock market fell back into its recent habit of listless drifting today, lacking strength to press further the advance of yesterday's late trading.

Nevertheless, an early sag was soon checked, and declines largely regained by early afternoon, partly in sympathy with renewed strength in wheat. Gains in steel and electric power production shown in the mid-week statistics were too small to provide market impetus.

The announcement of the administration's program to regulate security issues was the outstanding event of the day for Wall street, and while investment bankers were reluctant to comment on the proposals without further time for study, it was felt in some quarters that the plan might attract much support from investment bankers who believe that rigid restrictions, similar to those in force in Great Britain, should tend to restore investors' confidence and prove a real aid in reviving financing.

The rail shares continued to mark time, pending the expected early announcement of the administration's plan of dealing with the carrier problem. In the meantime, reports from western carriers have indicated further recovery in traffic from the low levels reached during the banking holiday. Nevertheless, estimates appearing in the financial district several weeks ago, indicating that traffic would reach last year's volume some time in May, have generally been revised.

While Secretary Ickes continued conferences with oil interests, looking to a stabilization of that industry, the weekly petroleum statistics showed further gains in crude production and in gasoline stocks, and prices remain unsettled.

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER DIP

CHICAGO, March 29.—Wheat prices rallied quickly today from early downturns that were associated with failure of Liverpool quotations to follow yesterday's advance here. Unfavorable crop reports continued from important sections of domestic winter wheat territory. Opening unchanged to ⅜ off, the Chicago wheat market later scored gains. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Reactions which followed rallies from early setbacks carried the wheat market down almost a cent a bushel in some cases from previous advances. Washington messages suggesting possibilities of Federal licensing and increased regulation of commodity exchanges accompanied the price decline.

Corn and oats largely duplicated wheat action. Provisions were upheld by a rise in the value of hogs.

VALUE CONCEPT OF WEALTH DISCUSSED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 29.—What is "wealth?" How can millions be poor in the midst of plenty?

To an individual, wealth is anything which has economic value; that is, anything which is wanted, but is "scarce."

But to have economic value a thing must either be salable, or be subject to appraisal on the basis of its definite income so that an estimate as to its probable value can be made. Of course, money is wealth, but only to the extent that it will buy such things as food, buildings and automobiles.

Human beings, or their qualities, however, can be considered as wealth only where slavery exists.

ALL CAN'T BE RICH

An individual is "wealthy" if he owns much wealth. Here we see a paradox in the making, for we have just said that a man is wealthy when he has an abundance of things which are scarce!

Of course, the fact is that while the wealthy individual has plenty, others have little. If everybody had plenty of everything, nobody would be "wealthy." And the more everybody had, the less they would want. Nothing would have any economic importance and the idea of wealth would not be significant.

Indeed, we read of tropical islands where nature provides abundantly for the limited wants of the natives. Are they "wealthy?"

These thoughts suggest the so-called "paradox of plenty," and remind us that in 1932, millions of people were in need while huge supplies of commodities and great productive capacity existed. What is the explanation?

ARTIFICIAL SCARCITY

The answer is that commodities which formerly were really scarce are now abundant and are, therefore, low in value; but there owners will not alloow their abundance to become effective and refuse to sell them for what they will bring, thus creating an artificial scarcity in the midst of real plenty.

As larger and larger stocks of cotton and copper accumulate, these commodities lose their scarcity and approach the condition of being "free goods" such as air and water.

This fact, however, is not recognized by the producers, who think of the past cost of production. The government may even aid them in withholding the surplus.

VALUES DECLINE

So the cotton and copper decline in value, and the owners' "wealth" is reduced. But the abundant supplies are not made available to others. Air and water are abundant and ordinarily have no value, although we could not do without them. Cotton and copper we could do without but, despite their abundance, the owners hold them for higher prices.

Thus they grow poorer, and no one else benefits by the large supplies. Their individual wealth is reduced; that of others is not increased. The wealth of the nation is smaller.

It is an ancient criticism of the economic conception of "wealth" that as things become more plentiful so that people can consume more freely, prices fall and value-wealth decreases, while as things get scarcer and people can consume less, prices rise and wealth increases. Many critics, therefore, argue that "wealth" should not be measured by value.

HIGH PRICE STIMULANT

But the justification is simple and clear. As long as we do not have enough of a thing to satisfy all wants, we must economize in its use. We therefore allow buyers to say what they will in order to find out who wants the thing most and to prevent wasteful use by those who want it least.

High prices tend to stimulate production of scarce things and increase the supply. Low prices tend to direct consumption to things which are plentiful.

Thus the system of measuring wealth in terms of economic values seems to be the best way to solve the paradox. If we allow free play to market forces, they tend to make scarce things more plentiful, and plentiful things scarcer.

VALUE CONCEPT

If the farmers and mine owners had been willing to have sold their cotton or copper for what it would bring (say 4 cents per pound), would they not have received a larger total income than they have? And would not the rest of us have benefited by a lower cost of living?

The value concept of wealth limits it to things which are actually desired, and makes us choose among things according to their importance to us. We do not include "free goods" as wealth, but only things for which our wants are not satisfied—things of which we do not have enough.

This does not mean that other things (air and water) are not necessary, but that we have enough of them, and they present no economic problem. To increase their supply would not add to our wealth.

One may conclude that the failure to adjust values according to the law of supply and demand, resulting in overproduction, withholding surplus commodities from markets and monopoly—these are what cause poverty to exist amidst plenty and make mockery of abundance.

Sharon Hoop Names Collord to Board

SHARON, Pa., March 29.—George L. Collard, of Pittsburgh, was named to the board of directors of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company at the annual meeting of stockholders. Mr. Collard replaces W. W. Galbreath, Warren, O., on the board.

Other directors and all officers were re-elected.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 29.—Another dull market today found the curb unable to carry on with Tuesday's moderate improvement and price averages settled back slightly. Activity was again limited to the usual trading favorites, most of which lost a little ground, especially in the early dealings.

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

F. R. EXPONENT OF ECONOMIC PLANNING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Apart from immediate measures, President Roosevelt has identified himself with the of economic plan newer philosophy of economic planning.

Mr. Rukeyser

A Philadelphia businessman, Samuel S. Fels, has drawn up blueprints for making such planning practical. He will set forth the details later in a forthcoming book.

Opposing regimentation, Mr. Fels declares:

"Privae enterprise frees initiative; but we see that private enterprise, if left loose-jointed and unco-ordinated, lets the common life down. The need is for fresh team-plays, for planning and controls from raw materials up, over credit, production and distribution, that will give new order and security and, at the same time, will preserve initiative and freedom."

GUILD PROPOSED

In the survey graphic, Mr. Fels points out:

"As a point of attack my own thoughts run toward the organization of a trade system which, to my mind, would be as practicable to organize as was the Federal Reserve System or the income tax system. The federal trade system, as I see it, would require a central board of, say, seven outstanding men, to be presided over by a man of the caliber of Thomas W. Lamont, Owen D. Young or Alfred E. Smith. The first duty of this board, under empowering acts of Congress, would be to segregate into large units the different industrial operations that more naturally fit together and to institute in each an association of employers which might be called a guild. Every corporation employing a minimum number of workers would be obliged to join such a guild if its products enter into interstate commerce. The sound movement toward federal incorporation is in line with such a

CHAPTER VII.

Jim looked past Eddie.

"Do you want to go to the movies with me, Sharlie?" he asked, his eyes fixed on hers. They were full of anger. "Or do you want to go with his fellow?"

It did not take Sharlie long to make a decision.

A trip to the movies with Jim Barnum was simply a trip to the movies and nothing more.

An evening with Eddie—well, she never knew what an evening with Eddie would bring forth. Trust Eddie to provide excitement of some kind always! Besides she was in love with him. . . Just one look at him tonight had made her see that more clearly than ever.

"This is Eddie Wallis, Jim—I—I had a date with him tonight and forgot all about it," she said, flushing.

It was a silly lie. And she could tell by the look in Jim's eyes that he did not believe it.

He stood there above her on the landing without speaking, for a full minute.

"Well, I wouldn't want you to break an engagement on account of me," he said then. "Good night."

Sharlie knew that she had hurt his pride by turning him down for Eddie, and she was sorry. But only for a moment.

"Let's go, boy!" she said to him as soon as Jim had said good night and had vanished into the Barnum's flat.

"Yea, bo!" said Eddie, and downstairs they went, their arms locked and their cheeks almost touching.

TO MEET FRIEND

The vestibule door at the bottom of the flight was the Gateway to Adventure for Sharlie that night. Outside in the street stood Eddie's ramshackle car, its battered sides gleaming in the light that streamed out through the vestibule door.

The moon rode along above them as they left the city and swung into the River Road.

"I'm as rich as mud tonight, Babe," Eddie said when they turned a bend in the road and the lights of Green's Island came into view. "My dad's paying me 15 simoleons a week in the store, and I got 10 out of him tonight in advance. So I thought we'd ride out to Becker's."

"Becker's" was a roadhouse 30 miles from town.

Its reputation was bad. But its food and music were very good. Sharlie had been there once before with Eddie.

"Tip Joyce is going out there tonight with some zany of his," said Eddie. "I told him if we got there first we'd get a table and wait for them."

"You were pretty sure I'd go with you, weren't you?" Sharlie asked, nestling close to him. "I really shouldn't even speak to you—after last night."

"Why bring that up!" asked Eddie, drawling the words in imitation of the Two Black Crows.

BEAUTIFUL GIRL

The girl who came to Becker's that night with Tip Joyce was a pretty girl.

Her name was Lily, and Sharlie thought she looked like one. Her hair was the color of raw gold and her skin was white. She had on a white silk suit and a little white silk hat that made Sharlie feel very shabby and down-at-the-heel.

"Wonderful looking zany, isn't she?" Eddie asked when he and Sharlie were dancing.

An odd little jealous pain twisted Sharlie's heart. Her mouth quivered at the corners.

"She's perfectly lovely," she said quietly. So quietly that Eddie looked down at her face.

"But she can't touch you for looks," he added, and Sharlie smiled again.

Back at the table, when the dance was over, Tip Joyce took out his flask. It was a silver-plated one. But Sharlie thought it was sterling silver and she was impressed with it.

She was impressed with Tip Joyce, whom she had heard Eddie talk about for months. He was very well dressed and he had a leather cigaret case with his initials stamped on it in gold. . . His girl had a gold-mesh bag filled with little gold boxes for cosmetics, and an ivory cigaret holder.

At 11 o'clock she got up from the table. Sharlie got up, too . . . It was high time they were starting back to town.

"Let's go and powder our noses," said the Lily girl. It seemed that this was not the end of the evening after all.

Sharlie followed her into the dressing room. It was packed with girls who were making up their young flushed faces before the mirrors.

"You're engaged to Mr. Wallis?" asked the Lily girl as their eyes met in the shining depths of the mirror.

"No." Sharlie shook her head as she smeared lipstick on her soft mouth. "You're engaged to Tip, though, aren't you?"

"Good gracious, yes!" answered the girl named Lily. "You don't think I'd be here drinking with him if I weren't, do you?"

And Sharlie felt exactly as if she had been smacked smartly across her face.

MONEY ALL GONE

It was 1 o'clock when they all left.

Tip and Lily climbed into a cream colored roadster and vanished into the warm darkness.

"They're engaged to be married," Eddie remarked gloomily as he started his own car. "Gosh, I wish we were married, and were on our way home together, don't you Babe?"

"We're too young to think of getting married," was all she said.

"I haven't very much gas," Eddie murmured, "and I've spent all my cash . . . Gosh, they rob you in that place! A dollar a bottle for ginger-ale——" He shook his head over the high cost of a high time.

"But I think I've got enough to get us home," he went on when they were out on the highway. "There's a dirt road up here a mile or so that cuts off quite a big corner."

He took it. It was a narrow road full of deep ruts. Also it was dark. Leafy branches overhung it and the grass and weeds grew high along either side of it.

"Gosh, I'd hate to be stalled out here," said Eddie when they had driven a mile or two on it. "Maybe I should have stuck to the highway."

The car seemed to be slowing down.

OUT OF GASOLINE

"Are you driving slowly or is this car stopping?" Sharlie asked suddenly.

The car itself answered her. It came slowly but surely to a stop in the middle of the road! The chugging sound of the motor died away and there was nothing left but the chirping of crickets in the tall grass and the sleepy sound of birds in a tree above their heads.

Then all at once Eddie began to laugh.

"We're here because we're here!" he quoted, chanting. "We're here, because we're here—"

"Oh, stop!" Sharlie cried. "This is no laughing matter, and certainly nothing to sing about."

"Don't you have a reserve tank in this car, Eddie?" she asked sharply. "We can't stay here all night!" She made a movement with her hands as if she were wringing them.

"Why not?" asked Eddie. "It would be better than walking back a mile and a half to the highway. And after we got to the highway, we'd have to walk another mile or two to the Five Points gas station . . . You never could make it, Babe."

SHARLIE FRIGHTENED

In the darkness Sharlie shook her head. "I never could," she groaned. Her feet were sore now from dancing in her thin-soled high-heeled slippers, and her head was heavy from drinking. So were her eyelids.

"I could make it, of course," Eddie began. But she let out a little shriek of protest.

"Never!——Never would I let you leave me here alone, Eddie Wallis! Probably I'd be murdered by the time you got back like the woman in that story 'The Dead Under the Crabapple Tree.'"

Eddie slumped down in his seat.

"Aw, we'll stay right here until daylight," he settled the question. "Then I'll beat it for some gas and we'll be back in town by half-past six or so. If you're careful your folks won't even hear you sneak in when you get there."

She had "sneaked in" at 1 or 2 in the morning a half a dozen times before, and Eddie knew it.

"Kiss Papa goodnight and shut your eyes, Babe," he said with a comfortable yawn and drew Sharlie's head down against his shoulder.

Synopsis

Young and pretty Sharlie Dunn is attracted to irresponsible Eddie Wallis. One night, Eddie takes Sharlie to his apartment and makes violent love to her. She flees in fear, and, returning home, interrupts a tete-a-tete between her mother and Carl Hanaberry, a friend's husband. Next evening Jim Barnum, a neighbor, invites Sharlie to the theater. As they leave Eddie arrives and forbids Sharlie to go.

THE CONGRESS AT BERLIN (1878)

Russia shattered the power of the Turks in the Russo-Turkish War (1877), forcing a treaty which created a large new Bulgarian state out of the freed Ottoman territories. Great Britain and Austria-Hungary objected. Russia consented to submit the treaty to the powers. Under the presidency of Bismarck, the congress at Berlin reduced the Bulgarian territory, placing Bosnia and Herzegovina under the administration of Austria, which annexed them later. DIVIDING INTO SHAWLS REHEATING OVEN FLATTENING OVEN LIFTING INTO LEHR

THE MAKING OF WINDOW GLASS BY THE MACHINE PROCESS

(From left to right) The huge glass cylinders are lowered by the moving racks. The neck, where the glass was held, is cracked off by applying a string of molten glass around it. The cylinder is divided into sections or shawls by drawing a red hot iron around the glass and quickly applying a touch of cold water to the suddenly heated place. The shawls are split open lengthwise similarly.

The split shawl is reheated and softened until it loses its cylindrical shape and becomes flat. After that it is lifted from the iron carriage in the heating oven, transferred to flattening stone and then ironed into a flat sheet in the flattening oven.

From here the glass is moved to a cooler and then to a lehr, where it is allowed to cool and temper by degrees. After cutting to commercial sizes, the window glass is ready for packing and shipment. (Science.)

No Good, London

The fully established city of London bobs north with the elimination of the forlorn wallflower.

The idea is to either compel two girls to dance with one man or force the boy to dance with the two ladies.

Here's how it works. First, the boy and girl choose up sides as usual. They clasp one another in their baggy elbows and whirl to the hidden strains of a Venetian waltz.

The wallflower stands along the sidelines and thumbs, "Are you going my way?"

She is a social hitchhiker. She places her hands on the other girl's shoulder and joins the dance.

Why not make it 10 or 11 girls and play snap-the-whip?

It's the silliest idea of dancing we ever heard from. When people dance they like to breathe on one another.

Of course, the second girl can flirt with her opponent's partner. But it is not polite to read a newspaper of a gentleman over another lady's powdered expaulets.

Suppose an argument arose and they started a tug-of-war? The man would be outnumbered two to one.

This suggestion is discarded with the caps of yesterday's cream bottles. Not feasible. The man is liable to lose his second partner on a curve.

We actually saw them try the three-power dance idea out at a ball room last week. Too much money. When it's only 10 cents a dance why pay 20?

Boys and girls fall in love while dancing. And how can a man propose with his arms full of beautiful strangers?

He might say, "Will you marry me, dear? I mean the one in back, not the one in front."

Naturally, the one in front will be miffed and she will slap his face. And he will die a bachelor and a woman hater because he will always think he was smacked by the one in back.

If you have any more suggestions like this send them in and we will diagnose them.

The Change in Mayors

Herron Has an Opportunity to Make Partial Amends by a Good Administration

Charles H. Kline is resigning as Mayor to escape imprisonment for malfeasance.

Physicians have certified he is ill, and that is the reason given for annulling the jail sentence.

It is to be hoped he recovers his health.

John S. Herron, President of City Council, is to succeed Kline as Mayor. His accession is viewed with misgivings by citizens who have Pittsburgh's welfare at heart.

Herron has a forbidding record. He was a Kline lieutenant and sought to prevent the exposure of the corruption in the Kline administration.

But as Kline's star waned Herron's support faltered.

He is now classed as an ally of Senator James J. Coyne, whose political machine is far from representing what is noble and decent in politics.

Herron may change his ways and confound those who expect a continuation of selfish gang rule. We hope he will.

He has a chance in the leadership about to be entrusted him to atone for his bad service to Pittsburgh.

Tariff for Protection

American Industry Must Not Be Left Exposed to Cut-Throat Foreign Competition

On Friday of last week the French government raised new and additional barriers against American manufactures and announced that others are in preparation.

So it goes!

England with her domestic tariffs and Ottawa agreements excludes us from all British markets.

Germany makes an overnight thrust at American meat products in the shape of a FIVE HUNDRED PER CENT INCREASE IN TARIFF DUTIES, the highest in all German history.

France, not to be outdone, boosts her exclusion duties to new heights and frankly admits her intention to practically terminate the importation of American goods.

Meanwhile our government gropes about as in a dream, prating about world adjustments, world economic conferences, tariff stabilization by international accord—unrealities, all of them, in the face of the UNITED OFFENSIVE WHICH THE WORLD IS WAGING AGAINST AMERICAN PRODUCTS.

The latest French drive against our undefended industry and commerce includes photographic apparatus, of which the United States has hitherto supplied twenty-three per cent of all French imports; metal furniture, of which we have hitherto supplied forty-five per cent; cutlery, machinery and radio instruments, of which we have furnished twenty per cent.

But this is only one-half of the story. While the tail feathers of American business are being plucked at will and at leisure by our competitors, WE REFUSE TO MAKE THE LEAST MOTION IN DEFENSE OF OURSELVES,—OUR HOME INDUSTRIES OR OUR WORKERS.

We decline to rebuild our fallen fences. We hold every gateway to the American market open to the unchecked entry of cheap merchandise from these foreign nations who show so little hesitation or compunction in barring out American goods altogether.

Folly can go no further than this. We are the jest of the world.

The absurdity of our policy,—or rather lack of policy—in the face of such conditions, is the despair of clear headed business men and all sound-thinking Americans.

A continuation of such shortsightedness and folly will surely mean the termination of the Democratic control of Congress.

American industry and employment cannot be stimulated by subsidy while it is left exposed to the cut-throat competition deliberately guided against us by foreign governmental direction.

If the Democratic party with its exploded principles of free trade or tariff for revenue only is not going to protect the American people from foreign trade and tariff aggression it must make way for a patriotic party which will.

No School Parsimony

The Legislature's Unwillingness to Skimp on Education Shows a Creditable Spirit

The bill to reduce teachers' salaries has been defeated in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg by a decisive majority.

Other bills in the school economy program are thought to have little chance of passage.

One of them at least—that eliminating school districts of less than 1,000 population—has merit.

But the legislators are suspicious of all plans for cutting educational costs. They remember the years when, because of a parsimonious policy in paying teachers, Pennsylvania's schools had a low rating, and they are resolved that that condition shall not return.

There is to be no skimping on public education.

That spirit does the Legislature credit.

When Beer Comes Back

Floyd Gibbons Tells What It Will Mean to the Country

For a clear and complete account of what legal beer will mean to the United States see Floyd Gibbons' article in the current Cosmopolitan Magazine.

It will mean, says Mr. Gibbons, these things:

300,000 men will go back to work.

$150,000,000 in Federal revenue will be created.

$360,000,000 will be spent for brewery plant repairs.

$75,000,000 will go to buy an initial stock of ingredients.

$50,000,000 will be spent for new kegs.

$20,000,000 will be spent for advertising.

$15,000,000 will be spent for new bottles.

$15,000,000 will be spent for motor trucks.

$12,000,000 will be spent for new beer cases.

$5,000,000 will be spent for new beer labels.

Mr. Gibbons' researches took him from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with numerous stops en route, among them Milwaukee and St. Louis. His figures are compiled from the operating budgets which brewers have set up, and from the tax rates on beer before prohibition was adopted.

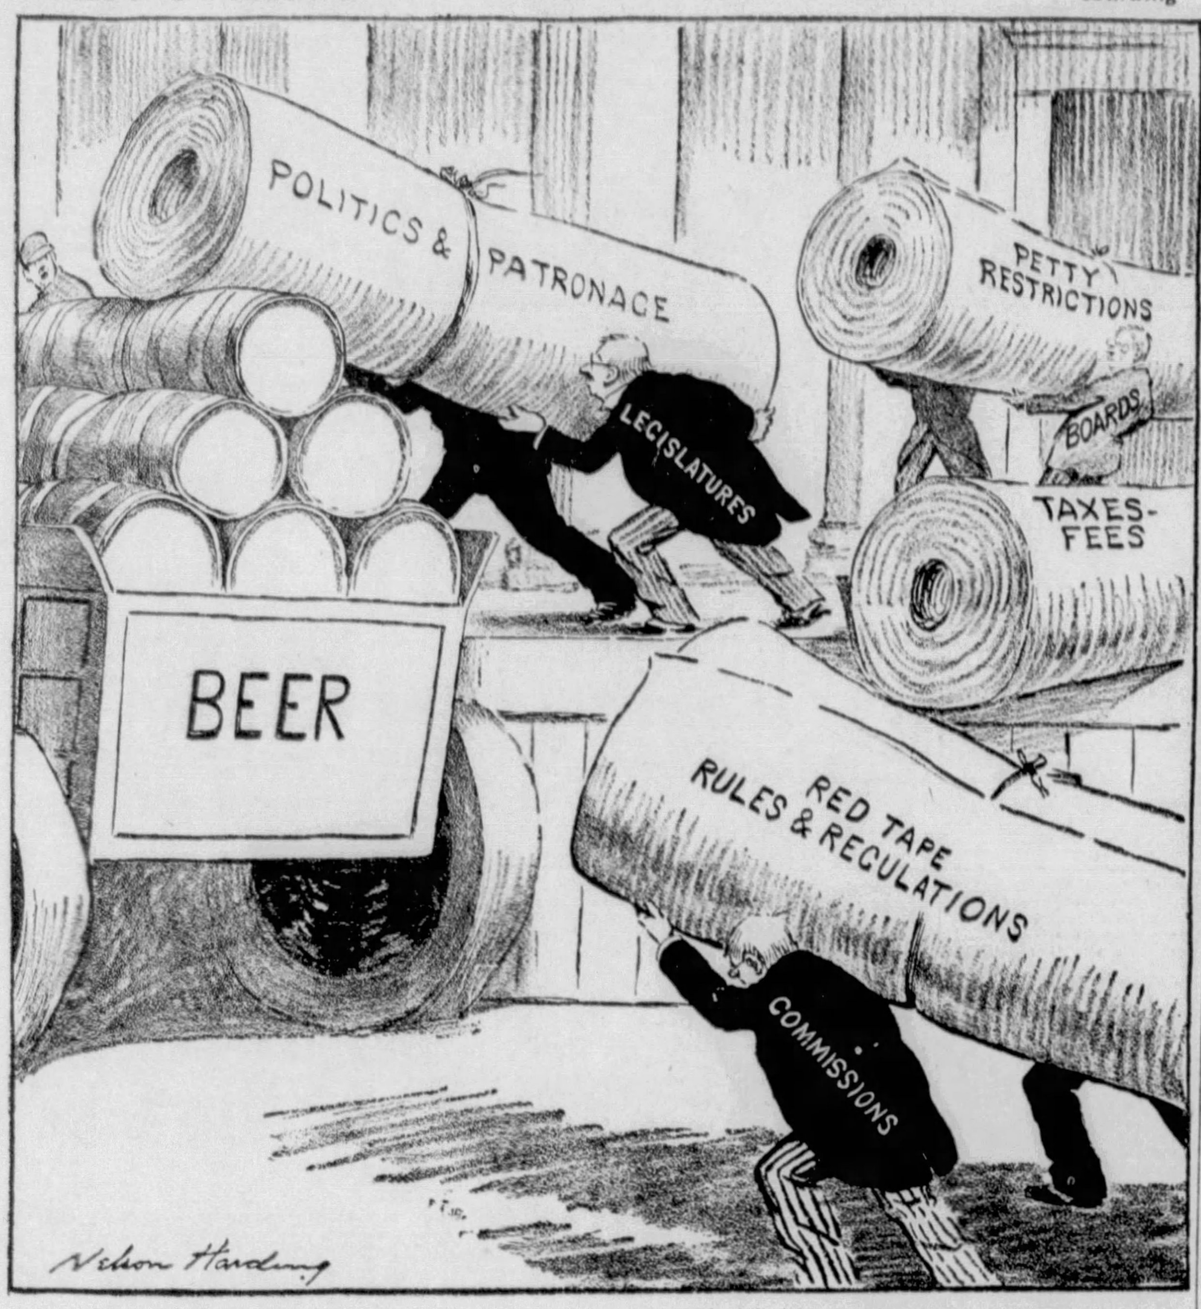
The article, however, interests more persons than brewers, internal revenue collectors, Senators or Representatives.

It interests printers, artists, advertising men, glassblowers, carpenters, freight handlers, automobile manufacturers, hotel men, farmers and many others whose income will be increased by a change in the Volstead Act.

It also interests beer runners, racketeers and prohibition agents, whose income will be DECREASED.

Don't Overload It!

By Nelson Harding



There stands the long awaited cart,
All ready for its promised start,
But cannot move its liquid freight
If loaded down with too much weight.

And legislators who prepare
Those added burdens must take care
To keep those burdens very small,
Or else the truck can't start at all.

MAYBE I'M WRONG

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Eros Has Wings

Eros has wings, and yet
None dares to cage him;
He flees from any net
And bars enrage him.

Oh, tempt him if you can,
With praises woo him;
Wise hearts, since time began,
Do not pursue him.

He comes to luring lips
Of song and laughter;
But if away he slips,
Let none run after.

Eros has wings and so
He must be roving;
Bravely, then, let him go
To other loving.

No man on earth can chain
The winds that fold him,
Longest will love remain
Where no bonds hold him.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 29.—Broadway, reaching its shabbiest low, has for several years expressed a street carnival rhythm, but even that valiant old defender, Variety, now calls it "honky-tonk." Coupled with this is the empty-store bleakness that suggests a wintry boardwalk at Coney Island.

From the Circle to Herald Square are at least a dozen penny and nickel-a-dance halls blowzy, dim-lit points with faded, gum-chewing hostesses. Even the outside barkers present a dispirited droop in ill-fitting uniforms. The movies with circused-up fronts stress the tawdriness.

Some of these movies, exploiting 25-cent films, have usher-salesmen selling sex tracts at intermissions. At least 50 cellar clip joints have singers of filthy songs, and several offer the exhibitionists of rue Blondell. And, after midnight pornographic postcards are hawked in the Parisian manner.

Panderers, who used to be chased up side streets, also are a part of the scum of the after-midnight boil. Several hotels, once trying to be respectable, have long given up the struggle. No questions are asked.

* * *

We wonder what the Broadway bloods of 20 years ago—Caleb Bragg, Cyril Crimmins and the rest—would think of the nightly spectacle today. In those days, there was a box at the Follies, a supper at Delmonico's and a dawn wind-up at Bustanoby's. Broadway was symbolical of the metropolitan consciousness—an overworked city at play. Then came the racketeers!

* * *

The most talked-of chorus girl of that epoch was Jessie Reed, a Titian-haired beauty with peach-blown complexion, out of a Texas whistle stop. She played no favorites, and was squired by a different gallant nightly. She reigned five years, was then involved in several marital mixups, and suddenly disappeared.

* * *

Perhaps no one else can describe "the Broadway that is no more" as well as "Ma" Schlesinger. She has lived, reared a family, and been in 20 different businesses in one little store in Times Square. Before moving uptown, she lived on Lower Broadway and has not been off the street one day or night in 20 years. She has seen opulent men reduced to carrying the banner and women, whose names were once spoken in awe, become "decoys," patiently knitting in the sight-seeing buses.

* * *

One of the pathetic touches of Broadway is the electrical clock now advertising a malt, and which its owners hope soon to use in advertising real beer. In the sad interlude, it mournfully chimes, at the quarter hours, "How Dry I Am!"

* * *

A melancholy bull pup, with all the world's troubles in his eyes, sat aloof in a window of mixed puppies, on Forty-ninth street. A little girl, finely dressed, with her aristocratic mother, passed. "I want him. He looks so sad," she said. A few minutes later a chauffeur, in plum liverage, came, and carried it around the corner to the child waiting in the limousine. Thus, he left Bagdad to become a prince among pups. Kismet!

When a reporter falls down on an assignment, Stanley Walker, one of the town's picturesque city editors, reaches into his desk, puts on a Sherlock Holmes deer-stalker cap, inserts a bulldog pipe in his mouth and, with a large magnifying glass, begins looking about the floor for trails. This, he contends, makes both the reporter and himself feel foolish.

* * *

Walker is, incidentally, a precisionist over correct spelling and proper initials in names. Recently he made an error in his own copy and the night desk sent him a "Who's looney now?" telegram addressed: "Stanislaus X. Valker, Large Neck, L. I."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Queer how men and women are wrangling between themselves these days; blaming each other for their respective troubles; saying "If you'd done your share--!"

Or maybe it isn't queer. Perhaps it's the sort of thing we must expect before we can ever achieve real equality and mutual self-respect.

"But haven't those things been achieved between men and women?"

Rose Wilder Lane, in her latest book "LET THE HURRICANE ROAR," says they haven't. She believes that Men Still Want To Be Boss, and if they can't they won't play. Or they'll get even somehow. In short, she suspects, though in much prettier language, that Masterful Mamas make Pouty Papas.

"But they always did!" says Mrs. James Rowe. "And what of it? Are we women supposed to go into eclipse so that males can prove they are 'big, he-men' again? Must we act simple-minded and helpless, in order that they may feel important?

"I am fifty years old. I can remember a good deal of those 'good old days' when men ran things, and women were supposed to be too delicate to do their own thinking. My mother's sister was actually afraid of her husband. Oh, no; he didn't beat her. He merely over-awed her and kept her in a continual condition of eclipse by maintaining an air of 'quiet authority,' and squelching her every time she ventured to express an idea.

"A friend of ours had a husband who insisted on buying her clothes. He said that, being a woman, she had no taste. Well, she had a sort of dark, sallow complexion. Green always made her look bilious. But he liked green, and that was what she wore. He simply took it for granted that it was his place to run things, and his big, booming, 'kindly bossing,' as he thought it, had her as over-awed as my aunt. She was wretched in the clothes he bought. She knew how terrible she looked in them, if he didn't. But she knew he would raise a terrible row if she dared to say a word. She bloomed out after being left a widow.

"Their daughter wanted to go to college, but she didn't go, because he thought education was foolish for a woman. She couldn't earn her own way, because there was nothing she knew how to do. She died an embittered old maid. And she was really talented.

"Are we to go back to those days, and worse, just to let men be 'strong?' Are women really of so little account, and men of so much account, that women must be kept in the dank dark, so they can bloom?"

And there, though you may not suspect it, is an extremely important psychological document—which is making history.

Recently a famous psychiatrist said, "Have you noticed what a curious effect unemployment is having on men with working wives?

"Frequently they have been the most devoted couples for years, and the wife would gladly give her husband her position if she could. But things aren't done that way in the business world; so the husband is forced to stay home and the wife goes to the office. And what happens?

"PERHAPS MY EXPERIENCE IS PECULIAR, BUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF SUCH SITUATIONS ARE NEARLY ALWAYS TRAGIC. The husband 'can't take it.' He becomes despondent, then morose, and ends by 'escaping' into invalidism. No; it isn't pretense. At least, it isn't conscious pretense. IT IS SIMPLY THE MASCULINE PROTEST AGAINST A HUMILIATION WHICH HE IS UNABLE TO ENDURE."

Do YOU agree with that? Have you seen such cases? Is this one of the major problems of depression? And, if it is, what are we going to do about it?

Text for Today But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.—Hebrews, xiii:16.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss, pastor, German Evangelical Protestant Church, Downtown.)

Why Does She Cover Her Mouth?

Darwin Tells You.

WHY DOES SHE DO THIS? WHY DO WE ALL DO MANY THINGS?

When you see this picture you know that the woman holding her hand against her mouth is frightened. She has said something that she regrets, or she sees something that terrifies her, and puts her hand on her lips, instinctively, not knowing that she does it.

Human beings do many things, not knowing they do them or WHY they do them? This picture illustrates one of these unconscious movements. The gesture of this woman, covering her mouth recalls old Job's saying: "I will lay mine hand upon my mouth. Once have I spoken; but I will not answer; yea, twice, but I will proceed no further."

Placing the hand on the mouth indicates fear or caution among ALL human beings.

You can show this picture to an Eskimo, watching for a seal to come up through the ice, or to a Hottentot looking for an ostrich nest on the desert and both would say, "She is frightened."

This picture and many others go far back into the history of the human race, a million years and perhaps farther. Darwin tells about it interestingly in his admirable little book "The Expression of the Emotions."

You needn't fear to read it, for it does not try to persuade you that you descended from some kind of monkey—nor does any other book of Darwin's try to do that, by the way.

A human being places his hand upon his mouth when he is frightened, to make sure that he will UTTER NO SOUND TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF ANY ENEMY.

At the sight of a ghost, if there were such a thing, a man or woman would put the hand upon the mouth instantly, to prevent the noise of a gasp from the mouth, which instinctively opens wide in a moment of fear.

Tell a bad piece of news to an emotional neighbor, and that neighbor will open his or her mouth and exclaim "Ah!" to prove that he feels deep emotion.

The things that we do, not knowing WHY, are innumerable. When you sneer at a man you raise your lip and uncover a large shining tooth on the side. Wolves do that when they are going to bite, that they may not bite their own lips.

Our ancestors probably used to bite long before they invented weapons.

A young baby annoyed will put out his lips, and stick out its tongue. That is an imitation of what it does when something disagreeable is in its mouth, it pushes it out. A monkey puts out its lips, sticks out its tongue, in the same way, to indicate disgust.

When a man is frightened it is said that some times his hair will stand on end.

When a dog is frightened, the hair on the shoulders and along the top of his neck stands on end. This is to let the other dog get a mouthful of hair instead of a mouthful of flesh.

Why do we shrug our shoulders? A Latin can make the shrug mean "I don't know, or I don't care." The shrug of one shoulder can say perfectly plainly "Perhaps." Shrugging both shoulders, keeping the neck up, and showing the palms of his hands, saves him the trouble of saying "I am very much perplexed."

It would interest you to read Darwin's "Expression of the Emotions."

It is not theorizing, but based on careful observation of animals and men.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Fill each blank:

1. "He maketh me to lie down in green ——; he leadeth me beside the still waters." Bible.
2. "But there's nothing half so sweet in life
   As love's young ——" Thomas Moore.
3. "The —— I spent with thee, dear heart,
   Are as a string of pearls to me." R. C. Rogers, "My Rosary."
4. "—— made him, and therefore let him pass for a man." Shakespeare, "Merchant of Venice."
5. "I stood on the bridge at midnight
   As the clocks were striking the ——" Longfellow, "The Bridge."

Match correctly:

6. Mount Whitney	Washington
7. Mount Katahdin	California
8. Mount Hood	New Hampshire
9. Mount Washington	Maine
10. Mount Ranier	Oregon

Do you know:

11. Who was President of the Confederacy?
12. What was the Pendleton Act concerned with?
13. What President's attitude was once described as "watchful waiting"?
14. When was the Armistice signed?
15. Who is the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"?

Answers to today's tests:

1. Pastures. 2. Dream. 3. Hours. 4. God. 5. Hour. 6. California. 7. Maine. 8. Oregon 9. New Hampshire. 10. Washington. 11. Jefferson Davis. 12. Civil Service Reform. 13. Woodrow Wilson. 14. November 11, 1918. 15. Harriet Beecher Stowe.
